DEDUCTION OF INDEBTEDNESS

The article two weeks ago in regard to assessment and taxation has caused some little comment among exchanges as well as an interchange of thought among our readers.

Mr. Watson, superintendent of the Oregon Iron and Steel Company exhibited a diagram of Tualatin river at and above where the dam is located and made a statement as to their proposed action about lowering the dam.

Resolved, That it is the expression of this meeting that, although any obstruction in the Tualatin river by erecting a dam at or near the present dam built by the Oregon Iron and Steel Company is a damage to the farmers on said river, we would make no objection to the proposition, and plan exhibited, offered by Mr. Watson, the general superintendent of said company, to-wit: That the present dam shall be lowered to a level 2 feet below the present crest in the center for a distance of 175 feet, and may extend on south side one foot higher for a distance of 244, and then one foot higher for a distance of six feet and one foot higher for seven feet, and to be permitted to raise the water in the river by means of slush boards 205 feet in length and of width not to exceed 3 feet from the 15th of June to the 15th of September but no later unless necessary to keep the water in the river at the present stage.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C. SEP. 4, 1894. Senator Faulkner, of West Virginia, chairman of the democratic Congressional campaign committee who is almost constantly at the committee headquarters, smiles significantly every time his attention is called to a new version of the dissertation which the republican newspaper correspondents profess to have discovered in the committee.

THE DAIRY.

One of the chief resources of Oregon's wealth is its dairy business, and we note that in this business Washington county is among the foremost of the state.

Washington county has many fine dairy farms and quite a number of excellent creameries. Two miles and a half south of Hillsboro we find the South Tualatin creamery association, composed of some of the most substantial farmers among whom we might mention Messrs. Schulmerich, Asch and Denny, with Mr. C. J. Hansen in charge of the creamery plant.

This creamery receives milk from 250 to 300 cows, and produces from 140 to 150 pounds of butter per day. They are running light just now as the price of butter is very low.

A few miles farther east we find the Farmington creamery. This plant is the property of S. E. Craig, and produces 60,000 pounds of butter from Sept. 1st, 1893, to August 31st, 1894. Milk is received from 800 cows.

The Hillsboro creamery is located near the S. P. depot and is owned and operated by W. R. Craig. The milk is furnished by members of the Hillsboro Creamery association, and the butter is made and placed on the market for four cents per pound. They receive 900 pounds of milk per day and make on an average about 40 pounds of butter.

The Clover Lawn Creamery is located on the farm known as Col. Cornelius North Farm near Glen-co. It is owned by C. N. Scott & Co. with B. Burch, manager. They have fifty cows of their own, they also buy milk from outside parties. At present they are only making from 16 to 18 pounds of butter per day. They complain of drought and say that the price is so low that it does not pay to buy chop feed for their stock.

Northwest of Hillsboro is C. A. Hanley's dairy farm. He sends six gallons of cream to Portland— from seventeen cows—and receives 60 cents per gallon. He is grading his stock to Jersey breed.

TUALATIN RIVER MEETING.

Last Saturday pursuant to adjournment quite a number of the citizens living along the Tualatin river met at ten a. m. in the court house. Judge R. Crandall called the meeting to order. The secretary, R. H. Mitchell, not being present T. D. Humphreys was appointed secretary pro tem.

Mr. Watson, superintendent of the Oregon Iron and Steel Company exhibited a diagram of Tualatin river at and above where the dam is located and made a statement as to their proposed action about lowering the dam.

Resolved, That it is the expression of this meeting that, although any obstruction in the Tualatin river by erecting a dam at or near the present dam built by the Oregon Iron and Steel Company is a damage to the farmers on said river, we would make no objection to the proposition, and plan exhibited, offered by Mr. Watson, the general superintendent of said company, to-wit: That the present dam shall be lowered to a level 2 feet below the present crest in the center for a distance of 175 feet, and may extend on south side one foot higher for a distance of 244, and then one foot higher for a distance of six feet and one foot higher for seven feet, and to be permitted to raise the water in the river by means of slush boards 205 feet in length and of width not to exceed 3 feet from the 15th of June to the 15th of September but no later unless necessary to keep the water in the river at the present stage.

Upon motion meeting adjourned to September 14, 1895.

WASHINGTON, D. C. SEP. 4, 1894. Senator Faulkner, of West Virginia, chairman of the democratic Congressional campaign committee who is almost constantly at the committee headquarters, smiles significantly every time his attention is called to a new version of the dissertation which the republican newspaper correspondents profess to have discovered in the committee.

He says that those for whose benefit the committee exists have the best of reasons for knowing that there is no dissonance, and that it will be beneficial rather than otherwise to the democratic party. If those correspondents can convince the republican managers that the committee is not in a condition to render effective service to the democratic candidates. As a matter of fact, all of these dissertation fairy tales are based upon a misapprehension of the duties of the committee. With the exception of the campaign Text Book, which is prepared by the committee, and which is not for general circulation but for speakers and editors, the committee does not decide what sort of documents are to be sent into a Congressional district. It merely sends what is asked for by the candidate, or those authorized to speak for him.

The committee is filling all orders sent to it, and will continue to do so. Senator Faulkner says the information he is receiving from all over the country is daily adding to his confidence that the democrats will retain control of the House, and he thinks that the greater the improvement in business, now becoming apparent in all sections, the larger the democratic majority will be, as the only thing that ever made the issue doubtful was the business depression and the disposition of many voters to hold the party in power responsible for the hard times.

Representative John T. Dunn, of New Jersey, has some very strong ideas on political economy, and they are thoroughly practical, as is the man. Speaking of the effect of the republican policy upon farmers, he said "If there is any class of people under the sun who ought to vote the democratic ticket it is the farmer's. Since 1860 farm values have decreased fully 40 per cent in the United States, as shown by the census figures. There isn't a country place in New Jersey today that is worth over $50 per acre for farming purposes. I happen to own the old Dutch homestead, on the outskirts of Elizabethtown, on which the celebrated Ben Wade was born. It contains eighty four acres, and in 1860 was held at $25,000. I am now negotiating to sell it for $5,000. Land is the only thing in this country that has not kept pace with the increase of the population. Protected industries have absorbed the increase of value that, in the absence of laws favoring a special class, would have gone to land owners. As a legiti-mate consequence of this beautiful protection doctrine, Egyptian cotton and Indian grain have been brought into competition with the products of our soil, forcing down prices of both to the lowest point ever recorded.

In order that the matter should be dealt with by experts, Secretary Carlisle has designated a number of U. S. Customs Inspectors and officials of the Customs Bureau of the Treasury department, to act as a commission to draw up the regulations necessary for the enforcement of the sugar schedule of the new tariff. This commission will be under the immediate direction of Assistant Secretary Hamlin.

Secretary Jones, of Nevada, isn't much of a populist, notwithstanding his sensational letter announcing his abandonment of the republican party and his intention to act with the populists in the future; but he is a firm believer in the free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1 and a very shrewd politician; hence the publication of that letter. His sole object, in the opinion of your correspondent, was to endeavor to force the silver question to the front in the Congressional campaign, because he thereby hopes to lessen the number of democrats elected to the next House, owing to the known differences of opinion of the party on the subject. I do not hesitate to predict that upon all political questions Senator Jones will continue to vote with the republicans as he has always done. Mark the prediction. In other words, the move is a republican trick.

Secretary Carlisle wears a broad smile these days, in spite of the hard work he is having to do in connection with the new tariff. Cause why? The cash receipts of the Treasury are steadily increasing and it is no longer necessary for him to sit up o' nights to study out how to meet the obligations of the government.
