Fijian Cannibals.
Fijian cannibals worship Matawaloo, a god with eight stomachs, who is believed to be always eating.

Reindeer.
The reindeer has been known to pull 200 pounds at ten miles an hour for twelve hours.

Eyes of Eels.
Eels have been provided by nature with an apparatus to protect their eyes which is like a pair of spectacles.

Odd, to Say the Least.
Hick—This match won't light.
Hike—That's funny. It lit all right a minute ago.—Michigan Gargoyle.

On the Contrary.
"Street musicians lead a lazy life."
"Not so. It is one long daily grind."
—Baltimore American.

Wife's Weaknesses.
"Is your wife outspoken?"
"She's usually out, and when she's out she's usually speaking."

Take Your Choice.
The optimist doesn't have to die but once, but the pessimist is buried alive every day.—Exchange.

The Going Guest.
"Welcome the coming, speed the going guest," is the correct quotation.
"Parting guest" is wrong.

Potato Eaters.
The Belgians are looked upon as the greatest potato eaters in the world, and the Irish come second.

Genius.
Genius at first is little more than a great capacity for receiving discipline.—George Eliot.

Saturn.
Saturn's largest moon is 2,002 miles in diameter, slightly smaller than our own.

Mosquitoes in Bagdad.
A round the world electrical engineer tells this story:
"We ran up to Bagdad to put over a little deal with the pasha, a former government official who had been prominent in the days of Abdul Hamid. His palace was infested with mosquitoes, and we had to plan to give him relief.
"He lived in the usual Moorish house, with high walls, flat roof with parapets, few windows and open court. The old pasha looked exactly as if he had just stepped out of a Broadway musical comedy with his shining silk robes, turban and red shoes with up-turned toes.
"In the palace garden was a stream with a fall of about ten feet. It would develop about one-fourth horsepower. We built a water mill, equipped it with a dynamo, wired the palace and started up some gigantic electric fans. These fans cooled the air and also blew through the rooms a narcotic sufficiently powerful to cause the mosquitoes to fall in a coma. All that remained was for the servants to go around and sweep them up in piles to be destroyed."—G. T. Hadley in World Outlook.

Her Little Mistake.
Desirous of buying a camera, a certain fair young lady inspected the stock of a local shopkeeper.
"Is this a good one?" she asked as she picked up a dainty little machine.
"That's the Belvedere," said the handsome young shopman politely.
There was a chilly silence. Then the young lady drew herself cooly erect, fixed him with an icy stare and asked again:
"Er—and can you recommend the Belva?"—London Answers.

Sulphuric Acid Burns.
Burns from sulphuric acid are easily cured. Just remember that plain water—lots of it—must be poured on the victim of a sulphuric acid accident at once, even to throwing the party into the water if possible. This acid on the skin feels like fire. With water quickly applied in great quantity this acid is rendered harmless. Men have been burned with it repeatedly with out harm through a knowledge of this proper antidote. If not treated promptly the most horrible disfigurements result. The police department of Paris exhibits wax figures of faces of victims of the foreign practice of throwing this acid in one's face. A prompt treatment of water would have rendered the acid harmless.

Floating a Loan.
"I want to see if I can't borrow a little money from the Brokers and Stokers' bank."
"Well?"
"What sort of man is the president of it? Is he one of those fellows who are impressed by a rusty suit, or does he think a man is a good risk who affects loud vests and gay spats?"
—Pittsburgh Post.

Mining blanks, Courier office.

Planting Nuts.
In planting walnuts, hickory nuts or acorns the nuts should be kept moist from the time they are gathered until they germinate. If they are allowed to dry out their vitality is destroyed, says a writer in the Farm and Home.
A good way to handle nuts intended for planting is to stratify them. This is done by alternately placing a layer of moist sand and a layer of nuts in a box, being careful that the nuts do not touch one another. The box can be kept in the cellar or buried in the ground, as preferred. The following spring the nuts should be planted in the nursery row or where the trees are to stand.

Salt and Fresh Water Fish.
When a crawfish or a frog is put into salt water it dies. When a jelly fish is put into fresh water it, too, dies. This is due to a familiar quality of liquids known as osmosis. A fresh water creature is full of liquid of a lower specific gravity than the salt water; consequently when placed in salt water this draws the interior liquids out and leaves the creature shriveled. On the contrary, when the salt water creature—jellyfish, for instance—is placed in fresh water the salty liquids in its tissues draw the fresh water to them, and the creature swells until it is suffocated.—New York World.

Brazil's Big Meteorite.
After lying in a bed of rust for many years the largest meteorite in any museum was finally landed in Rio de Janeiro by Dr. Orville Derby. It is more than seven feet long, almost five feet in width, and its weight when it fell was about 12,000 pounds. It was first discovered in 1784, and the following year an attempt was made to convey it to the town of Bahia by means of a truck built for the purpose. It took the men three days to load it, and eight oxen dragged it a distance of 1,500 feet to the bed of a stream near by, where they had to abandon it. There it lay for about twenty-five years, when Mr. Moruay, an Englishman, came upon it.

Money Drops Are Delicious.
Pour two tablespoonfuls of strained honey into a cupful of boiling water and add two cupfuls of sugar and two tablespoonfuls of butter. Boil slowly until sirup dropping from a fork taken out of the hot liquid leaves a fine thread behind it. Pour the boiling sirup over the whites of two eggs that have been beaten to a stiff froth and add a teaspoonful of almond extract. Now beat until it is cold and just as stiff as you can handle and drop in spoonfuls on a buttered pan or a sheet of paraffin paper. A nut meat pressed into the top of each drop makes the candy even nicer.—Delinicator.

Official Precedence in France.
The wives of outgoing French ministers suffer a loss of dignity through their husbands' departure from office, for they must conform to the rules of precedence carefully defined by the protocol. It is enacted that the wives of senators and deputies must rise if the wife of a cabinet minister enters a room where they are seated, and they must remain standing until madame in minidress finds a seat. Ministers' wives show similar deference to the premier's wife, who in her turn must rise to salute the wife of the president of the chamber or of the president of the senate. The last named ranks in the official hierarchy next to the hostess of the Elysee.—London Chronicle.

The Soprano Yielded.
Mme. Rose was the leading soprano of Bastia's opera troupe. One night being indisposed, with a queeny air, she sought the manager and said she could not sing.
"Vy, my dear Mad-dam Rose, eet ees impossible. You are se leading soprano of ze troupe, n'est ce pas, and ve cannot get along without ze leading lady."
Rose shook her head. "Well, it's no use. I am sick and I cannot sing, positively."
"Ah, no, mad-dam, zat ees true. You cannot sing positively." Then with a charming nod he added, "but you can sing superlatively."
She sang.

The King is Dead, Long Live the King.
A member of Louis XIV's France says his death was announced by the captain of the bodyguard from a window of the state apartment and that, "raising his staff of office above his head, he broke it in the center and throwing the pieces among the crowd, exclaimed in a loud voice, 'Le roi est mort'." "The King is dead!" Then seizing another staff he flourished it in the air, shouting, 'Vive le roi'! ('Long live the king!') The phrase was used in announcing the death of other French kings and for the last time at the death of Louis XVIII. It is often quoted to signify the quickness with which official authority and popular admiration are transferred from a dead ruler to a living one.
