A Yarmouth man has married a girl named Dollar. Hereafter she will only be a better half.

Conan Doyle, with or without the aid of his friend, Sherlock Holmes, has succeeded at last in finding a wife.

When a person passes a store and notices in the window goods marked down from $75 to $45, it is a good plan to keep right on walking, says the Beaver State Banner.

Mrs. Ida Husted Harper has completed the writing of the third volume of the Life and Work of Susan B. Anthony. It is expected that the work will be ready for circulation in February, Miss Anthony's birth month.

In October colonist tickets were sold over the Harriman lines as follows: To Portland $20, to points in Oregon south of Portland, 30¢, Hood River, 13¢, The Dalles, 13¢, Pendleton, 11¢, LaGrande, 18¢, Baker City, 14¢, Walla Walla, 36¢, Lewiston, 15¢.

The Portland police have got new duties, so we are told. They stand at the bank doors, and question people as to their intentions, if you are going in to deposit your "wad," as an eminent financier describes it, all right. If your intention is to withdraw money, (where have we heard that word?) you are politely informed that you cannot enter. Meanwhile, the assaulter of girls and children roam at large.—Mount Scott News.

Mount Scott News: Strawberries blooming on the commons, raspberries in the gardens, must look strange to Eastern people, who see snow and sleet at this time of the year, as a rule. The fine Italian climate Oregon is blessed with should cause her inhabitants to be grateful forever. Riches is not all in life, if the outside is gloomy and forbidding. Here we not only enjoy good weather, but all the luxuries of life, including good health.

The Hood River Glacier says that on Monday afternoon the track laying crew of the North Bank road followed by a construction train, came in sight of John Koberg's place, two miles east of town. Tuesday noon the trains had reached Bingen, and there was great rejoicing and considerable excitement over the first train into the future metropolis of the North Bank. Track laying is now going on at a rapid rate. Side tracks are being laid at Bingen, and the road will be pushed westward from there.

We met a man the other day, says an exchange, who declared that he had all the business he could handle, and saw no reason why he should seek for more, when he could hardly keep up with what he had. The time is not very far away when that man will find out that his trade is falling off. Will he advertise then? Not he. He is too wise. He will decide that he must cut out the little non-essentials like advertising, and then business will get worse. After a while—well, we can see his finish. Advertising should not be undertaken with a single thought of the present. It serves to hold as well as to draw trade.

Milk is sold now from slot machines by London dairies. From the door of each of these establishments protrudes a brass spout and a handle. There is also the customary slot and a notice stating that only pennies can be used. All that purchasers have to do is to put in their pennies, turn the handle, and hold their jugs to receive the half pint of milk which is thus released from a 20-quart tank. If they need a pint of milk the performance must be gone through a second time. The advantage of the device is that it enables the owners of the premises to shut their shop at reasonable hours and the customers to purchase milk at all hours of the day and night.

The time draws near when damp beds become greater elements of danger than at any other time of year, especially here in Oregon where considerable rain falls at this season and windows are left open on account of our mild climate, permitting the moisture to enter the house. In no household should the precaution of airing the bed linen before taking it into use be omitted, and it will make the bed more healthy and more comfortable if an India rubber hot-water bottle, or a stone bottle cased in flannel, be put in just before bed time. As a final test of dampness in a bed, put a small looking glass between the sheets. Leave it there for about five minutes, and if it is then taken out with a cloud or mist upon its surface, it is a sure sign that the linen is not thoroughly dry. In such a case do not attempt to sleep between it, for damp bed linen is a fruitful source of rheumatism and lung affections.

A factory has been established at Grossalmerode, a small city in Germany, near Frankfurt, for the manufacture of telegraph poles of glass. The required strength is secured by a re-enforcement of strong wire threads. One of the principal advantages of these poles would be their use in tropical countries, where wooden poles are soon destroyed by the ravages of insects and where the climatical influences are ruinous to wood. The price of the poles is $6 for a pole of the length of about 23 feet. The Imperial Post Department, which has control of the telegraph and telephone lines in Germany, has ordered the use of these glass poles on one of its circuits.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Jamestown Exposition company last week a financial statement was read showing the total liabilities to be $2,400,000, detailed as follows: Due the government on the $1,000,000 loan, $900,000; due on the exposition first mortgage bonds, $400,000; due on current liabilities, $668,000; due on stock subscriptions to the exposition, $432,000. No statement was rendered as to the assets, but these include $600,000 estimated value on the sewerage, etc., with $500,000 in unpaid stock subscriptions collectable, which would leave a debit of something over $1,000,000 if the assets are realized upon as estimated. The committee will consider the feasibility and practicability of reopening the exposition next year.

Why not adopt the East African plan in this country. Let the county and towns build a main line over the principal thoroughfare, say from Gaston to Portland, and those wishing to ride up to their own home put down a spur track connecting with the main line. The African idea is great. Here it is: Street railways with cars operated by manual power are in use at Mombassa, East Africa. The light, narrow gauge tracks are laid through the street, and the cars are for hire, like cabs, or are the private property of officials and wealthy residents. They are little four-wheel cars with one or two cross-seats, and each is propelled by two natives. Spur tracks are run into private grounds, so that persons can take the cars to their doors.

It is said that money is coming west "in a week or two," and the daily papers would lead people to believe that it is coming in carload lots. There is no doubt but money will be more plentiful in a week or ten days than it is at the present time and that banks will have enough on hand to do business with, but no one will see gold passing from hand to hand as freely as it did a month ago for many a long day. The "holiday scare" and the closing of a few banks, has had its effect and people with money will neither bank or spend it, but have tightened the purse strings so taut that it will take more than clearing house paper to make them loosen up. If money enough reaches this coast "in a week or two" to permit bankers to meet all demands and the governor takes down the holiday card, confidence will return gradually and money get back into circulation. But it will take some time. It is only a scare, however, and will undoubtedly result in much good, both to the bankers and the people generally.

Last evening when the train from Seaside arrived at the depot, about 50 Italian and Greek railroad laborers from the railroad camps on the Northshore road made a rush and entered the chair car and comfortably ensconced themselves in the upholstered arm chairs. They were mostly all smoking cigarettes or pipes. Passengers who had secured chair car tickets on entering saw who their companions were to be, turned and left the car. Just before the train pulled out for Portland John Mason, the colored porter, put in an appearance and all who saw the expression on his face thought he was struck dumb with astonishment. The railroad laborers not having chair car tickets were unceremoniously hustled out bag and baggage to their discomfort, but to the delight of the large number of people who witnessed the incident.—Astoria Budget.

Nine San Francisco conductors on the Valencia division of the United Railroads were discharged last week for withholding fares. The men were detected in the act by detectives in the employ of the corporation. Since election day, over thirty of the non-union conductors have been dismissed for being short, and more, it is said, are likely to follow unless they can avoid the sharp eyes of the spotters. The theft of fares by some of the non-union men has been a severe loss to the United Railroads. Stories are told of some of the dismissed conductors making from $10 to $20 a day more than the $2.50 wage paid them by the company. A story is told of one strikebreaker from Texas who cleaned up $1,200 as a result of his thefts of fares. The man worked on the cars for two months. When the additional 100 cars are placed on the various lines some time next week the officials of the company say they will be better able to enforce the discipline that is required to give the best results to the company and the public. The company now has over 1,700 men employed.

At its recent annual meeting held in Columbus, the Ohio Federation of Labor adopted a resolution calling upon the state legislature to adopt a resolution, at the coming session, "requesting the congress of the United States to submit to the various state legislatures for ratification an amendment to the United States constitution prohibiting disfranchisement on account of sex." The secretary was instructed to send copies of this resolution to the governor of the state, to the clerk of the house and the clerk of the senate. Among other State Federations of Labor which have officially declared for woman suffrage are Connecticut, Colorado, California, Iowa, Indiana, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Michigan, Maine, New Hampshire, Ohio, Oregon, Oklahoma and West Virginia.

An exchange has the following in reference to the Merchants' National Bank at Portland, and the bank situation in general, and is right to the point: "Withdrawal of funds from the Merchants' National Bank of Portland, result of which though still solvent, compelled the institution to close its doors temporarily, serves to demonstrate what will occur when people lose their heads. The bank had five million in deposits, and before it closed it had paid out half the amount to depositors, a most remarkable evidence of soundness of the institution and an absolute proof of the fact that, no matter how strong financially any bank may be, it can be forced to close its doors by such foolish acts as characterize Merchants' National depositors. The people after while will put their money back into the banks, many of them in the same one after they have done what they could to injure the rapidly improving financial situation in Portland by crippling one of the best and soundest institutions through an uncalled for and absolutely unnecessary and unjustifiable run upon its funds. This Portland procedure ought to have a salutary effect upon the balance of the state in avoiding similar action, for, if left alone all the banks of the state will come through with flying colors, thereby saving the credit of the country and holding up values for all of us. Today the whole situation throughout the country is taking on an optimistic turn, and men who are thoroughly conversant with American finance declare in most positive terms that we have rounded the corner of our financial depression and are on the home stretch to normal conditions. Money is coming in from abroad by the millions, gold is moving westward for handling crops and starting anew all the wheels of progress. The holiday season is now, apparently, short-lived."

The Secret of a Beautiful Face lies in keeping the skin protected as well as cleansed. Just washing is not enough—that only leaves the delicate surface more exposed to the irritation of dust and germs; to merriless attacks of sun and weather. After washing, apply Robortine and experience its delightful refreshment. You will admire the line-softness it imparts to face, neck and arms. It not only stimulates a radiant glow, but protects the skin from becoming coarse. Prevents burning tan and freckles.
