

This is the Stove Polish YOU Should Use

It's different from others because more care is taken in the making and the materials used are of higher grade.

Black Silk Stove Polish

Makes a brilliant, silky polish that does not rub off or dust off, and the shine lasts four times as long as ordinary stove polish. Used on simple stoves and sold by hardware and grocery dealers.

All we ask is that you use your own stove, your own stove, your own stove. If you don't find it in the store, write for our money order. Insist on Black Silk Stove Polish. Made in liquid or paste—your quality.

BASEBALL IN FRANCE; SO M'GRAW PREDICTS

"Had it not been for the outbreak of the war," said John M'Graw recently, "I believe the French people would have taken up baseball very strongly. The citizens in Paris were quite enthusiastic when we visited that city on the trip around the world, and we would have drawn an immense throng but for a cold, heavy rain which fell all that day."

"It would not be surprising to me to see France adopt the game at the close of the hostilities, as they are great natural sportsmen. Look at the manner in which they took to boxing and the short time in which they produced good fighters of their own."

CAREER OF CHICK EVANS:

Double Golf Champion Has a Wonderful Record.

Chick Evans began his career on the links in 1907, when he captured the western junior and interscholastic titles.

In 1908 and 1909 he again won the interscholastic and also the Chicago title and the junior in 1909 and 1910. In 1909 he also won the western amateur title and got as far as the semifinal round in the amateur championship at Wheaton, only to be eliminated by H. Chandler Egan by 1 up.

In 1910 Mason Phelps beat him in the final round of the western amateur at Minikahda. In the open, which was held at the Beverly Country club, he won the tournament. He reached the semifinal round of the amateur at Brookline and was defeated by W. C. Fowner, Jr., of Oakland by 1 up.

In 1911, at Apawamis, Evans got as far as the semifinal round, where Fred Herreshoff disposed of him, only to be eliminated in turn by Harold H. Hilton, the English visitor. He got as far as the final round in the amateur at the Chicago Golf club in 1912, when Travers beat him by 7 up and 6 to play.

He won the medal in the western amateur at Homewood in 1913 with a score of 151 for thirty-six holes. John G. Anderson, then from Brae Burn, eliminated Evans in the second round of the national amateur at Garden City by 2 up and 1 to play.

In 1914 he was beaten in the first round of the amateur tournament at Elwanok by Eben M. Byers. In the west, however, he had better luck, defeating James D. Standish, Jr., of Detroit by 11 and 9 in the decisive round of the sectional tournament at the Kent Country club, where he also captured the medal in the qualifying round with a score of 147. He repeated the following year in the western amateur at Mayfield, where he again beat Standish, this time by 7 and 6.

He was just a stroke behind Walter Hagen of Rochester in the national open tournament at Midlothian last year. In the amateur at Detroit D. E. Sawyer beat him by 6 up and 5 to play in the first round. About three months ago Evans outstripped a field containing the cream of the professionals in the national open championship tournament at Minikahda, returning a 72 hole score of 296. Later he won the amateur championship at Merion.

German Writer Tells of Week's Visit to Air Giants.

ISSUES WARNING TO FOES

First Description of the Home of the Big Air Craft—Has Been Carefully Guarded Since Outbreak of War. Have a Confidence Inspiring Number, Fendrich Asserts.

Anton Fendrich, who is about to publish a book on the war, is giving to the German public its first real view of the German air fleet, which he visited "among the sand dunes." Here is his story in part:

"Somewhere amid the white sand dunes and the salt meadow weeds dwell the mariners of the air who have brought some notion to Albin that it no longer is an island. I was taken to a group of buildings, dark stretch halls, although against the sunset clouds in great lines of modern steel construction.

"How many? I hear the question asked. Quite a confidence inspiring number.

"The commanders were sitting at a flower decked horseshoe supper table—not all of them, for some were under way. From the wall smelt the Svanian Count Zeppelin, without whose decade of struggling all this would never have been.

"These men were mostly between thirty and forty years and already had many a time participated in a wild hunt through searchlights and bursting shells, and though they lived among these peaceful meadows, the same keen look of the huntsman which one finds at the front was stamped on their faces.

"It was midnight as we approached the dark structure with brightly illuminated windows, which, at first broad and red, soon shrank to narrow shining slits as the whole ball turned on its axis in order to bring the airship into line with the wind.

"Hurricanes From Propellers.

"The turning of a single screw on the other yellow body of the air cruiser filled the giant hall with the roaring and howling of a hurricane.

"In front of the almost unbelievably thin steel rods to which were affixed the screw propellers were high wooden platforms on which mechanics covered and watched the whirling propellers. These wooden propellers, each as tall as a man, soon became visible again, turned awkwardly a few times, then stopped. A mechanic adjusted a few screws, hammered a few bolts, and then the slender thin wooden blades again roared. The mechanic notes the faults first always with the ear only, but afterward discovers them with the eye.

"Now they had caught the right tone. The ship is clear for sailing," the engineer reported to the commander.

"But outside waited the night wind. One knew it well from past experience. Therefore a hundred hard seamen's flats grabbed it outside to prevent capsizing.

The Air Giant Is Off.

"A shrill whistle, and all the screws began their storm song. A few men of the landing battalion shook themselves like wet dogs. They had got on their heads a spout of the water with which the air cruiser lightens itself. Lightly the slender colossus floated upward and it seemed swallowed up by the night, a dark shadow against the Great Dipper.

"We flew. The deafening noise making conversation impossible, I at first noticed nothing. The commandant showed me the manipulation of the steering gear for elevation and direction and all the other technical equipment.

"We flew over wood and meadow, and over airship halls and barracks and the canopy of green was soon lost to sight.

"Through a small horizontal transparent pane, built like an alcove in the glass wall of the commandant's gondola, your eyes can see straight downward into the depths below.

"During the week I was with the air cruiser in which one of the commandants had in five days spent eighty-eight hours in the air and had slept only twenty-four in his bed.

"Another officer, commanding one of the older ships with open gondolas, returned so frozen that it was necessary first to knock off with sticks the ice from the fur clothes of him and his men before they could undress.

"But, in my mind, I took off my hat most of all to the one whose first words as he leaned out of his gondola were:

"I haven't been able to get rid of my eggs!" He meant the bombs with which his Zeppelin was provided.

"He had orders to attack an iron foundry. From afar he saw it gleaming below, but the increasing stormy west wind prevented him from getting over it. The home journey led him over many a town and village of the land which seeks to starve out German women and children, but he flew over them with all his bombs.

"Down on the water front every where stand new and gigantic airship

REPORT FINDING NO SURVIVORS

Newport, R. I., Oct. 10.—Although Admiral Gleaves received a radio from the Conyngham that two of the missing crew of the Kingston had been picked up off Nantucket lightship late yesterday, they had not been landed here at an early hour today.

A radio dispatch to Admiral Gleaves yesterday stated that the Conyngham had picked up two survivors, but the admiral said today that there had been error in transmission, and that so far as he knew no survivors of the British ship had been found.

Naval officers united today in expressing the opinion voiced by Admiral Gleaves that only one German U-boat is responsible for the six merchant ships.

Yesterday no word of the German raider reached here. The American destroyers which returned late last night reported no signs of her or of her activities.

A recall order sent out late last night by Admiral Gleaves called all but one of the destroyers back from Nantucket and they began arriving here just before daylight. The possibility that the search for the Kingston's crew would be renewed from here today depended largely, naval officers said, on weather conditions. No official information as to today's movements of the destroyers was given out.

A report that 19 Chinese, members of the crew of the Strathdene, were being brought here, proved to be without foundation today.

The presence of an unusual number of Chinese sailors along the water front accounted for the rumor.
