As in Days Gone By

The plain and conservative apparel that women allowed themselves in war times has affected our coming spring styles in two ways. First, it has brought hand-sewing and simplicity of design into more prominence than ever on spring and summer frocks and it has paved the way for a reaction in favor of lovely color. As in the days long gone by, when women had more leisure for needlework than they have allowed themselves recently, we are to have numbers of simply designed, beautifully made and finished, sheer frocks for summer weather.

Imported velvets have soared to unheard of prices and are unreasonably high. At $6 and $7 per yard they have silks and satins outdistanced. But American mills will turn out fine velvets, linen-finished lawns, transparent organdies, not inexpensive, but not prohibitive in price. Some of these thin weaves suggest georgette and are fairly close imitations of it.

The very pretty frock shown in the picture above is a type of these new, sheer hand-sewed dresses. Except for parallel groups of hand-run tucks and the introduction of smocking in shoulders and at each side of the front of the skirt, it has no elaboration and does not need anything more. It has no subtleties of construction; all the details of its making are set forth in the photograph, and they are reassuring to the home dressmaker. Yet a simple hand-made frock of this kind, in sheer cotton or silk fabrics, is sold for a high price in the shops, commanding something like a hundred or a hundred and twenty-five dollars in smart establishments.

With these light frocks piquant griddles of black velvet ribbon are worn. Sometimes the ribbon is in a color and occasionally it matches the frock. But black proves a wonderful spice to the season's light and flowerlike colors. In the griddle shown three crochet buttons are set on the front and small buttons of the same kind fasten the bodice at the back.

REDUCE WASTE BY CANDLING

Difficulty in Determining Quality of Certain Classes of Eggs in Commercial Plants.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Although the candling method of determining the quality of eggs in the shell is the best known for commercial grading, recent investigations conducted by the United States department of agriculture show that one group of eggs of inferior quality cannot be detected by this system, and that it is inadequate in grading still another group. The investigations, reported in Department Bulletin 702, show that experienced candlers and those using extreme care do not make many mistakes in grading eggs. Eggs with green whites and those having a normal appearance but bad odors are not recognizable by candling. White rots, more particularly mixed rots, eggs with yolks slightly stuck to the shell, blood rings and eggs with bloody whites are not always detected, and are included in the group most frequently miscandled by inexperienced or careless workmen. Eggs with brown shells or light-colored yolks make detection between good and bad specimens more difficult.

In the studies with skilled candlers, who candled a number of cases of 30 dozen eggs each, the average proportion of bad eggs miscandled per case varied from 0.2 in spring flocks to 10.77 in very low grade cold-storage eggs. The percentage of bad eggs which could not be found by recandling ranged from none to 6.93 per cent case and depended on the grade of the eggs examined. In the commercial candling of 128,587 eggs, 5,965 bad eggs were found, of which 71.05 per cent were recognized by candling and the balance, or 28.35 per cent, were not found until the eggs were opened and examined individually. Then it was observed that the 28.35 per cent was divided between a group of 17.02 per cent bad eggs, which in many instances are distinguishable by candling, and a second group of 11.33 per cent consisting of types of bad eggs which cannot be discovered until the eggs are broken.

The accuracy of candling depends upon the quality of the eggs and the skill of the candler, according to the bulletin. In plants having poor management and poor candlers the number of good eggs in the discard sometimes reached 11 dozen to the case. The enforcement of a system of checking the work of individual candlers, particularly in plants employing inexperienced help, was found to be the best way to maintain high efficiency and thus eliminate waste by grading marketable eggs as rejects.

BEST WEIGHT FOR LEGHORNS

Three and One-Half Pounds for Hens and Four and One-Quarter for Cocks is Average.

There is no standard weight given for Leghorns, though the average may be said to be three and one-half pounds for hens, and four and one-quarter pounds for cocks. Pullets and cockerels are a trifle under these weights. Some strains run heavier, which is obtained by introducing Minorca blood. It is thought that some of the English breeders have crossed a little Wyandotte blood, for their Leghorns are of a much different type.

Don't Forget This.

According to an English scientist's estimate the world's total annual rainfall amounts to 29,457.4 cubic miles, of which less than one-fourth drains through rivers into the ocean.
