THE NEW PRICE LEVEL

Many people who keep hoping that prices will drop to somewhere near their pre-war level base this hope on the fact that our currency system at present is highly inflated.

Now, our currency is certainly inflated, admits Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale. But he does not agree that there is going to be any let-up.

Against any considerable reduction in bank credit," he says, "we shall find the whole business community in arms."

There is a world-wide cause, too, operating to maintain and even to continue swelling the general volume of credit.

The only necessary equipment is some sort of projection lantern of which there is a type to suit any lighting arrangement from the oil lamps of the country school to the electric devices of the most modern college.

Millions of dollars have been spent taking the pictures and they show on the screen all that the homestay American longed to see.

Believing that everybody in the United States should see these pictures both as matters of deepest public interest and because of their great educational value, the government is urging that every community having a place where moving

There is a new high price level, maintains this expert, and it will prove to be stubborn reality. The clever business man, he says, is not the one who waits to buy raw materials or manufactured articles he needs, but the one who accepts the new price facts and acts accordingly.

The professor's testimony gives strong support to the "buy now" movement which is being launched by some of the enthusiasts over the country, yet it will be hard to convince the majority of the American public that present inflated prices are not going to come down; and in their tumble they will bring down the wage scale.

PEACE AVIATION ASSURED

The chief thing which blocks private and commercial use of the airplane in this country seems to be the lack of suitable landing places.

Quality First

The lack of landing places need not continue a hindrance to the development of peace-time flying here. In Massachusetts a group of veteran aviators back from the war recently appeared before the legislative committee on roads and bridges and urged the passage of a law providing for the creation of just such needed stations.

In Washington a move has already been made in this direction. The Northwest Aircraft Company has leased a gold links near Spokane. The company intends to maintain a landing place there for airplanes, with free parking privileges for passenger, mail or express planes.

Perhaps the most businesslike effort to promote commercial aviation is that made by the United Aircraft Engineering Company which has already purchased 400 planes from the Canadian government. This company also owns aviation fields, repair depots and general equipment sufficient for the operation of a passenger and freight line between Toronto and Hamilton, Ont.

EVERYONE SHOULD SEE THEM

Any community wishing to, can see the war movies taken by the government.

Millions of dollars have been spent taking the pictures and they show on the screen all that the homestay American longed to see.

Cantonment and soldier community life are pictured, the building of villages for war work, which grew up like mushrooms over night. Shipbuilding, great engineering feats at home and abroad; transportation of men and supplies; hospital scenes, and finally, our armies in action on the field.

In Sheep's Clothing

ELKS' GENEROSITY WILL HELP SOLDIERS

Washington, Mar. 26.—Disabled soldiers, sailors and marines who are held to be worthy cases, but which for one technicality or another have been declared "non-compensable cases" by the bureau of war risk insurance, now have a chance for retraining, according to a statement today by the federal board for vocational education, which has charge of this work.

According to the law passed by congress, only the cases decided as "compensable" by the war risk insurance bureau are eligible or entitled to the free vocational retraining with $65 per month support fund allowance for dependents, and placement in a job, if the course be for a wage earning occupation.

By means of the fund of $150,000 placed by the Elks at the disposal of the federal board, worthy cases can now be awarded training without reference to the technicalities which hedge about the expenditure of government funds. There are no restrictions whatever upon the use of the Elks' fund, and it is to be employed in any or all such cases as the board may deem worthy.

WAR CASUALTIES ARE NEARING AN END

Washington, Mar. 26.—The last of the real American casualty lists in the world war are now being published in the daily newspapers and within the next few days the lists will contain practically only the names of those who have died or who have been injured since the armistice. The names of the few given as killed in action are those of men for whom extended investigation had been necessary to establish proof of death.

Daily casualty lists will continue to be issued, however, indefinitely because as long as the expeditionary forces remain in Europe there will be deaths from disease. The next of kin will continue to receive official notifications.
