French Confident of Ability to Continue the Drive in the West If Good Weather Conditions Prevail

Paris, Oct. 1.—France intends to continue her offensive against the western front if the weather is good. The French believe that the offensive will result in a victory and that the war will end in the next few months.

The Allied offensive will be continued in the west if good weather prevails. The French are confident of success and are planning to launch a major attack against the German lines. The offensive will include a strong infantry thrust and air support.

French officials have announced that the offensive will be launched in the next few days. The French army is well prepared and is confident of success.

The war in the west is entering a new phase as the French prepare to launch their offensive. The outcome of this offensive will be critical in determining the outcome of the war.

[END OF ARTICLE]