SETTLED QUESTION OF VOTE

Decision of English Registrar Almost Worthy to Rank With That Made Famous by Solomon.

Not since the days of Solomon, perhaps, has a more perplexing problem confronted a judge than that recently presented to an election registrar in England. A certain voter possessed a house which stood half in one parish and half in another. The question consequently arose as to in which parish, or whether not, indeed, in both, the householder was entitled to vote. After some discussion a ray of light was vouchsafed to Solomon. In which parish, he demanded, was the man's bedroom? Unfortunately, in both. Then was it that Solomon stood fully revealed; the infant, of mature years, should be cut in twain. The parish in which the head of the bed stood should have the honor of the vote. Which is all very well, except that there are many voters whose feet take them to the polling booth, but whose heads are so good when they get there. Does not the Italian proverb say, "If a man has not a head he should have feet."—Christian Science Monitor.

King Victim of His Own Jest.

Probably the greatest admirer of perfumes among the old Asiatic monarchs seems to have been Antiochus Epiphanes the Illustrious, king of Syria, according to Don Martin, who has come into this perfumery question for the Los Angeles Times. At all Antiochus' feasts, games and processions perfumes held the premier place.

The king was once bathing in the public baths, when some private person attracted by the fragrant odor which he shed around, accosted him, saying: "You are a happy man, O king, you smell in a most costly manner."

Antiochus, being much pleased with the remark, replied: "I will give you as much as you desire of this perfume." The king then ordered a large ewer of thick unguent to be poured on the fatterer's head and a multitude of poor people soon collected around to gather what was spilled. This caused the king infinite amusement but it made the place so greasy that he slipped and fell on his back in a most undignified manner, which put an end to his merriment.

Leguminous Crop Needed.

A leguminous crop is necessary in rotation to keep up the nitrogen in the soil.

TREES TO LEAVE IN FARM-TIMBER TRACT

Aim to Improve Wood Lot in Cutting for Fuel Supply.

Wood Should Be Attended to as soon as Possible So There Will Be Plenty of Time for Material to Properly Season.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In cutting firewood for this winter's emergency fuel supply the operation should be undertaken with the double purpose of furnishing heat and improving the farm wood lot at the same time.

The trees should be marked for cutting while the leaves are on them, even if other farm work prevents the actual felling until later, because it is easier to tell the different kinds by the foliage than by the bark. But the cutting should be done as soon as possible if the firewood is to be used this winter, so there will be some time for the wood to season.

In the New England and middle Atlantic states the following kinds should be left standing to furnish lumber, except in the case of individual trees that are crooked, knotty, diseased or defective: White pine, red spruce, balsam, chestnut, white oak, red oak, hard maple, yellow birch, tulip poplar, white ash, hickory and basswood.

The trees of less value for lumber, or slow growing, and which should be cut are hemlock, arbor vitae, black oak, scarlet oak, red maple, beech, gum, elm, gray birch and ironwood.

In Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and southeast Missouri save yellow poplar, black walnut, red gum, white oak, red oak, cottonwood, hickory, white ash, hard maple and basswood.

In those states the trees to be cut from the farm wood lot for firewood are black oak, red elm, beech and red maple.

In the northern parts of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota the trees to be saved for lumber are white pine, red pine, aspen, yellow birch, basswood, red oak, white ash and hard maple.

Farmers in the northern section of these states may well cull out for firewood, and thus improve the value of their timber stands, the following trees: Jack pine, hemlock, scarlet oak, black oak, elm and beech.

In the southern portions of these large states—Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota—farmers would do well to save white oak, red oak, white ash, basswood, hickory and hard maple.

The trees that may be removed for fuel in the southern farming section of these states are black oak, red elm and beech.

RAISE PIGS FOR RED CROSS

Mississippi County Club Sets Fine Example in Producing Pork—Has 3,000 Members.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Ten thousand dollars to the Red Cross and 600,000 pounds of pork for our soldiers overseas is what the Red Cross Pig club in Carroll county, Mississippi, has contributed to the nation, according to a report received by the United States department of agriculture from O. F. Turner, county agent. The club has 3,000 members, and will ship 30 cars of hogs to market. "No county in Mississippi," says the report, "has ever before seen such an array of porkers as we now have in Carroll. The whole county is spotted with hogs of the finest type. Red Cross pigs are in every hill and in every hollow. People who never had any confidence in such things before are studying feeds and using tankage and self-feeders. We have pigs that weigh 400 pounds, with litter mates that won't weigh 100. Some of our hogs have gained 118 pounds in one month."

The Mule.
 To our mind the one breathing thing in creation that has been the most cruelly maligned is the mule. No more hard-working creature walks the earth; none with a more faithful past record; none now more in demand in the world's service. What would we do in this war without the mule? What can we do without him after the war is over? Still he is despised and kicked around worse than though he were a hound dog. It is a shame. In the readjustment of things, let us fight this wrong and, if we have anything to say to the mule, let us say it to his face, which is wiser than saying it to his heels.—Los Angeles Times.

A Drawback.
