REBEKAHS ENTERTAIN ASSEMBLY PRESIDENT

Preceded by a picnic-banquet supper served in the I. O. O. F. hall Saturday night in honor of Mrs. Mary Lankester of Astoria, president of the Rebekah assembly of Oregon. A large membership of the local order were present to welcome their official guest after an hour spent around the prettily decorated tables and visiting. Mrs. Lankester was formally presented and escorted to the platform, when the special business of the meeting was taken up. The president is thoroughly familiar with the duties of her office and was ready and willing to answer all questions relative to the social and practical welfare of the order.

She spoke of the splendid work being done by the lodges of Oregon. The newly finished annex to the I. O. O. F. home in Portland, at the expenditure of several thousands of dollars, of the special work everywhere being done in the interest of the Red Cross. The sovereign grand master of Oregon has assessed the lodges for $2,000,000 as their "bit" to the Red Cross work.

Mrs. Jeannie Burke, Dr. A. A. Witham and E. E. Blanchard each gave short talks on the general welfare of the order. Mrs. Lankester has been in every part of the state and has visited officially 150 of the 200 assemblies in the Oregon jurisdiction. She will complete the list before returning home.

LOYAL LEGION NOW GROWING RAPIDLY

Portland, Jan. 21.—The Loyal Legion of Loggers and Lumbermen now has a membership of approximately 35,000, the bureau of military information of the spruce production division of the signal corps has just announced.

About 400 local organizations of the legion are distributed among the logging and lumber camps of the Pacific northwest.

A feature of the legion that has been taken advantage of by the members is the suggestion box, through which every member either individually or collectively as a local organization may appeal to Colonel Brice P. Disque, of the signal corps, for better conditions while giving their utmost energy in getting out spruce for the airplane industry.

Signal corps officers in the field have reported to Lieutenant M. E. Crampacker, at the head of the legion, that excellent cooperation between employer and employe have been obtained by the legion, of which both operator and workmen are members.

MANY ICE CAVES ARE FOUND AT KLAMATH

Klamath Falls, Jan. 21.—A number of new ice caves and strange geological formations have been reported discovered in the Lava Bed district 45 miles southeast of this city, recently by John D. Howard, George Howell and John Cox, who have spent some time investigating the natural wonders of that region. Twenty-eight caves have been visited in all, and the men are convinced that many more are still to be found. Many curious natural bridge formations have also been discovered, which are capable of holding tremendous weight.

Writings by the ancient Indians or the prehistoric races have been found. The characters are believed to be of an Oriental nature, and are not understood by any of the Indians now residing in this section. Some of the pictures found show ships with both sails and oars.

Mr. Hward, who has spent much time investigating the different cave regions of the United States, is greatly impressed with what has been discovered. He thinks that the roads in that locality should be improved so that the public would visit this district in larger numbers.

ENGLISH ACORNS FOR UNIVERSITY CAMPUS

University of Oregon, Eugene, Jan. 21.—Acorns from the oak tree in which King Charles II hid from the cromwellians after the battle of Worcester are to be planted next week on the university campus. They are the gift of Lieutenant-Colonel John Leader, commandant and professor of military science at Oregon, and Mrs. Leader.

The Boscobel oak, as it is known in English history, saved the Stuart dynasty. The king's pursuers, when they neared the tree, heard a noise which they thought might be his majesty in concealment, but just then an owl flew out and their suspicions were lulled. To this day certain English regiments bear oak instead of laurel on their crests to commemorate the incident.

The oak, which grows in the park of the Duke of Grafton, has outlived its span of centuries, for this last summer it was struck by lightning. All of the 100 acorns borne by the tree last summer were collected by Colonel and Mrs. Leader when they were visiting with the Graftons, relatives of Mrs. Leader, just before leaving for Oregon last fall.

Aside from being the last acorns to be borne by the historic tree, these are supposed to be the only ones ever brought to America. It is probable that they will be planted along either side of one of the many lanes running through the campus.

WHEN ONE IS STRICKEN DEAF

Affliction Accompanied by Depression Strangely and Intensely Overpowering, Says Writer.

The invariable depression that comes with the beginning of deafness is strangely and intensely overpowering. It exists sometimes indefinitely. The word depression, as commonly used, admits of varied shades of meaning, writes Margaret Baldwin, in the Atlantic. It all but carries with it a vague impression of lack of will-power, a more or less voluntary indifference to moral effect. But let no one suppose that its use here indicates any mere dull, dispirited outlook on life, or any other voluntary mental view of one's self or one's future. There is nothing voluntary about it.

It is a feeling deeply physical as well as mental—a mingled condition of woful sickness and sadness that beggars description. The distress and shock over what has happened to one and the first experience of what it is like, is the initial factor. But considering what it ought to be as compared with the shock of blindness, which, it seems to me, must be sufficient to produce permanent blackest despair, the depression of deafness is out of all proportion.

U. S. SENATOR STONE FLAYS REPUBLICANS

Washington, Jan. 21.—The greatest political debate in the senate since the United States went to war, burst out today, when Senator Stone, disregarding the advice of other administration captains, arraigned leaders of the republican party as playing politics.

Republican leaders, headed by Penrose, prepared to reply. Penrose said he believed it to be a public duty to criticize the government's inefficiency, and to have republicans restored to power, as a more efficient administration would thus be secured.

Miles of Sweatbands.

The sweatbands of the 127,492,872 hats and caps that were made in the United States in 1916—an average year—would make a single band two inches wide and 295,625,000 feet long, enough to go twice around the world, with enough left over to make a nice bow somewhere along the equator. The Scientific American is responsible for these figures and for the statement that in this tape there would be 44,000,000 square feet of leather; that the trimmings of the hides used in these hatbands amount to at least 11,000,000 square feet more. This leather would make the tops for 20,000,000 shoes. No wonder leather substitutes are now being used for hatbands.
