LOCAL BIRDS MAKE FINE SHOWING IN CONTEST

K. Hammerbacher, a local breeder of single comb White Leghorns, has just received a report of the second All-Northwest laying contest, held at Pullman, Wash., the contest starting November 11, 1917, and ending October 31, 1918. While the pen did not win first place, it made a good showing.

The pen of five birds laid 972 eggs during the year, an average of 194.4. These eggs sold for $37.24, an average of $7.45 per hen.

It cost $3.34 per hen, or a total of $20.54 for feed, leaving a net profit for the pen of $20.50, or $4.10 per hen.

Mr. Hammerbacher had two hens laying over 200 eggs, one 245, and one 219. This is proof that good breeding pays.

MONSTER SHELL ALMOST KILLS GRANTS PASS BOY

Base hospital, 17 American Expedition Forces October 20, 1918.

My dear loving mother and all the rest of the folks at home:

I know you will be anxious to hear from me, so one of the Y. W. C. A. women has been kind enough to consent to write for me.

This is the beginning of the 4th week and the doctor told me today that he thought I might be able to get up, possibly in four weeks more. My legs are improving wonderfully and are quite painful at times, but the doctor says it is because they are getting better. I have complete use of my right arm and getting so that I have about half the use of the left one. My shoulder is getting very much better and I will soon be able to sit up.

My left knee cap was blown away and I asked the doctor if my left leg would be stiff. He hummed a little bit and then said, "well a little," and then said, "but you'd rather have that than none at all wouldn't you?" I told him "yes," because I was happy not to lose it entirely, and sure do hope that I do not. My right leg will get entirely well and will be O. K. except possibly weak and will leave quite a scar.

I am awfully anxious to hear from home but have not had a letter for nearly five weeks, as I know they are being stacked up somewhere and there is some delay in forwarding them to me at the hospital. The nurse told me yesterday to have heart, that she thought I'd be home by Christmas. I sure do hope this is true, for I have a fear of the front line. I would be so nervous and scared that I'd be absolutely worthless. The shock from the explosion of the shell exploding so close sure made me awfully nervous, but the nurse says I'll outgrow that. No one can ever imagine how horrible and how dreadful the modern warfare of today is. There are so many different things to combat, for example, the shell that wounded me was a double explosive shell, exploding twice. It also contained gas. That one shell possibly cost five or six hundred dollars. After being wounded I still had presence of mind and with one good hand put on my gas mask, thus saving me from being gassed.

I cannot tell you all the horrors but can explain them to you when I get home, and my greatest desire is that this war will cease.

The weather has been kind of chilly here but think it may brighten up later. Please do not worry over me, instead just send up a prayer to God, it will do me much more good and save you a whole lot. Be sure and write lots of letters. It is getting late now and I must close. Lots of love and a kiss to all.

Brother.

Willard STORAGE BATTERY

Your Battery's Lease of Life

Your battery's usefulness depends on the way you treat it, but even the best of care won't make a poorly insulated battery stand up through a long busy life.

The Still Better Willard, with ORDINARY care gives a good deal more than ordinary SERVICE and a great deal longer than ordinary LIFE.

One of the reasons why this is so is that this battery has Threaded Rubber Insulation—which INDEFINITELY postpones need of re-insulating.

Ask for the booklet "A Mark With a Meaning for You."

We test, repair and recharge storage batteries, and always carry a full supply of battery parts, new batteries and rental batteries.

Victory Songs at Christian Church—The "Victory Sing" at the Church of Christ Sunday evening under the leadership of Mrs. Chas. R. Drake was participated in by an audience that filled the house. The militant songs of both our nation and the church were sung in an enthusiastic spirit. Features of the service were solos by Misses Genevieve Pattillo and Gertrude Kerley. Rev. Drake delivered one of his chart sermons on "Where We Got the Bible," tracing the history of the books of the Bible from the present time back to the time of their production by inspired men, supporting his claims by several lines of evidence.
