10,000 PEOPLE GREET W. J. BRYAN

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 28.—Ten thousand persons pushed and jammed themselves into the state arsenal today to hear Wm. J. Bryan deliver the doctrine of democracy to central Illinois.

Bryan's speech, which was the culmination of the Wilson day observance in Springfield, aroused the assembled thousands to frenzied enthusiasm.

In the midst of these spasms of democratic enthusiasm, a yellow cur, lying near the platform, aroused by the cheering, again started the dimming cheering and it was five minutes before Bryan could resume.

The meeting was attended by several thousand women, who upon the slightest provocation rose in their seats and waved American flags.

Bryan's interpretation of the president's refusal to intervene in Mexico brought forth the greatest outburst of cheering of the meeting. Bryan received a remarkable ovation from the thousands who lined the streets between the depot and the state arsenal.

WHEAT IS SOME BATTER.

Brooklyn Nationals' Left Gardener Going Like a House Afire.

When Willie Keeler was in his prime he was asked the secret of his success in placing hits, and Wee Willie responded, "I hit 'em where they ain't." Zack Wheat, the great left fielder of the Brooklyn Nationals, goes Willie one better by saying, "I hit 'em where they never were."

Wheat has a good chance of creating a new record before the season comes to a close and may top the column as premier batsman of the National league.

Zack was always a dangerous man at the plate, but never before has he been hitting so consistently as he is right now. Ever since the team started on its last trip around the circuit he has been meeting the ball on the nose with terrific force, and about a dozen times he has been robbed of home runs by circus catches on the part of the outfielders.

Wheat is not a place hitter like Daubert, his side partner, and he is never known to bunt. When he takes a swing at the ball he means to kill it.

A lot of things can be said about the different players that have kept the Dodgers in the lead all season, but one thing is certain, and that is but for Wheat's heavy bombardment of the opposing pitchers the Dodgers would not be occupying the position in the race for the banner they now enjoy. There is no more popular player on Robble's staff than the easy going, quiet, hardworking lad who guards the left garden for Uncle Wilbur.

Problem of the Electric Eel.

Invention during the next two or three centuries will probably be in the direction of painting the wonderful economy and the simple, direct methods of nature. Take the electric eel. Its electric organ is in no sense a storage battery, but a contrivance by which electric energy is liberated at the moment when it is required. At rest the organ shows so small an electromotive force that a good galvanometer is required to detect it, but a sudden nervous impulse from the eel's spinal cord raises a potential of many volts with very little heat and so small an expenditure of matter as to defy the most expert chemist to weigh it.

Waterspouts.

A waterspout is constantly spinning. The moment it ceases it collapses. At the distance of about a quarter of a mile above the sea level its spinning speed has been estimated at six miles a minute.
