

OBITUARY

Anna M. Holman
Anna M. Holman was born in London, England, June 12, 1845, and came to the United States with her parents in 1848.

The funeral was held at the family residence, 704 North Seventh street, Tuesday afternoon, Rev. P. K. Hammond, of Ashland, conducting the service.

Mrs. Holman, who had been a resident of Grants Pass for 25 years, died at midnight Saturday, September 26, following an automobile accident, in which she was hit by a machine.

Mrs. Henrietta Grace Henry
Henrietta Grace McHugh was born in Holland Patent, N. Y., June 17, 1841, and died in Grants Pass Monday morning, September 30, aged 77 years 3 months 13 days.

The funeral services were held at the residence, 647 North Second street, this afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. P. K. Hammond, of the Ashland Episcopal church, conducting the service.

Mrs. Henry, who has been a resident of this city for some years, had been a close friend of Mrs. James Holman, whose funeral was held on Wednesday, for 67 years, and Mrs. Holman had been at the bedside of Mrs. Henry only an hour or two before the automobile accident occurred which resulted in Mrs. Holman's death.

In the Nature of Apology. An unintentionally irreverent prayer was made in a missionary meeting called for the benefit of Chinese converts. "Oh, Lord," prayed a fervent helper in the work, "we have shunned these, thy children, because of their pigtails and crooked eyes, but O Lord, we are sorry, for we have this day learned that they, too, are made in thy image."—Harper's Magazine.

AT THE MOVIES "Hit-the-Trail Holiday"

George M. Cohan, the idol of the musical comedy world and whose work in "Broadway Jones" will never be forgotten by the million along Broadway and throughout the U. S. A., is seen in his own creation in which Fred Niblo, husband of Enid Bennett, made such a decided hit. What is it? One guess—you're right—"Hit-the-Trail Holiday," in which Billy Sunday, the famous evangelist, is imitated in his work of making them "hit the trail." In the screen version, the famous musical comedy star, dramatist and producer, appears in the role created originally by Fred Niblo, and he sure is a bartender supreme and a prohibitionist par-excellence. If you have seen the stage production you know that a bartender figures as the star of the production. Marshall Neilan, familiarly known as Mickey and the one who has directed Mary Pickford in some of her most decided successes, "Stella Maris" being the best example, was back of the megaphone when the scenes for "Hit-the-Trail Holiday" were shot and Mickey has turned out a job that he may well be proud of. The stage play ran for an entire season on Broadway and was represented by two companies on the road for another season. It was one of the most successful musical comedies ever seen on the Gay White Way. "Hit the Trail Holiday" will be shown at the Joy theatre tonight and tomorrow.

TYPIFIES SPIRIT OF FRANCE

Brave Thirteen-Year-Old Girl, With Two Small Brothers, Doing All the Work on Farm.

When the work in your war garden seems tedious and you straighten your aching back and look longingly toward the inviting shade of the trees or toward the arm chair on the awning-covered porch; when you mutter to yourself that it will not matter much whether the weeds do choke the beet patch—it may help you to finish your task if you call to mind a story told in "My War Diary" by Mrs. Mary King Waddington.

In a village near ours, says the author, a girl of thirteen is running the farm. At the beginning of the war it was a thriving farm with a man and his wife, six sons and one daughter. Then the blow fell, and all the men in France were mobilized; the father and his two eldest boys went off at once—four hours after the decree of mobilization was received in the village. The farmer had no time to put his house in order, but left the farm in the hands of his wife and the two big boys, aged fifteen and sixteen. The man and his two eldest sons are now dead, the two next are in the army, and the poor mother, a wreck physically and mentally, cries all day. The girl and the two little boys do the whole work of the farm. The youngest, who is only ten years old, cannot accomplish much, but he does manage to watch the cows and to carry cans of milk or baskets of butter.

I see the girl sometimes; she is perfectly well, never complains and never asks for anything—except occasionally for a warm petticoat, or a hood to keep her head and neck warm and dry when she is working in the fields. There are hundreds of girls doing that work all over France.—Youth's Companion.

Fine Paint Made From Tar. The Revue de Chimie Industrielle notes that a brilliant black paint which dries well and is far superior to mineral varnish may be made by mixing equal parts of coal tar with benzine or coal oil. Spread thinly with a hard brush, it penetrates the wood, which it preserves from decay, and it adheres well to metals, at the same time preventing them from rusting.
