The high cost of deliveries is really a myth

Lots of people have been telling you that all grocery deliveries are expensive. That they greatly increase the cost of your food.

That you ought to save this cost by carrying your groceries home.

On the contrary our customers find our delivery system really economical.

It doesn't add to the cost of their groceries and

It saves their time and energy—which they can more profitably devote to their homes or to various outside interests.

Of course, if our business were small a delivery sys-tem would be reflected in slightly higher prices, but with so many hundreds of customers the cost per customer becomes practically nothing.

In addition we believe our customers-are entitled to this service. We feel that it is part of a grocer's business to make deliveries. Our whole organization is built to serve you in this, and other ways.

For example, we maintain a telephone for your convenience. We extend credit. We carry the highest quality groceries we can buy. And we suggest to you various things we know to be especially good. We take an interest in what you buy-when we sell

What has to cause them to be regarded as injurious obstacles to be cast out upon the dust heaps of history? It seems to me that that is a question which at least deserves our consideration

SELF-STARTER WANTED

There has lately been much said in speeches by prominent men and many columns printed in the daily press anent a building revival

An Eastern writer argues prices are not going to drop and urges those who have building to do to start at once, regardless of high wages. Another Eastern man, a professor of a well known college, says of business, and especially a building boom, is for a few to start the process and others will quickly fall into

But there is the sticker! Where is the Arnold Winkelreid to lead the charge against the phalanx of depression? It will take a brave man, for the reason that most people are of the opinion that prices are bound to drop and that wages will follow. Mr. Average Man will therefore make what improvements are necessary to conduct his business and not speculate or make unnecessary investments until that day arrives. The statements of Prof. Blank to the contrary will have about as much effect on a revival of building as would the vicious kick of a well known ant in starting a stalled freight train.

BAILEY ACHIEVING FAME

Rex Lampman, Oregonian correspondent in France, has the following to say of Seth Bailey, a Grants Pass soldier in France:

"Sergeant Seth T. Bailey, who was born and grew up in the Applegate country of Southern Oregon, and who left for camp as a member of the Dallas company, has achieved fame throughout the A. E. F. as the author of the "Dear Henry" letters, published in the soldiers' newspaper, the Stars and Stripes, of whose staff he is a member. A collection of the letters is shortly to be published by the Stars and Stripes in book form, with illustrations by Wallgren, the Stars and Stripes cartoonist. "Dear Henry," in which the joys and sorrows of a doughboy's life are amusingly set forth, should have an immense sale among the soldiers. Sergeant Bailey was a reporter on The Oregonian for a time, and also worked on the Observer at Dallas. He served on the Mexican border. At the time of America's entrance into the war he was, I think, summoned from California, where he was running a country paper, to join his company at Dallas. Although tached from regular duty for his work on the Stars and Stripes, his regiment belongs to the 41st, or Sunset division, which is expected to sail for America in June. The Stars and Stripes, it is understood will publish its last issue some time about the first of June. Sergeant Bailey 'covered" many of the battles of last August and September, when the Americans were driving the Heinies out of the positions they had held securely for four years. He is entitled to wear two wound chevrons, one for being hit with "HE"-which is army talk for high explosive-and of mustard gas."
