It is about time that one-horse newspapers let up on Gresham. He probably knows what he is about, and their kicking will do them no benefit, nor him no harm.

THE MAN who led the great railway strike last summer is in Portland. He will probably fail in raising more discontent, as his failure in the strike line was so very monumental. He is now trying to raise money to pay court expenses but such men as Debs never work for it.

THE ARGUS has never been a very great admirer of Secretary Gresham, but thinks he showed the proper American spirit in calling Spain down at once. A little Jingoism is a good thing occasionally. He is not bounden to please the republican press, and could not if he had any desire to do so.

WILL the Oregon legislature ever do anything to so amend the statute that a party charged with a crime can get a speedy trial? As the law now is a person held for crime and arrested after an adjournment of Circuit court must lay in jail for several months before a trial can be had. This comes home to taxpayers as well as prisoners and Oregon would do well to follow her sister state of Washington in this regard.

It is not to be presumed that the city council needs a dictator. If they are incapable of legislating for the city's welfare they should be removed. If the council sees fit to regulate a license for retail of spirits by drug stores it has a right to. It need ask no officious individual advice, and it need presume nothing. Granted that the ordinance passes it imposes a $400 tax and should license be taken out it will be acceptable to the city's exchequer.

HILLSBORO is showing the proper spirit in the subscriptions to the Fourth of July fund. Every citizen of the town and every person of Washington county should individually consider him or herself responsible to the putting forth of an effort in making this a Washington county affair. What we want is a celebration that will be remembered for years by young and old alike. Put your shoulder to the wheel and it will be a grand success.

A CONTEMPORARY remarks that it hopes the "expert" will not prevail this session of circuit court. It is unlikely that it will. But it is wise procedure to expert the county's books at least once a year. No good officer objects to such a thing, and an annual expense of one hundred dollars is not so unseemable to tax payers. They certainly are willing to pay that much for a rigid accounting, under the supervision of two men. Such an amount of business surely needs some inspection occasionally.

HILLSBORO is now paying $800 per year interest on bonds for the city water supply, and the protection it affords. Besides this it pays extra for 3 hydrants put in since the original contract was made. The city also cost the city something in the course of a year. A proposition will be before the city council, so it is reported, whereby the city can purchase the light and water plant at the present time, in stead of a number of years hence per contract. The water company will choose a man, the city will choose a man, and these two will then select a third party, the three to act as arbitrators in the purchase. There are many positions that one could take on the matter of the purchase, but it is a fact that a few years interest would soon eat up enough to buy the plant entirely. The city should pay the plant a dividend if properly operated.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 9, 1895. It is fortunate for the country that the present administration is free from jingoism. If it were not there would be a certainty of an immediate tariff war between the United States and the countries which have followed the lead of Germany in excluding American cattle and meat, professedly on hygienic grounds, and grave danger of war of a more dangerous nature.

Although Secretaries Gresham and Carlisle have been confined to their homes by sickness for the greater part of last week they have not escaped the pressure brought to bear on them by the jingoists, to retaliate upon those nations—Germany, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Denmark—by imposing the ten per cent additional duty authorized by law upon all imports brought to the United States in vessels sailing under the flag of a nation that discriminates against American products.

This may eventually be done but there are several reasons why the administration has no desire to do it unless compelled by circumstances. First, it is believed that a European combination has been formed for the express purpose of trying to force a tariff war in order to cripple the rapidly growing foreign trade of the United States; second, the treasury is in no condition to lose the revenue which must necessarily be lost by a tariff war with the countries named; third, the struggling business interests of this country could ill afford at this time the entire loss of the trade of those countries, which would almost certainly follow retaliation on the part of this country, and lastly, these countries all declare that they are not discriminating, but are only actuated by a desire to preserve the health of their citizens. Secretary Gresham believes in exhausting diplomatic remedies before resorting to retaliation; but if retaliation is resorted to it will be carried out thoroughly and in the end we shall not be losers.

The republican editors who have jumped on Secretary Gresham because of his reported efforts to get the government of Great Britain to settle its boundary dispute with Venezuela by arbitration have simply shown their ignorance. Every administration since that of President Arthur has endeavored to bring about this arbitration, and in keeping up the effort Secretary Gresham is not introducing anything new, but merely endorsing a policy which has been supported by his predecessors—Frelighuysen, Bayard, Blaine and Foster, and which is creditable to him in every respect.

There is common sense in the concluding words of a statement made by assistant Secretary Curtis, of the treasury, denying the sensational statements sent out from Washington about the treasury being embarrassed by reason of delay in the delivery of the gold purchased by the late issue of bonds. Those words, which follow, are commended to those democrats who are fond of getting their news from republican papers: "The prosperity of the country will be greatly hastened when some effective method is formed of checking these alarming articles written by newspaper correspondents and newsgatherers who are willing to sacrifice the truth and their own consciences, if they have any, to create a cheap sensation, and play upon the feelings of an already overwrought public."

Chairman Sayers, of the house appropriations committee, closes his analysis of the appropriations made by the Fifty-third congress with the following: "To have checked the biennial billion dollar pace set by the Fifty-first congress is an achievement in itself. To have done not only that, but to have reduced the appropriations of the congress below the billion mark is a triumph vast in its proportions and significant of a return to economical and honest government."

The first fight in the ranks of republicans of the Fifty-fourth congress is already on, the principals being Reed and Cannon. The row began over the Crisp complimentary resolution adopted by the last house. Mr. Cannon asked Mr. Reed to offer that resolution and when he declined said he would do it himself, and he did. He also made a few cutting remarks to Reed about his churlishness. The row has grown since then, and although Reed's election to the speakership seems assured, Cannon is said to be engaged in raising objections thereto and to be not without hope that a combination can be formed to beat him.

Ex-Speaker Crisp, who is a silver man and one of the commissioners who will go to the monetary conference, if there be one held, says: "I have been greatly encouraged by recent indications of a change of sentiment in Europe towards silver, and I have strong hopes that if another conference shall be held practical results may be obtained. I would rejoice to see the silver question eliminated from the presidential campaign."
