TEACH your boys that they should hold a woman as sacred; society in its purity, a blessing; what they owe to themselves and the sex, and here will be much less license in communities.

NONE but those of dwarfish natures resort to invective when conducting a newspaper. Vulgarly and low order of intellect go together and the proper sphere for billingsgate is not the columns of the press.

It is rumored that the manager and editor of the Independent is conscience stricken over the charges made by the populist organ. It is also claimed that there is but one honest man in the entire county and that is the virtuous editor of the above mentioned populist sheet.

GO WHERE you will, observe what you may, and you will return to Washington county, with its fine farms, productive orchards and advanced system of educational facilities, fully convinced that for a place to raise a family creditable to yourself this country cannot be excelled.

IN THESE days of contraction of our volume of currency, those who are fighting a further coinage of silver, seem to forget that the centralization of gold to the coffers of the wealthy retires a great part of our currency, thus making the per capita really a lower average. Any person who thinks of these things will see that this contraction will steadily progress, and that the further coinage of silver must obtain a remedy this evil. It is a question of quantity, much more than a matter of quality. The democratic party cannot afford to divide on his momentous question.

MEMBERS of the g. o. p. are laying much "unction to their soul" because democrats differ on their ideas as to the further coinage of silver, and they are laying much stress on the supposed fight. Completely ignoring the difference of opinion in their own party ranks, and in order to hoodwink their free silver men back to the fold, they picture in glowing colors the anarchy of the democrats. There will be a time when they will remember what they now should know; that democrats fight before convention, but never after. And the party will give silver its rights, which the g. o. p. has taken away.

THERE is much truth in a recent article from the pen of H. B. Luce, of this city, which appeared in the columns of the Oregonian. In this article he deprecates the vice which "mild-mannered" envelopes our social world. His utterances are confined to the relations of the sexes, and he writes to ask what should be done. There is but one answer. This is education; not the simple raising of man's intellectual parts, but education of the sexes as to that is due themselves and their fellow creatures. Between parents and children there is often too much so-called "modesty" and it is brought to ruin and shame many lives. It is the duty of every parent to teach a child at the proper age that a woman is one of the Creator's noblest works; that a good woman is entitled to reverence, care, and consideration at any and all times. The man who looks at a woman with these thoughts in mind is a safe adjunct to society. Another great crime on our social system, is the utter disregard of others to take daughters-in-law into confidence at the proper time. Youth and indiscretion go hand in hand, yet there is no age at which persons are more impressionable than when in early life. Ninety per cent of our social misfortunes are caused by parental laxity in these matters, and this is what creates Durants and Wildes. Mr. Luce doubtless is aware of it.

THE present era of journalism in its great educational march, is doing more for the nation than other influence. The press is a great educator. Once an idea gets space, it becomes familiar with thousands of readers, and undergoes the fire of criticism, or receives the support of such as see merit therein. The idea, however, that newspapers mould public sentiment is erroneous, as it simply expresses that which it believes to be the opinion of the class it represents.

REPUBLICANS never weary of asserting that the democrats favor free trade. This simply shows that the majority of them know not of what they are talking. In striking contrast to these assertions, the fact prominently stands in bare relief that the democratic party never advocated anything but an opposition to a tariff for protective purposes. But they were in favor of a revenue tariff, and that only.

HILLSBORO is the hub of Washington county. So say statistics made by sworn officials. In point of population and business it will always lead, and as for matters of health it stands foremost. There is one thing lacking yet to complete our sanitary requirements, and that is a sewerage system.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 11, 1895.

If President Cleveland and Secretary Gresham needed vindication for the position they took in the dispute between Great Britain and Nicaragua, the outcome of that affair would furnish a full supply, showing as it does that the administration was thoroughly alive to American interests. To say that the Monroe doctrine was at any time involved in the affair is simply to display ignorance of the Monroe doctrine. But the treaty between the United States and Great Britain, known as the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, was the foundation upon which the administration stood when it consented to the temporary occupation of Corinto by the British. That treaty says: "Neither the United States nor Great Britain will ever erect or maintain any fortifications commanding the ship canal, or in the vicinity thereof, or occupy or fortify or colonize or assume or exercise any dominion over Nicaragua, Costa Rica, the mosquito coast or any part of Central America." In the face of that explicit language how silly appears all the wild talk about the intention of Great Britain to gobble up as much of Nicaragua as would give her control of the canal. It just shows, however, how lamentably ignorant many of those who write about public affairs are. But viciousness has been responsible for more of misrepresentation in this case than ignorance has.

Civil Service Commissioner Lyman, whose rumored forced resignation has been a sort of bi-monthly or bi-quarterly publication, appearing with sufficient regularity to entitle it to claim second class postal rates, ever since that Congressional committee made charges against him, several years ago, by the Washington Post, of favoritism towards a relative in office, is really going this time. His resignation, which it is needless to say was not voluntarily tendered, is now in the hands of the President, and it is expected that his successor will be named at the same time that the vacancy caused by the resignation of Theodore Roosevelt is filled. Both Roosevelt and Lyman are republicans, but it is the president's intention to appoint a democrat in place of one of them, which will make the commission consist of two democrats and one republican, instead of two republicans and one democrat, as it has been during this entire administration.

Senator Gorman doesn't often allow his opinions to be quoted in a newspaper, but he has this time of the personal attack lately made upon him by the Hon. Isador Rayner, an aspirant for the Maryland democratic gubernatorial nomination. I regret to be compelled to say that I regard Mr. Rayner's speech as that of an over-anxious candidate, who has forgotten his protestations of friendship and what he has always claimed to be his undying gratitude for my friendship for him during the past twenty years. Why he has made the personal assault upon me, I am at a loss to comprehend, unless it be that his earnest pleading with me to support him for the nomination failed to receive a favorable response. He ought, however, to have been satisfied with my assurance to him, that I believed the best interest of the party required that the nomination should seek the man, and not the man the nomination.

Secretary Gresham is not sick enough to justify the sensational reports sent out from Washington, although he is confined to his room and is likely to be for four or five days more. It is the same old trouble—stomach and liver—that laid him up a few weeks ago, and the cause is also the same—overwork and failure to take proper care of himself. He is in no danger and only requires rest to bring him around again. Attorney General Olney has decided that the construction put upon the law governing the purchase of seeds by the agricultural department by Secretary Morton was correct; consequently, instead of spending the $100,000 appropriated, Secretary Morton will only buy such seeds as are "rare and uncommon," unless congress makes a new law compelling the expenditure of all the money.

Ex-Senator Blair, of New Hampshire, evidently is not a Reed man. He says: "New England is apparently for Reed, but the feeling is not of the kind that would make men die in the last ditch fighting for Reed. Some of his brethren may be for him, thinking that a New England man, not Reed, however, might get second place on the ticket. And yet it might happen that Reed himself would finally be satisfied with second honors. Then it must be remembered that in his own state Hale and Frye and the other old-time Blaine men are not brimming over with joy at Tom Reed's present political prominence. They are for him, but largely because they have to be, and the draught is just about as pleasant as a dose of medicine is to a small boy."

The arguments before the Supreme Court for a rehearing in the income tax cases have been opened.

CORNELIUS.

Lewis and Lupien were doing business in Portland last Wednesday.

E. U. McNutt made a trip to Vernonia this week.

A new lively stable will be put up in Cornelius in the near future. C. W. Hendricks. We understand that it will be occupied by Tibbitts & Running.

A young lady by the name of Guske, who is working at the home of O. Wickbrodt, near Cornelius, is quite sick at this writing.

Quite a number from Cornelius attended the game of base ball at North Yamhill last Sunday. The score stood 17 to 10 in favor of Yamhill.

J. R. Miller went to Portland Tuesday on business.

Grandma Neep is still very low.

Wm Neep, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, arrived here last week to visit his mother.

Chas Hancock is limping around with rheumatism.

The Southern Pacific surveyors are here in Cornelius surveying side tracks for the tie preserving works which will be here in a few days.

The city is having the street graded in front of the blacksmith shop.

The public school closed Monday noon May 13, 1895.

A Business Opportunity.

Business is starting again but at low figures, as is always the case, after such a panic as we are just emerging from. I have a large prairie farm in Union county, of 960 acres, with good house of 6 rooms, a good barn, 400 acres in cultivation, and watered by Catherine Creek. This land lays in the immediate vicinity of the famous Nodine Ranch which consists of 4000 acres of the finest land in the country. The 960 acres have been held at $14,400, but can be had now for $10,560, and $4800 can rest on the farm for from 3 to 5 years at 8 per cent interest. Owner will take $5000 in farm land in this county. A party who knows the land around Hot Lake says that it cannot be surpassed in the world, and only $11 per acre. Tract can be divided in two pieces and either traded or sold.
