Adventure in Fiction.

In each army Y. M. C. A. building in the training camps of America there is a circulating library of books provided by the American Library Association, and one of the duties of the secretary is to see to the circulation of the books among the soldiers.

In a Y. M. C. A. building at Camp Forrest a bright-faced young soldier leaned against the counter and earnestly inquired, "Have you got any 'hebra books?"

The secretary, delighted at this manifestation of interest in higher things, scanned the book shelves.

"No, my boy," he replied, "I'm sorry to say that I haven't. I have several arithmetics, but not a single 'hebra. Will anything else do?"

"Oh, give me any good book of adventure," said the boy.

And presently the secretary recovered sufficiently to realize that the soldier wanted a book by Horatio Alger, and selecting "Pluck and Luck, or From Porter to President," he sent the applicant on his way rejoicing.

ONE LESSON TAUGHT BY WAR

Seems Certain That Soldiers Will Spread Knowledge of the Value of Outdoor Living.

Most of us are already planning what we shall do "when the boys come home!"

They have been away so long, on such a dangerous heroic mission, that when they come back we will love them more and treat them better than ever before. We will appreciate them—and take more time from our foolish hurrying for love and comradeship. We will spend more time enjoying the human companionship of the boys and each other.

But if we spend more time with them we'll have to spend it out of doors—for they won't stay in the house to play!

The men in the army and navy, drawn from the cooped-up places of modern social and industrial life, have suddenly been taught the uses and delights of plain, everyday fresh air. They like it so well that they won't be content with any other kind. They have learned what it is to sleep under the stars—a joy once reserved to tramps and poets. They have watched the exuberant glory and triumph of rosy sunrise and learned the solemn beauty of creeping twilights.

"In Flanders fields where poppies grow" they have learned a new and mighty language of the common grass and flowers, and thrill to the song of the lark that braves the battlefields as they never thrilled to solemn organ tones.

A day in June or October is more to them than a square on the calendar. It is a God-given time of sun and air, and work and play, and friendship and service—a glorious period of full use of mind and soul and body—for splendor of living unguessed in the old cooped-up life of indoors.

The soldiers have learned that outdoors is not just an interlude between work and home and amusement. Outdoors is freedom and health and happiness—and if we want to work and play with them hereafter we too shall have to follow them out-of-doors.—Chicago Evening Post.

PROVED EFFECT OF MICROBES

Experiments Made by French Scientist Reveal Possibility of Marvelous Things in the Future.

If there were no microbes men would grow to gigantic stature and have intellectual powers far in advance of those which they possess at present. What is more, it is possible, at least to live without microbes. Anyway, these are the conclusions of no less an authority than Doctor Roux, who heads the Pasteur Institute in Paris. They are based upon the result of some experiments carried on by one of his pupils, Dr. Michael Cohendy.

Doctor Cohendy placed some guinea pigs under glass at the moment of their birth. The air which they breathed was thoroughly sterilized, as was all the food administered to them. Unquestionably many germs were able to reach them, but every precaution known to science and possible with the application of one of the completest laboratories in the world was exercised to protect them.

The result rather astounded the doctor. The subjects grew with amazing rapidity, three or four times as fast as guinea pigs of the same age subsisting under normal conditions. In the brief span of 12 days they were for the most part a third larger.

Doctor Roux concludes that man, if under perfect antiseptic conditions from birth, would develop very far beyond what is possible as things are at present. He even hints that with advancing knowledge, such conditions, if not attained, will be so approximated as to materially enhance the physical welfare and mental vigor of the race.

Early French Journals.

There is a very long list of these early french journals, the majority of which have been collected by Mr. Charles de La Ronciere, who has deposited them at the Bibliotheque Nationale in Paris for the benefit of the future historians of the war. They include Le Petit Echo du 18e Regiment d'infanterie territoriale, which was very artistically edited by Corporal Huhter and autographed in many colors; L'Echo des Tranchies, the editor of which was the famous short story writer Paul Reboux, and which contained articles and poems by such writers as Poincare and Rostand, Theodor Botrel and Henri de Regnier; and the Echo du Ravin, the organ of the Forty-first chasseurs, which boasted of a private wire connecting the office with abroad—the barbed wire reaching right up to the trenches of the Boches.—Wide World Magazine.

Which Showed

Two handsomely dressed ladies were seated side by side in an outgoing street car a few afternoons ago. A man in front of them opened a Nashville Banner, which had a great headline, "Germany Sends Embassies to Foch." One lady asked the other: "What does that mean?" The other replied: "I haven't the slightest idea." Which shows that both were qualified military experts.—Nashville Banner.

KNEW NOTHING OF WAR UNTIL PEACE

Aged Woman Now Wants to Punish Kaiser.

SHE WAS BORN IN GERMANY

Because of Her Age, Eighty-Nine Years, Her Son Did Not Tell Her of Great Conflict, but When Peace Celebration Occurred It Was Impossible to Keep Silent—Tells of the Wrongs Perpetrated on the People by Government Officials.

To have lived through the great war and not to know that it was going on is the most unusual record of Mrs. Berthe Spandau, eighty-nine years old, German by birth, now living in New York. Her age kept her son from telling her about the horrors of the invasion of Belgium and of the sinking of the Lusitania. He didn't wish her to worry and fret.

But the day of the peace demonstration made it impossible to keep silent. The old lady heard the whistles blowing and the crowds cheering, and she demanded to know what it was all about. When they told her she raised her hands in a gesture of imprecation and said: "Oh, if only I could get these two hands on that kaiser!"

Oppressive Taxes.

Mrs. Spandau lived in Riehenwald, which is a little town of about 2,000 people. According to her description and that of her son it is much like the German towns that you used to see on the stage in the days before they were banished from it. There were carved wooden houses and storks and narrow streets and a town hall and a belfry with a sweet-toned bell.

But this was not all. There were taxes to be paid, and when you have six children German taxes are nothing to be laughed at. If you cannot pay them an officer or an under officer comes into the house and looks over all your things. If you have two clocks, says Mrs. Spandau, or two tables or even two chairs, the tax officers take one of them. They hold them for a few days and then if you still do not pay, the things are sold at auction and you may be sent to prison.

If your children are not sent to school, and it is not always easy to do this when there is nothing for them to eat, you or your husband may be set to work for the government breaking stones or chopping wood, and again you may be sent to prison.

Not a Happy Life.

Besides this, Mrs. Spandau said, her husband was a German soldier. Evidently, even in those days, a German soldier did not have a happy life. Mrs. Spandau said he was in such fear of the government that he made her promise, before he died, that none of his five sons would ever wear the gray uniform. They never did, Sol Spandau explained, though there is a nephew wearing the United States uniform over in France.

Mrs. Spandau was disgusted by the kaiser's flight to Holland. She asks what have the kaiser and his six sons done that they draw a salary of 6,000,000 marks from the day they are born, while other babies have to work for their living. And who pays for all the richness but the German people?

"No one," said Mr. Spandau, the son, "has been more patriotic than die mütter. She says that she is sorry that her sons are all too old to go and that her grandchildren are all daughters."

CHINESE MADE EASY

New Phonetic Writing Enables Illiterate to Learn in Month.

China has adopted a system of phonetic writing which is expected to revolutionize elementary education of that nation and reduce existing illiteracy, it was announced at New Haven, Conn., by Edwin C. Lobenstein, who has been in conference with the Yale-in-China home office.

The system invented by the Chinese themselves, and approved by the government board of education at Peking, consists of only thirty-nine symbols. Any sound in the language can be represented by combining two or at the most three of these symbols, and experiments made with hundreds of individuals have conclusively shown that an adult illiterate man or woman can learn to read by the use of a system of this kind in three or four weeks. It is now being taught in all the government higher normal schools in the country.

Mining Town Eveless.

The old mining town of Derrick, Cal., high up in the Trinity county mountains, is today as Eveless as the North pole. The only woman who lived there has departed for Sacramento to spend the roughest part of the winter, and does not expect to return until the robins nest in the spring.
