lean months ahead; to save wheat for France and England by eating more corn ourselves; because they do not bake at home and corn bread is almost unknown; these are some of the means of helping to save the waste and win the war.

"The women of America have never failed to answer such a call as comes to them now. The saving of food is within their sphere. Without food conservation we cannot win the war. The women who conserve the food supply of America and her allies render a high service to their country and to all humanity as well. In very truth, the outcome of the world war is in the hands of the women no less than in the hands of the men.

"Again I ask your co-operation. Let us work together in a whole hearted response to the patriotic duty to which we are called. Let us make it the purpose and the motto of every household in America to save the waste and win the war.

"Yours faithfully,
HERBERT HOOVER"

Mr. Hoover's letter speaks for itself. He does not over state the case. The women of America, of Oregon, of Josephine county so far as they are a part of the national whole, can do no greater patriotic service than the help to make the limited food supply go just as far as possible.

DRY SURPLUS FRUIT SIMPLE, EASY, SURE

Drying is a process within the reach of every American household. It is simple, easy and sure. It involves little or no expense and comparatively little time. A housekeeper may conduct drying operations and entertain her afternoon tea guests at the same time. All she need do is to make an occasional visit to her kitchen or her outdoor dryer to watch the temperature to which the food is exposed. In this way she may provide for the winter needs of her household without sacrificing present enjoyment.

There has never been a time when drying was as vital as this year. The war makes food thrift imperative. The production of foodstuffs will be unusually abundant because of the wide-spread planting of food gardens brought about by the campaign of the food garden commission. Not less than two million of these gardens are now thriving. Nature will yield more vegetables than the people can consume during the summer. To save the surplus is a national need. Because of the European situation this need becomes international as well.

Tin cans are scarce. This has forced a run on the glass jar supply, a run as urgent as one on a bank in time of panic. Glass jars have already advanced in price. This condition increases the importance of drying on a national scale. The only way to bring this about is for every household to do its share. Foodstuffs should be dried in every home and in a larger way in every community. Groups of families should form community drying clubs. By doing this they can buy highly efficient apparatus at slight individual cost.

Dried vegetables and fruits are as good as those which are fresh. The drying robs them of none of their flavor or food value. A big saving in the cost of living can be made by drying vegetables and fruits during the summer season, for the reason that the food products are obtained at the time of lowest cost and are ready for use at the time of winter's highest cost.

SPOKANE MERCHANTS FIGHT MAIL ORDERS

Spokane, Wash., June 19.—Culmination plans which have been under consideration for many weeks the retail trade bureau of Spokane, composed of the retailers of the city is today preparing to launch an extensive campaign against eastern mail order houses now doing business in the Inland Empire. The inroads upon home reading through the efforts of foreign mail order houses have been exceptionally conspicuous in the smaller towns in the Inland Empire and the movement to eradicate this evil and to stop this outward flow of money is expected to meet with general approval.
