THE WAR SITUATION

Does the German high command still believe it can win a victorious decision in the west?...

If the Germans still believe that they can score a decisive victory, it would not be logical for them to apply their main efforts in the direction of Paris. The capture of Paris would not end the war. It is more likely that they would attempt to destroy the British force in the north and capture the channel ports. This would enable them to use the English channel for their submarines and force the English to transport troops and supplies to the western coast of France...

the German influence in Russia from the Baltic to the Black sea. This will prove as difficult as the fighting in France will be severe.

It would seem that the time has come to declare war upon the Bolsheviks. The Bolshevik authorities have been assisting Germany to gain control of banks and trading corporations in Russia, and apparently in an underhanded way are cooperating with the German army to prostrate Russia under the Kaiser's heel. The ambassadors of the allied governments in Russia have been aware of this condition during the past year, and the fact that they have fled from central Russia to a port of refuge in the north indicates that the German grip on Russian affairs has entirely destroyed the Bolshevik government's position as a neutral power and that the Bolshevik executives' pro-German acts have become notoriously flagrant.

It is agreed that the allies could not do much in Russia at present, even if they declared war on the Lenin-Trotsky autocracy. The Germans are still in possession of a considerable area of Belgium and France, and allied man power on the western front is not yet superior to the German. We must establish an American army of two million or three million men and communications which will supply such an army before we can become vigorously aggressive in Russia. With the cooperation of the Japanese and the Czech-Slovak army, which is already doing good work in Siberia, however, it would be possible to establish allied supremacy in Asiatic Russia this year, and pave the way for a gradual movement toward Moscow and Petrograd in 1919. The recent assassinations of von Mirbach, the German ambassador at Moscow, and von Eichhorn, German dictator in the Ukraine, suggest a smoldering fire of unyielding protest against German militarism in Russia which should leap into a flame of open revolution once the allied armies appear in force sufficient to restore law and order.

COOS BAY RESIDENTS ENTERTAIN

set beach and an informal dance in Marshfield.

On Sunday the entire day was given over to sight seeing and included a trip to Myrtle Point by rail; automobile tour of that section and visits to two of the many cheese factories which help to make that district prosperous, then to Coquille, where a picnic dinner was served in a magnificent myrtle grove a few blocks from the business center. The welcome extended by Coquille people was hearty and sincere and made friends for that thriving city. A steamer ride of three hours landed the editorial party at Bandon beach, a beautiful summer resort which will be visited more as it becomes better known and transportation more direct.

A ride of three hours by automobile over the Seven Devils road from Bandon to Marshfield makes the Josephine county roads seem like boulevards in comparison, yet when the difficulties of road construction in Coos county are taken into consideration it appears that they have done more than any other county in road work.

A trip by automobile from Grants Pass to Coos Bay and return includes travel over graded highways, dirt roads, plank roads, corduroy, and macadam; some stretches are good for 30 to 35 miles an hour, while others are rough for a five-mile speed. When the Camas valley road is improved for about 10 miles each side of the Douglas-Coos county line, the trip will be one of entire enjoyment. Even two broken springs and delay in negotiating the Rock hill grade, due to the failure of gasoline to feed into the carburetor, owing to the extreme grade, failed to make the trip of the Josephine county delegation anything but enjoyable.

At the Churches

Union Outdoor Services

At the Junior High or Central school grounds at 8 p. m. this evening. Rev. Melville T. Wire will preach. Should the weather be rainy or otherwise very inclement, the service will be held at the Methodist church, as a resolution passed by the preacher's association provided that in case of rain or bad weather, the service was to be taken to the church of the pastor whose turn it was to preach on that night. It is probable, however, that no such contingency will arise, and that the service will be at the school grounds as usual. The fact that the evenings may be a little cool will make no difference; people are requested to bring their camp chairs.

AT THE MOVIES

"The Tiger Man"

In the portrayal of western characters of a distinct and virile type, William S. Hart is, perhaps, the best known in the cinema world. Mr. Hart has a new picture, "The Tiger Man," directed by himself, which will be presented at the Joy Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday.

This is a remarkable story of the west. Hawk Parsons, a bandit chief, widely known as "The Tiger Man," because of his ferocity and cruelty, lurks on the borders of a desert in search of prey. A wagon train is halted, owing to the lack of water, and the emigrants suffer great privations. Among these is Ruth Ingram, wife of a minister of the gospel, who volunteers to go in search of aid. She encounters Hawk, "The Tiger Man," who after hearing her story goes to the relief of the imperiled emigrants. The party is attacked by Indians and they are driven away under the leadership of Hawk Parsons. Hawk conceives an infatuation for Ruth and he carries her away with him to his cabin in a secret recess in the desert. She attempts to slay herself, then swoons. This is the beginning of "The Tiger Man's" regeneration. He subsequently escorts her to a settlement where she rejoins her husband, and then gives himself up to the officers of the law on condition that they be permitted to hold their religious services unmolested. The picture is one of intense thrill, strong situations and the highest dramatic interest.
