

RUSSIA'S PURE DEMOCRACY

ment. Its supporters and representatives dominate on the ministerial board. The ministers themselves are virtually responsible to it. It is a radical body. Its members would class as socialists in the United States.

This centralization of power in the people's hands through a people's assembly which will make shift to administer until Russia can call a constitutional convention and decide on the exact form of her government, was not achieved without bloodshed.

When the plain citizens of Russia assumed the power of that nation, Germany grew apprehensive. Never in all the voluminous pages of Germany's record of machination and intrigue will there be recorded such a story of propaganda as the kaiser and his ministers worked on Russia.

Pseudo-socialists cajoled and coaxed Russia's true liberals to make a separate peace; troops at the front fraternized under orders. Thousands of Germany's spies wormed their way into Russia and emboldened by the freedom of thought and of speech permitted in Russia even went so far as to make speeches in the public streets urging peace. Germany worked on spies returning to Russia to aid her intrigue. She had agitators stationed in Petrograd. She even sought assassination of officials who stood in her way. Millions of money must have been poured into this work.

And through it all, Russia survived. On July 1, General Brusiloff started a major offensive; with Minister of War Kerensky personally leading the ravaged troops of the new nation. They swept forward in Galicia tearing down the Austro-German lines. Germany was then thoroughly alarmed. She sent reinforcements to this front and she doubled her efforts to create disunion in Russia itself.

Out of all Russia's chaos there has apparently risen a savior of the democracy. He is A. F. Kerensky, barely in his thirties, with a frail physique and body racked with illness. He has been named the "Lloyd-George of Russia." In methods and in his dynamic energy he closely resembles England's man of the hour. He is a socialist; more than that of peasant birth. Every element in Russia knows his honesty of purpose and trusts him.

Dickens and Tennyson.

Comyns Carr in his "Eminent Victorians" states that he was struck at one of Dickens' readings by his resemblance to Tennyson. Afterward on seeing a pencil drawing which Millais made of Dickens after death he found the likeness to the poet still more marked, and on the sketch being shown to Tennyson, he, too, observed the resemblance. He gazed at it curiously for some minutes, then exclaimed: "Why, this is a most extraordinary drawing. It is exactly like myself."

Comply with the law and use printed Butter Wrappers

According to the ruling of the Oregon Dairy and Food Commission all dairy butter sold or exposed for sale in this state must be wrapped in butter paper upon which is printed the words "Oregon Dairy Butter, 16 (or 32) ounces full weight," with the name and address of the maker.

To enable patrons of the Courier to easily comply with the ruling this office will supply standard size and weight butter paper printed with special waterproof ink, and delivered by parcels post, at the following prices:

- 100 Sheets, 16 or 32 ounces $1.00
200 Sheets, 16 or 32 ounces 1.35
300 Sheets, 16 or 32 ounces 1.70
500 Sheets, 16 or 32 ounces 2.40
Extra charge for special designs.

Send orders by mail accompanied by the price as above and paper will be promptly forwarded to you by parcel post, prepaid.

We use the best butter paper obtainable, and our workmanship is of the best.

Scientific Farming

GREAT BUTTERMAKER.

Jersey That Produced over a Ton in Two Successive Lactations. Doroia Park Lily 233783 now shares with Sophie XIX, of Hood farm the distinction of having made two consecutive years' records of over 900 pounds of butter fat. Her first record was completed in 1915, when she attracted considerable attention by setting the mark for Class AA production, in addition to winning the gold medal for the best Jersey record made in that year.

The cow herewith pictured is Doroia Park Lily, a record making Jersey, with two consecutive records of over 900 pounds of butter fat.

PASTURE FOR CALVES.

Little Gained by Turning Youngsters Out Before Six Months Old. A calf four months old is a little too young to turn out to pasture unless it is possible to provide it with skim milk, says Hoard's Dairyman. We prefer to have a calf six months old, and seven months is better, before turning it out to grass. If it is possible to provide pasture near the barn where skim milk may be fed daily to the calf then we consider it a good practice to turn the four-month-old calf to pasture in the spring.

We prefer to keep calves born in the spring in the barn rather than out to pasture because of the hot weather and flies. A calf will not consume enough grass to provide ample nutrition for growth for the first four or five months. Further, we think it a good practice to feed a calf skim milk for six or seven months and longer if there is an abundance of it. The calf ought to do very well on a Jersey nurse cow, but we consider butter fat too expensive to feed to a calf.

We are inclined to believe that a calf will do fully as well on skim milk as on whole milk after it is four or five weeks old. At six or seven months of age it may not show as sleek and smooth a coat as when fed on whole milk, but when a year old we believe the skim milk calf will be fully as vigorous and growy as the one raised on whole milk. If calves five and six months old can be placed upon a good pasture supplemented with a little whole grain, like oats and corn, and some skim milk they will make very satisfactory growth.

We do not believe there is much if any danger of calves bloating by grazing upon peas and wheat. There is danger if they are permitted to graze upon clover or alfalfa. Care should be taken at all times to supply the calves with a liberal amount of water.

OATS FOR DAIRY COWS.

Excellent Feed For Milk Production When Combined With Grains.

Oats is an excellent feed for milk cows. Its price usually prohibits its extensive use in the dairy ration, however, says Hoard's Dairyman. It contains more protein than corn, barley or wheat; about the same fat content as corn and considerably more than barley or wheat, but it is a good bit lower in carbohydrates than the other three grains. Experimentally in a ration in which there was no protein deficit ground oats has been equal to wheat bran, and with a basal ration of 3.2 pounds bran and 10.1 pounds mixed hay 4.5 pounds oats were equal to the same weight of cornmeal.

Oats serve its best use in a dairy ration when combined with other concentrates; also heavy producing cows will pay in milk production for grinding or crushing oats. Cows giving small quantities of milk may not. The oats should be cleaned as thoroughly as possible of coal cinders. We would expect, however, that no ill effects from small amounts left in would be noticed.

Handy Garden Rack.

To have the tools within reach makes for economy of time in putting in odd moments in the garden. Tools have a way of scattering and hiding when wanted most. A tool rack as illustrated, placed in a handy place, keeps the tools together. Such a rack is merely a modification of a carpenter's sawhorse—holes bored through the top to hold the handles of tools and a board across the bottom for the handles to rest on.

RACK FOR TOOLS.

AIM AT EXCELLENCE.

Do not be content with mediocrity. Try to be something in this world and you surely will be something. Aim at excellence and excellence will be attained. This is the greatest secret of success and eminence. "I cannot do it" has never accomplished anything. "I will try" has wrought very many wonders.
