OREGON WEATHER

Sunday fair, warmer except near the coast; westerly winds.

DAY OF JUBILEE DUE.

Where the sugar industry has become best established and its benefits realized there is greatest rejoicing when a new factory makes possible a greater acreage of beets.

The Grants Pass district will soon be in a position for the celebration of the starting up of the first sugar factory in western Oregon.

When the slicing of beets and the crystallizing of the saccharine is commenced a new era in agriculture will have been marked.

Surely Grants Pass and the Rogue valley have a day of rejoicing and of celebration coming.

You could not find a better testimonial to the excellence of the angling sport of the Rogue than that supplied by the British diplomat who has tried it out and pronounced it the best on the globe.

A local follower of the fortunes of democracy the other day waved his hat in the air and shouted his joy at the announcement that Thomas Edison was going to support Woodrow Wilson.

New York—Miss Pauline Cann, a Barnard college graduate, typed her own marriage contract as it was dictated by her fiancée, and they hummed "Lohengrin" as they took the subway to the city hall.

New York—The first person to greet James A. Waddell, "King of Strikebreakers," when he stepped off his special train from Chicago was a process server.

BATHHOUSE CLOSED FOR THE SEASON

Owing to the continued cool weather, the water has become too cold for enjoyable bathing, so the bathhouse will not be open again this season.

ROGUE FISHING

"small ones" of from 3 to 3 1/2 pounds. He fished Friday on the riffles about eight miles below town, and was in the water only from 11:30 to 4:30, and took half an hour out of that for lunch.

So fascinating is the angling in the Rogue to Mr. MacNeill that he will return next year, and has practically concluded negotiations for the purchase of property having a frontage upon the Rogue as a site for a fishing lodge where he would spend his summers with his family and friends.
