FOOD CAMPAIGN HAS BROUGHT RESULTS

Salem, June 1.—District Agricultural Agent Cooter, who is working under the direction of the extension service of the Oregon Agricultural college, is authority for the statement today that the food preparedness campaign has greatly increased the acreage of tilled land, judging from preliminary figures he has secured. The following figures on acreage, while applying only to Marion county, show in general the increase throughout the entire Willamette valley:
Spring wheat, 16 per cent above normal; oats, 6 per cent above normal; corn, 56 per cent above normal; potatoes, 73 per cent above normal; hay, garden crops, over 100 per cent above normal.
His figures show a decrease of 13 per cent in fall wheat acreage and a large decrease in hops. A large decrease is also shown in the number of sheep, brood sows and poultry on the farms.

Meteorites.
Specimens of meteorites common such a value that those which fall to the earth are generally hoarded up in innumerable parts and scattered in all directions among the private collections. Thus one of the earliest known meteorites, that found in Ensisheim, Upper Alsace, in 1792, is represented in sixty-six collections. The result of this practice is that exorbitant prices are asked by dealers for meteoric material in amounts sufficient for analysis and study.
