Ladies First.

Paul's father had been trying to inculcate in his young son a sense of chivalry toward his little sister with the injunction, "Ladies first always, Paul."

The boy inwardly resented what seemed to him an injustice in this preference, but his opportunity to turn it to advantage came.

Toward evening one day their mother sent the children on an errand to the cellar. The door opening upon the dark abyssal region below had its usual effect upon small children. But the boy was reluctant to admit his fear. Turning to his sister and holding open the door he said suavely: "Ladies first, Louise."—Exchange.

Not the Answer Expected.

Closetman was reeling his way before definitely engaging the physician famous for his high charges.

"Pardon me, doctor," he said, "but do you—er—take off anything for cash?"

"Certainly," was the reply. "What would you like taken off—a hand or a foot?"—Boston Transcript.

White Flour.

Dr. Charles E. Banks, senior surgeon of the United States public health service, says that present methods of milling utilize only 75 per cent of the wheat, and this is almost exclusively the starchy part. The other 25 per cent, containing the phosphorus, mineral salts, vitamins, etc., is sold by the millers as feed for hogs and cattle. These grow fat on it, for they are getting the best part of the wheat.

Dr. Banks says the diet of white bread is responsible for Americans of today being pale and anaemic in youth and fat and flabby at forty, whereas their grandparents, who ate whole wheat bread, were strong and athletic.

Expert Work.

Mr. Push of Slacken & Push, suddenly entering his counting house the other day, found one of his clerks steadying a large book endwise on his chin.

"Why aren't you at work?" he growled.

"I am, sir," replied the clerk; "I'm balancing the ledger, sir."—London Telegraph.

AMERICAN DOCTORS AND NURSES ARE DAILY ATTENDING WOUNDED BEHIND FRENCH LINES

With the British Armies in the Field, July 1.—(By mail)—It is a sight for sore eyes to see the Stars and Stripes floating in the war zone of France and under it pretty American girls moving between rows of hospital tents decorating the landscape with their smiles.

Today I had tea at No. 11 base hospital. The old unit from Boston was giving a spread to the new girls, just arrived. And as Chicago No. 12, from Cook County hospital was in charge of No. 18 general, only a half mile down the road, the girls from Chicago were there too. Also one British general—a Sir—and any number of colonels, majors, captains and lieutenants.

Outside, over a sea of tents, the sun was shining. Inside the tents American girls moved silently to and fro watching over the wounded, while medical officers wearing the American uniform went from bed to bed.

In the middle of the field of canvas stood the marquee under which tea was being poured. Every nurse, off duty at the time, was on hand. Some stood back of the tea table. Others served at the punch bowl—a beautiful, claret-colored fruit punch, as harmless and as free from beguiling liquors as the spring water Moses smote from the rock. The rest made the guests welcome and brought them cakes and buttered bread and things. And smiled and laughed and talked real Chicago and Evansville and Boston talk, their blue uniforms and white headdress, adding to the general sunshine. Scraps of conversation mingled with the rattle of spoons in teacups.

"Cincinnati!" one pretty girl exclaimed as she smiled up at a British officer belted Sam Brown-wise. "Do you really know Cincinnati? Why I was born there! I went to Chicago to take up trained nursing at the Cook County."

"Sure I know Cincinnati," the officer smiled. "I'm a Canadian from the states. I was born in Georgia."

"Georgia!" the sister exclaimed. "What part?"

"Newman."

"Oh! There was disappointment in her voice. "I was hoping it would be Augusta. I know a lot of folks down that-a-way."

"That-a-way! Oh you American girl."

"So you are from Evansville!" another officer was saying to another nurse. "I've been to Evansville."

"Honest!" said the girl. "Didn't you like it there? I think Evansville is the prettiest place in the world!"

"Have another glass of punch," suggested a pretty sister with a tray as she stood in front of a small group of American youngsters wearing the uniform of a lieutenant.

"Don't care if I do," said the crowd, in chorus. "Thanks."

Then somebody said: "Reminds me of a real old Alabama church sociable, this does."

I turned to see who the speaker could be. It was an army reserve surgeon, ranking as captain, from Selma.

Nearly two girls were talking. "Why don't our officers wear Sam Brown belts like the British?" one of them wanted to know. "The English officers are ever so much more chic in their uniforms. Our men, with their standing collars on the tunics look like privates beside the British. Don't you think so?"

Three or four girls from the Chicago unit stood about one of the Harvard girls, in France since a year ago. They were eyeing her snowy, flowing headdress enviously. "Oh why can't we have coiffures like yours!" one of them moaned with mock tragedy in her voice. "Our little bits of white muslin with the tiny red crosses on them look so common besides yours. All the society ladies have adopted your kind. They are becoming to everybody."

"Just look at my uniform," a second girl exclaimed. "I just must send it to the cleaners to have that spot removed and of course out here in the country there isn't any cleaner."

"Yes there is," said the pretty girl addressed, "and it's just down the road. Go down that way (pointing) until you come to the bayonet practice, turn to the right and go on as far as the bombing school. Then you will see the sign right next to the boiling-oil engineer's laboratory."

"Oh, thank you so much!" said the girl with the spot.

And so the American girls went on talking.

As I left one of the older nurses said gravely:

"This doesn't look very warlike, does it? And if the folks at home could see us now they would probably say we were not paying attention to our jobs. But teas like this don't happen every day. We have saved up for a long time in order to have these delicacies today. When tonight comes, and tomorrow, and all the other tonights and tomorrows, we will be caring for wounded men, fresh from the battlefields. And it is hard work. Just as we have the phonograph play to keep the patients cheerful so do we try to take the sisters' mind off their work now and then."

Suddenly the nurse smiled and became gay again. "It's a regular little sociable, isn't it," she said.

The Derrick.

A derrick is an ingenious mechanical apparatus for lifting heavy weights, but it gets its name from an English haugman called Derrick, who flourished many years ago. The people of that time thought that the device used only in the haugman's trade resembled the more common mechanism which now bears his surname.

Crop Bound Fowls.

A hard and swollen condition of the crop is caused by an obstruction to the outlet from the crop or by gorging large quantities of grain, which swells and ferments. The fowl is droopy; it has a purplish color, and a sour smelling liquid runs from its mouth. Give castor oil or a large dose of olive oil; knead the crop with the fingers until it becomes soft under the effects of the oil and then hold the bird with its head downward and try to empty the contents of the crop.

Provides Shade For Chickens.

Do not neglect shade in the chicken yard during the hot, sunny days of summer. It is an act of simple humanity, but is also a source of net gain, since the flock thrives much better if it is so protected, and do not neglect to give fresh, cool water frequently.

Not Much of a Mansion.

Jenny was continually boasting of his "family mansion in the old country."

Pat, who came from the same place in Ireland, became very tired of it and, with withering scorn, exclaimed: "Yer family mansion is it, Jenny? Bedad, I could have rached down the chimney an' put the foier out wid me hand!"—Exchange.
