THE UNITED STATES REGULARS

Somehow the regular army of the United States has not received its dues nor honor from the public that rightly belongs to it.

Still fresh in the memory of Americans is the day when, with French morale badly shaken, German commanders sent the pick of those guards for a smashing drive through the allied lines.

which we are passing and look into the future.

Take your own home as an example. Nine chances to one you have been delaying repair and improvements for from two to five years due to war conditions, high cost of material and labor.

The condition which prevails in your own home prevails in other homes and in every industry from the largest to the smallest, in development enterprises of all kinds both public and private to say nothing of the empty cupboards and storehouses of Europe.

Prices and wages are both dropping from a war to a peace basis and nothing can stop them. The sooner industry and labor recognize this fact and cooperate to that end the sooner will the readjustment be completed.

Spring is coming and with the signing of peace and final removal of war restrictions and regulations of industry business must inevitably begin to pick up.

From all indications the darkest hour has passed and we are about to enter the first stretch of a wonderful period of development and expansion.

THREE GREAT WAR POEMS

Lieutenant Colonel John McCrea, of the Canadian expeditionary forces died at Boulogne, France, January 28, 1918. His poem, "In Flanders Fields," has been widely copied and has been declared the greatest poem of the war.

The three poems are printed below and we are indeed glad to be able to offer them to readers of the Courier:

IN FLANDERS FIELDS

By Lieut. Col. John McCrea
In Flanders fields the poppies grow
Between the crosses, row on row,

IN FLANDERS FIELDS

Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you from fallen hands we throw
The torch. Be yours to hold it high!

IN FLANDERS FIELDS

By C. B. Galbreath
In Flanders fields the cannon boom
And fitful flashes light the gloom,

Sleep on, ye brave. The shrieking shell,
The quaking trench, the startled yell,
The fury of the battle hell,

Your flaming torch aloft we bear,
With burning heart an oath we swear
To keep the faith, to fight it through,

IN FLANDERS FIELDS

By J. P. Reed
In Flanders fields the guns are hushed,
While earth and sky again are flushed

You throw in faith the flaming brand
From dying grip to living hand,—
We caught it up and held it high

The faith is kept—the oath redeemed;
The shell-torn earth, with chaos seamed,

BUSY SCENES AT CLOSING

lished no one will know what rights their dogs have in this world. It has no emergency clause, but if anyone took the trouble to refer it to a vote of the people it would be voted down.

The fight over creating the office of lieutenant governor lasted until the last minute of the session, the house trying to recall it after it was agreed to. It goes to vote June 3, along with the grist of bonding bills.

While Governor Withycombe has been confined to his home during part of the closing days of the session, he has been able to attend to all the important duties of his office and sign all bills and acts of the legislation requiring his attention.

In the debate over the oleomargarine law the state federation of labor and the grange parted company. State Grange Master Spence was on the floor lobbying for a prohibitive tax on oleomargarine or substitutes for butter in the interest of the state dairymen.

The big constructive fight of the session was made by Representative Smith of Baker county, Representative Gallagher of Ontario, and Jay Upton of Prineville and H. W. Gard of Madras, of the third house, for new self-executing amendment to the constitution to create and finance the irrigation and drainage district.

realize its importance, just one district unit in Jefferson county of 100,000 acres of land will be changed in value from $10 an acre to $150 an acre. The difference between water and no water is shown by the Madras district in 1916, when they had rain, shipping to Portland $79,000 bushels of wheat and in 1917 when it did not rain much they only shipped 66,000 bushels.

COTURRI, DETECTIVE, WARNS DEPUTY SHERIFF

Speed Cop McDonald who returned from Portland Thursday said that he had not ceased his train activities along the line of ferreting out and arresting bootleggers and private consumption smugglers of whiskey into Oregon, and was going to be as active as ever in this regard, despite the fact that the Southern Pacific railroad, officials have protested strongly against his searching baggage on trains and arresting suspected passengers, and have issued orders to the trainmen not to allow him to interfere with passengers except when he has a search or arrest warrant.

If McDonald as a deputy sheriff of Jackson county persists in his announced course he will invite much trouble for himself, as the conductors and trainmen have received orders to eject him from any train on which he attempts to examine any baggage of any passenger, or interfere with the passengers' liberty, without a warrant.

The news was announced by M. Coturri, chief detective for this division of the Southern Pacific.—Medford Tribune.
