REMARKABLE FEAT BY FRENCH AVIATOR

Paris, July 24.—A French aviator, Antoine Marchal, who started from Nancy on an aeroplane trip to Russia via Berlin, failed in his aerial race by a bare sixty miles, according to word here today. He was captured by the Germans at Cholm, in Poland, after having dropped proclamations on Berlin.

Nancy lies on the French Alsace-Lorraine frontier. Cholm is in Russian Poland, 50 miles north of the Austrian frontier. Marchal must have flown nearly 1,200 miles to have covered the distance between these two points, including Berlin in between. This in itself is a remarkable exploit, but even more astonishing was his feat of flying over Berlin, dropping proclamations on the city and making good his escape. Had Marchal been able to fly 50 miles farther beyond Cholm, he would have landed behind the Russian lines.

MILITIAMEN EXCHANGE SHOTS WITH SNIPERS

El Paso, July 24.—Determined to stop sniping before it costs the life of a militiaman, military authorities were investigating today the exchange of shots between a patrol of the 9th Massachusetts and Mexican snipers east of El Paso last night. Juarez officials are co-operating.

The first national guardsman to die in El Paso since militia contingents were concentrated here was Private Edward Martin, Second Michigan Infantry. Pneumonia caused his death yesterday.

Gold Hill Defeated—

Hopelessly outclassed, the Gold Hill team went down to defeat yesterday before the locals with the score 11-2. Except in the first inning the visitors were unable to fathom Pernoll's curves, but they managed to get one run in this inning. After this a row of goose eggs were stretched along until the eighth, when they got their second and last run. Prullit pitched for the Gold Hill team, but began to weaken after the first few innings and was hit hard. Pernoll was the hardest hitter of the game, getting a three-bagger, a double and a single. The Grants Pass team will play at Medford next Sunday, and if comparisons prove anything, Medford will have a hard time winning. The Klamath team yesterday defeated the Bear creek town 6-0.

HOOSIER POET DIED SATURDAY

Indianapolis, July 24.—Indiana bowed today before the bier of a simple man who, without pretense or schooling, became its first citizen.

James Whitcomb Riley, interpreter for hoosierdom's most intimate emotions, lay dead in his Lockerbe street home.

Hoosiers generally were inclined to accept as their own the tribute telegraphed by Vice-President Marshall:

"To live for humanity so that each succeeding age will be happier is to attain immortality. This is the record of James Whitcomb Riley."

The body of the poet, who died at his home late Saturday night, will lie in state in the rotunda of the state capitol from 3 p. m. to 9 p. m. today.

The hoosier poet died at 10:50 o'clock Saturday night, soon after he had passed into a peaceful sleep. Death was due to paralysis. At 7:30 a. m. Saturday he suffered a stroke, but apparently had recovered from this. He suffered a violent attack of paralysis in 1910 and his entire right side was completely disabled.

Riley was born October 8, 1849, dying in his sixty-seventh year. The exact date of his birth was not generally known until after his death, because the poet, for some unknown reason, was sensitive on the matter.

Hardly had word of Riley's death been received before Indianapolis and Greenfield, his birthplace on the Brandywine, began a rivalry for the body. There is a vacant place in the Riley plot at Park cemetery at Greenfield and Greenfield claims that Riley wished to be buried there, where he wrote: "God Is His Own Interpreter" and "He Will Make Plain."

But Indianapolis asserts that public reasons favor his burial here. The board of directors of a large cemetery probably will vote today to offer on behalf of the city one of the most beautiful sites for the Riley grave.

Miss Iida Boehmer arrived this morning from Madison, Wis., for a brief visit with her cousin, Mrs. E. G. Harris.

In connection with his decision, the president today discussed rivers and harbors legislation with Chairman Sparkman of the house committee. The president indicated his belief that such appropriations can be so systematized as to eliminate pork.

GERMAN CROWN PRINCE TAKES FLIGHT IN THE AIR
