ALL IS NOT LOVELY OVER THE SISKIYOU

The first car over the Siskiyou from California this year arrived in Medford Wednesday, says the Medford Tribune of Thursday, the journey from Dunsmuir, Cal., taking three days. Eugene Crandall, editor of the Calgary "Motors and Motoring" drove the car being en route from Los Angeles, Cal., where he spent the winter, to his home. The road is closed between Redding and Dunsmuir, but construction work has started and reports in Redding were to the effect that the road would be open about May 1st. Mr. Crandall shipped his car to Dunsmuir and then motored to Hill. The other side of the mountain he reports in very bad condition it being necessary to shovel through drifts mile after mile, but his car has made a path and if there is no more snow the only difficulty will be a landslide two miles from the summit on the California side where a portion of the road has almost disappeared and Mr. Crandall nearly lost his car. A temporary bridge in his opinion will have to be built here, and he believes it will take a week to make this portion of the highway passable.

BIG GAME PLENTIFUL IN STATE OF MONTANA

Helena, Mont., Apr. 4.—Never has the state press contained so many stories of killings of big game. For some reason not explained, bear and mountain lions seem actually to be rowing in numbers in Montana. This news, while it delights the hunter, is discouraging to the ranchman, as wild animals cause more loss to cattle, horse and sheep raisers than any other factor. Losses in the forest reserves are reported to be especially heavy.

Bounty offered by the state, by some of the counties and in some sections by associations of stockmen make hunting a profitable pastime, although it is arduous enough where the snow lies deep. Wolves are especially numerous and ravenous, it should seem, and reports of their slaughter are frequent, although it must not be inferred that wolf-killing is a simple matter since old plainmen often follow them for days without luck. In some sections of Montana ranchmen's associations have salaried men after the wolves while in the forests, the ranchers wage perennial war with them and with the bears and mountain lions. Grizzlies are becoming rare, but black and brown bears of the smaller variety are plentiful. These last are not dangerous except when cornered, but the Montana grizzly—Old Silver Tip—is well let alone by the amateur and even the sturdiest veterans as a rule give him a wide berth.
