

JOB HAD NO SUCH WOES

Bells Were Not Like Getting Your Nose Caught in a Cogwheel Under an Auto.

Speaking at a dinner, William H. Thompson of Kansas referred to the beauty of patience and contributed an anecdote along that line.

Some time since Smith and his wife went out for a spin in their new automobile, but before they had gone many miles something went amiss with the machinery. Crawling beneath the car, Smith began to twist and turn things, and finally there came sundry words that sounded like breaking one of the blue laws.

"John, John!" expostulated the good woman in the car. "You should not use such dreadful language!"

"Of course I shouldn't, Mrs. Smith!" irritably responded hubby. "Of course I shouldn't! I suppose that if you were down under here you would sweetly sing!"

"You should have more patience," returned Mrs. Smith. "Why don't you try to be like Job?"

"Don't quote Job, madam!" shouted the old man. "Never in all his life did Job ever get his nose caught in a cogwheel!"—Philadelphia Evening Telegraph.

"His Majesty, Bunker Bean"

a Saturday Evening Post Story

A Paramount Picture

Was one of the most popular ever published in the Post. Deals with adventures of a young stenographer who believes in re-incarnation and until he is disillusioned, acts like the great king he believes himself to have been in a former life—marries daughter of his boss and makes thousands of dollars in Wall Street plunging.

There's an idea in this picture. An idea that got the money for Bunker. Perhaps you can make it pay. You'll have a wonderful night's entertainment anyway.

Good Way to Preserve Potatoes.

The natives of the Andes have a method of preserving potatoes, which consists of alternate freezing and thawing until all the moisture is removed. The resulting product is known as chuño, and it can be stored for months and even years, with fear of deterioration. Pressed into little bullet-shaped pieces, chuño is universally offered for sale in the market, and is one of the chief foods of the native population.

Bristol Long Famous Port.

Bristol is one of the ancient ports of England, and three or four hundred years ago it was second only to London. From the very outset it has been connected with trade on this side of the Atlantic, and, in fact, it was out of Bristol that John Cabot sailed in 1497 on the voyage that brought him to the coast of Nova Scotia and was, therefore, the first to reach the mainland of this continent.

To waste time in household drudgery is to deprive the country of the help that every woman owes it in these days of strife.

Each day work is being done in your home which electricity might do better, more economically and in less time.

Save those hours spent in useless drudgery by having electrical appliances for cooking, washing, ironing, sewing, cleaning.
