'FUNERAL WAGON,' THE FAMOUS OUTLAW, TAMED

Fort Bliss, Tex., Nov. 20.—The days of the professional bronco buster are numbered. This has been demonstrated at the remount station here and "Funeral Wagon" the nationally famous outlaw horse from Pendleton, Ore., was the dumb medium through which the reformation of horse taming was brought about.

"Funeral Wagon" had never been successfully ridden until after he was shipped to the remount station here. At the round-ups in Oregon he was the unbroken outlaw horse. At a frontier celebration in Douglas, Ariz., he was again unconquerable. Then he came to Fort Bliss and fell under the spell of Sergeant Davis' personality. Sergeant Davis "has a way" with him around horses. He can enter a corral, loop a halter over the wildest animal and lead him out. He knows horses as some men know human beings. He believes they have feelings, sensations and the ability to think. He even ventures a guess that a horse has a soul.

It required a month for him to enter "Funeral Wagon's" private corral. Another month was consumed in the bestowal of a gentle pat on the big bay's shiny neck. No one else connected with the remount station could enter the corral. Let one of the professional "busters" approach with his bowed legs encased in chaps and the outlaw rears and plunges like a demon. It is Sergeant Davis' theory that the horse has been spurred at some time in his life by a cowboy and the memory of those pointed spurs lingers in his brain.

Applying his theory that kindness accomplishes more than a spur, the veteran horse breaker convinced "Funeral Wagon" there was a friend of his at court. He has succeeded in teaching the outlaw horse to count his age by making six playful gestures with his left front foot. He has even reached the point in equine education where he has saddled and ridden him around the corral. This was a red letter day at the remount for no one had ever thrown a leg over the outlaw's back since he arrived. Even then Sergeant Davis rigged up a contraption of window cord and pulleys called a Sleason bridle which looped under the horse's upper lip and pressed against sensitive nerves when pulled sharply, his way to prevent a wild stampede should "Funeral Wagon" start back to Oregon overland. But the patient horse tamer has never been forced to use this bridle and he rides the outlaw daily for a short distance, but he is always careful not to excite him and he never carries a whip or wears spurs. He has hopes of making a fine riding horse of the outlaw and his fondest dream is to have the commanding general ride him at review.

THE GENERAL WAS NOT WEARING HIS INSIGNIA

Camp Lewis, Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 20.—Recently officers of the 13th division training here were ordered to report for physical examination to determine their fitness for overseas duty. Like enlisted men they were compelled to remove all their clothing.

Into the large room where several medical officers were examining the divisional leaders came Brigadier General Cornelius Vanderbilt, of the 25th infantry brigade. As an officer present expressed it "he was clad only in his Van Dyke and a smile." The general wears whiskers.

Now when a general enters a room the occupants must come to attention, which is called usually by the first person to see him. When General Vanderbilt entered a captain called "attention."

"At rest, gentlemen," answered General Vanderbilt. "We are all the same here and you can see I am not wearing the insignia of a general."

In many matters such as this, according to officers here, General Vanderbilt has won the reputation of being one of the most democratic generals yet stationed here.

RICE YIELD OF TEXAS IS WORTH $6,000,000

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 20.—The war resulted in increased production and increased consumption of rice in Texas during the last year. An extensive campaign in the south for greater acreage, and for use of rice as a substitute for wheat was largely responsible.

Big producers in Texas, where 3,000,000 sacks of rough rice is grown annually, believed that the war has taught housewives the value of rice as food and that the increase in consumption will continue. It is estimated that 33 per cent of the country's annual production of rice is grown on the 300,000 acres under cultivation in Texas. The product of the large rice mills in southern Texas, where extensive crops have been put in, is valued at $6,000,000 producers say.

A Good Home at Sacrifice

Leaving Grants Pass, I will sell my residence of 9 rooms, located at 622 North Fifth street at less than half its cost to build. If you want a home this is an opportunity to acquire a first class modern property on small investment and easy terms. Household furniture and canned fruit is also for sale. Money is not of first importance in this matter, but quick action is the result desired.

Target Practice

Twenty-three members of the Oregon State Guard went out to the rifle range Sunday for practice. As this is the first chance that the boys have had to try their guns, they made an average score. Sergeant H. L. Wilson made the highest score with the rifle, 45 out of 50, shooting 200 yards. First Sergeant Lindley did the best with pistol, making 21 out of 25 at 20 yards.

Monster Potato

J. T. Cook brought to the Courier office this afternoon a monster potato, weighing an even seven pounds. It is of the Blue Victor variety and shows remarkable growth. Mr. Cook, whose place is on the Applegate river 14 miles from this city, last year had a good acreage, but on account of the small amount realized from the crop, planted only a small plot this year.

Publicity Director Visits City

George A. Van Smith, assistant cashier of the Anglo & London, Paris National Bank of San Francisco, was in the city today on business. Mr. Van Smith is also director of publicity of the liberty loan campaigns for the 12th federal reserve district, and on this trip is checking up the results of publicity campaigns with a view to eliminating any unnecessary expense in the supplying of publicity matter.

SEED SAMPLES TESTED FREE AT THE O. A. C.

"Good seed is one of the most important factors in crop production, and every farmer should know the purity and germination percentage of his seed before planting it. The loss from planting poor seed is within the control of the farmer," says B. F. Sheehan, instructor at the O. A. C.

Farmers of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and Wyoming may get seed samples tested free at the O. A. C. seed testing laboratory, Corvallis. A good handful is enough for the sample of most seed. For seed in bags or bins the sample should represent the top, middle and bottom portions.

WRIGLEY GIVES TIN-FOIL TO THE GOVERNMENT

To help meet the needs of the government, Wrigley's will discontinue the use of tin-foil as a wrapping for "Juicy Fruit" chewing gum. In order to release this valuable material to Uncle Sam.

Hundreds of thousands of pounds per week of tin-foil will thus be made available to the government. It is said, "Juicy Fruit" will hereafter appear in the hermetically sealed pink wrapper same as "Spearmint." "Doublemint" will also be wrapped in waxed paper, instead of green.
