PET PEEVES OF PREACHERS

Men of the Cloth Have Their Troubles, Just as Have Their Lower-Placed Brethren.

I have met a number of types in my ministerial meanderings. Let me quote you a few:

Those hard-headed gentlemen who call upon me to "display my backbone" by giving them my active support in their pet quarrels.

The backsliding member who fears lest I be not religious-minded enough for his people.

The loud and insistent propagandist who thinks I am insincere because I do not shout our common beliefs from every street corner.

The man who never attends a service, who wonders if my sermons are up to the mark.

The person who sees me only during meals, and who therefore assumes that I have nothing to do but eat.

The fastidious critic but slovenly dresser who objects to the shape of my shoe and the length of my coat.

Those who believe they have the right to give me orders, on the ground that they supply some of the money that pays my salary.

The mothers who think it undignified of me to seat myself near girls other than their own daughters.

The near-flatterer who thinks my sermons good—and wonders where I got them.—Indianapolis Star.

WAS ONCE "WASTE LAND"

Present Site of Great Bank in New York City So Described in King's Grant.

In the office of George F. Baker, in the First National bank of New York city, there hangs on the wall the original patent from James II, king of England, dated February 4, 1685, for the land on which the First National bank now stands, therein designated as "waste land" outside the city gate of New York. It was issued to one Thomas Dougan, "late governor and now admiral of New York."

There is attached a small sketch of the property, showing Wall street with its fence, and the city gate, through which leads "Broad way."

When one considers that this "waste land" now represents one of the most valuable spots in the world one realizes what changes a little more than two centuries have wrought in New York city.

What would Thomas Dougan have said if he had been told that on this "waste land" would one day stand a banking institution returning its stockholders over 80 per cent a year?—Wall Street Journal.

"Trompe"

The old French word "trompe" meant a pipe or tube, and the term trompe was applied to the apparatus by which the blast is produced in the Catalan forge. It is a simple, effective and ingenious contrivance for

A Masterpiece of Girlishness

The flapper must have caught the ear of some master-designer of flapper clothes this season and coaxed her way into apparel that much resembles that of her grown-up sisters. This is a cherished ambition of the flapper—to have blouses and separate skirts, cape-coats and suits that might really have been designed for a debutante. The fascinating tunic is not denied her and the pretty and simple frock pictured above bears testimony to this. Any of the soft, thin fabrics in cotton or silk are suited to a frock of this kind—white or colored voiles, linen-finished lawn, batiste, crepe-de-chine, foulard and the newer crepe fabrics—all materials that insure flowing lines and lend to soften youthful angles. Over a plain skirt, with the hem corded at the top to finish and weight it, there hangs a tunic, which is corded at the bottom and about the thighs. The simple blouse claims the flowing sleeve, so much featured in the new styles, to lend it character, and this sleeve takes advantage of cording as a finish. It is attached to a long close-fitting cuff which may be omitted and the sleeve left open. This sleeve has a very grown-up look. But the designer has no intent to deceive, and has added a bib to the front of the blouse, the most youthful and ingenious touch imaginable. The flapper will be reconciled to this digression because it is a touch not by any means absent from the frocks of young women.

The pretty girdle that finishes off this little masterpiece of girlishness is of ribbon. It is in a color, blue pink, light green and might be flowered with gay blossoms.

producing a continuous and equable blast, but its use is restricted to localities where a fall of water from a height of several yards can be obtained. The principle is that water can be made to fall through a pipe in such a way that it will draw in through side openings a considerable amount of air, which by a simple and ingenious arrangement can be utilized as a constant current or blast, and which has the merit of costing almost nothing. It has been utilized to a limited extent elsewhere than in the department of Arles, in the South of France, where it was formerly very generally employed. Iron has been made in that district for more than 600 years, but the use of the trompe blast was not introduced until the end of the seventeenth century.

Chinese Lanterns.

Particularly gay and attractive are the shops of the lantern venders in the Chinese cities. All varieties of lanterns are to be seen—the large silken ones three and four feet high, gorgeously painted with variegated colors, embroidered in gold and silver or decorated with deep fringe of the same material, costing from $100 to $200 and used by the wealthy mandarins and others; and common small horn and paper lanterns, used by the coolies, which cost one-sixteenth of a dollar. The mode of making horn lanterns is very ingenious; the horns are cut into remarkably thin slices which, by means of heat and pressure, are joined together and formed into various shapes; round, square, hexagon, octagon, and some shaped to resemble an hour glass.

The Piston.

"The piston is in the form of a solid iron rod that enters the cylinder through a hole pierced in the middle of one of the ends," writes Henri Fabre, "and just large enough to give free passage to the rod, without letting the steam escape. This rod is bound to another iron piece, called a crank, and finally the crank is attached to the neighboring wheel. The piston, advancing and retreating in turn in the cylinder, pushes the crank forward and back, and the crank thus makes the great wheel turn. On the other side of the locomotive, the same things are taking place by means of a second cylinder. Then the two great wheels turn at the same time and the locomotive moves forward."

In Piccadilly.
Piccadilly is believed to have got its name from pickadilles or pickadillies, a variety of turnover collar. A tailor named Higgin, who had made a fortune selling these articles of apparel, built a home in that particular part of London in 1630 and called it Piccadilly hall, hence the name Piccadilly.
