tinct. The fact has been recognized for some years that this African race is destined to extinction. This is all the more remarkable because everywhere else the African races are more than holding their own. Pestilence, war, and the evils that the whites introduce are powerless to obliterate them. Africa is growing in native population.

But the Bushmen are now reduced to a handful, and every year they of Bolinger, on the east side of the are dwindling. Circumstances are too hard for them, and it is not believed they could be saved, even by a change in their conditions.

The Bushmen inhabit the great desert of South Africa. There is no running water, and yet among the sand wastes there are depressions ging, and in places it comes so near the surface that vegetation flourishes and many animals find nurture in the desert.

The Bushmen are only a few inches taller than the pygmles of Central Africa. They live in rock caves or in huts of sticks and grass. They seldom wear more than a leather apron to protect their legs from thorns.

But life, though failing like our grain. They subsist on the scant vegetation, on roots, and on the animals they kill. Clubs, hows and arrows, and a few spears are their only weapons.

They are primitive, but they do not buy their wives : they have been faithful to those whites who have befriend ed them, and they paint and draw in an astonishing manner. Much has been written of the thousands of animal paintings with which they adorn the rocks and the walls of their caves. Why do they not abandon the desert ent to which they are 'confined? They
