WOMEN'S RELIEF CORPS GIVE VETERANS DINNER

Today is Medford day at the Old Soldiers and Sailors Encampment, but inasmuch as the Medford people did not put in an appearance there will be no Medford program. There are a few Medford people in camp but no general representation. The pressure of the fruit season is held accountable for the slim representation.

The big dinner by the W. R. C. was given this noon. One long table was spread under the oaks and seated at the table were near a hundred veterans and W. R. C. visitors, two preachers and one editor, who were special guests. The spread was bountiful although Hooverized. There were pressed meats and yellow-legged chickens, salads, jams, jellies, fruits, strawberries and pies, in plenty. When the appetites of those at the first table had been appeased, others took their places until about 150 had been served. After the dinner young girls from the Riverside school gathered about and pinned roses on the coats of the veterans.

The program for the afternoon is entirely informal, but from the conversation of some of the old soldiers it is gathered that there will be "something doing." There will be an impromptu program for tonight.

SAY GOLD IS NEEDED AS NEVER BEFORE

It is high time that the people of the west face the facts regarding the gold and silver mining industry, says the Coast Manufacturer.

Before the war the estimated gold reserve of the world was $10,000,000,000 which represented about 35 per cent of the bonded indebtedness of warring nations. Today it represents less than 8 per cent.

The value of pure gold is fixed at $20.67 per ounce. This price was set when labor and supplies were cheap.

Today it costs $30 an ounce to produce gold and the gold miner is asking the government to pay the difference of $10 an ounce on new gold produced so that mines will not be forced to close, when gold is needed as never before in world's history.

Individually and industrially our whole nation depends on a maximum production from our mines and every man in the west should use his best efforts and intelligence to see that gold and silver mining and the mining industry as a whole is better understood by the public at large and measures adopted which will assure increased production.
