"TO HELL WITH THE KAISER"

THEY ALL SAY

The picture was shown Sunday night for the first time, and it is doubtful if the old Broadway has held such a crowd since the days of the "Midnight Sons." Every one was there and every seat was filled. Lawrence Grant gave an interpretation of the kaiser that was remarkable for its subtlety as well as for its uncanny physical resemblance to the world's best hated ruler. He is the best kaiser we have seen. In fact, he is so good that we wouldn't be surprised if no one every spoke to him again. He plays a dual role, but the other man is a villain, too, an actor person who impersonated His Satanic Majesty when William himself wished to take a vacation. In that way Mr. Hohenzollern could direct one set of atrocities while his double directed another.

Olive Tell never looked so pretty as she did as "the girl," an American who is residing in Berlin with her father. When the story opens she is just leaving the convent in Belgium, where she has taken her younger sister. Betty Howe is the sister who remains in Belgium and is later attacked by the Crown Prince when the village is sacked.

The story does not pretend to be a history of the war, and the only things that are true are the atrocities which are committed by the Germans. These are always bound to be true. But it is intensely interesting and extremely well done. It is war melodrama at its best.—N. Y. Tribune.

"To Hell with the Kaiser" isn't merely the name of a photo drama. It is the American state-of mind. Everyone of us has his own private little idea of how the kaiser's punishment should be made to fit the crown. It remains for Metro to do the subject up brown. Everybody in town will go to see "To Hell with the Kaiser." It breathes the very spirit of American pep and dash of optimism. It radiates victory. It's young and American, and breathes the spirit that has never been beaten. In truth "To Hell with the Kaiser" is something new in film land.—New York Times.

As a stimulus to patriotism "To Hell with the Kaiser" is a sure shot. I honestly believe it would reform a confirm pacifist. If you are a regular American this picture will do you good, and if you are not it will make you uneasy until you are one. In either event your Uncle Sam can't lose.—Guy Price in New York Herald.

Where Good Cooks Are Most Valued

Surely never in the world was honest good cooking of real honest good food enjoyed more than it is on a farm in rush times.

How the hungry hired help and neighbors do eat! How they do enjoy and appreciate good cooking!

will never decrease your reputation as a cook, Madam. Rather it will surely increase it.

It is nothing but pure cow's milk evaporated to the consistency of cream.

In creaming vegetables, in making bread, pastry and cakes—wherever you use milk in cooking—it gives a flavor that is very appetizing. Carnation can be whipped like cream, when thoroughly chilled of course, which proves its quality.

Carnation is used by thousands of people just as it comes from the can for cream on fruit and cereals and in tea and coffee.

The Carnation Case in the Storeroom is "The Answer to the Milk Question" On the Farm

The sealed can preserves it, when kept in a cool dry place, sweet and pure until used.

Buy Carnation by the case. Lay in a stock of it now, and you will be free of milk trouble at all times.

THE TRUTH ABOUT CANDY

Shall the Candy Factories Survive?

The candy industry normally is using 8% or less of all the sugar used in the United States—at present about 4%.

That is small—very small, considering the importance of the industry.

Candy making is the thirty-eighth largest industry in the United States.

Over $110,000,000 are invested. Over a hundred thousand people—mostly women—make their living from it.

That candy is a food has been firmly established by scientists and chemists and physicians and proven out by men in the trenches and in the camps—in all forms of heavy work where bodily fuel is needed.

The candy manufacturers have willingly given up half of their sugar, and will go to any lengths to help win the war.

On the other hand, the voice of reason tells us that it is not a part of the government's program to suspend any industry, unless it is absolutely necessary—especially when it is recognized that that industry is making an established food product.

If people do not take their allotment of sugar in candy form, they take it in other forms—in coffee or tea, on fruit, etc.

It is largely a matter of taste, but we all know that the human system needs some sugar.

So conserve on sugar, but recognize candy as one way to enjoy that portion of sugar which the Food Administration allots us in America.

Please recognize that out of 84 pounds of sugar used annually per capita in this country, less than 7 pounds goes into candy making, normally. Today the candy industry allotment has been cut to half of that 7 pounds, or 4% of the total amount of sugar used in the United States.

Yet candy is plainly and fully established as a food product. We claim the industry and the product has a right to live.

If everyone in his home will save a little sugar there, the candy industry can survive, because there will be enough sugar for the Food Administration to spare the candy makers.

Save some sugar in the home and use some of your sugar allowance in the form of wholesome, nourishing candy.

—In normal times the candy industry uses only 8 per cent of the sugar used per capita in this country. Right now this amount has been cut squarely in two.
