REAL THRIFT

The government through its campaign to encourage popular savings in thrift and war savings stamps, has brought the word "thrift" into commoner usage than ever. One hears it on every hand. Yet how many people who use it realize that thrift is a preliminary process and entirely distinct from saving?

The thrifty person is not the one who puts 25 cents into a thrift stamp which should be put into a pair of new shoe laces, or five dollars into a W. S. S. which should be set aside that week for meat.

Thrift only paves the way for saving. It considers carefully present needs and future possibilities and decides what are necessary expenses, setting aside such a portion of the income as will provide for them. It also determines what are unnecessary expenses, and stops the outgo of money for them.

That is not thrift which neglects either process, nor can there be any security in savings when either is neglected. The essential item of expenditure, temporarily ignored, will have to be met finally, probably by taking from the savings what should never have been put there. The unnecessary expenditure oft repeated means no savings at all.

Thrift holds the scale between the two, and upon the nicety with which a balance is maintained between legitimate expenditure and waste will depend present comfort and future prosperity.

Bootleggers beware! Governor Olcott has appointed Frank Hopkins, the "Shooting Deputy" of Canyonville, to run down smugglers of liquor. While Hopkins is accused by some of being too sudden on the hair-trigger, nevertheless he generally brings back the man he goes after. There is sure to be trouble for someone.

Rogue River salmon fishermen are getting a fancy price for their catch, but they deserve it. If you don't think so, just get into a small boat and glide down the stream on a dark night. It isn't everyone that can shoot the rapids safely while handling a net, and dodge all the whirlpools and snags.

The automobile driver who breaks the speed limit while on the city streets may be all that pedestrians say he is, yet is he any worse than the jay walker who persists in sauntering along at not over thirty rods an hour and compels the driver to stop while he leisurely passes out of the way?

The closing of the highway between Glendale and Riddle was just a small sample of government ownership. Thank goodness autoists can now at least glide past that place in the night. Al Burleson, however, is showing the country a genuine sample of government ownership.

The Roseburg News states that the Umpqua Valley Fruit union has sent out 21 cars of Broccoli and the independent shippers three more cars. We believe that record could be duplicated right here in the Rogue River valley.

It is about time to warn a temperate nation once more against wood alcohol. Drink grain alcohol and you see double; drink wood alcohol and you won't see at all. It poisons the optic nerve and often brings permanent blindness.

Right now the highway commission appears to be the most popular commission in Oregon. But just wait until you hear the howl go up from those sections that were not looked upon with favor.

A dispatch says that autograph letters of Woodrow Wilson were recently auctioned in New York. One three-page letter brought $90. Wonder if it was the appeal to the voters made last October?

War may be all that Sherman said it was, but to Europeans peace doesn't seem to be exactly heaven.

MEDFORD ELKS COME IN FORCE

"Howya Gonna Keep 'em Down on the Farm" and the monologue by Geo. T. Collins were decided hits, after which Herbert Alfred, supposed to be the wildest Elk in captivity, sang "Can You Tame Wild Wimmen." It was a frenzied song sung by a frantic man.

The male quartette, Maddox, Fish, Vawter and Corliss, received genuine applause and were repeatedly encared, Mr. Vawter later singing "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows," a beautiful ballad. The end song by Quisenberry and Jerome, whom it is rumored are past-masters in the art of minstrelsy, fairly brought down the house. The song was entitled "Oh Death Where Is Thy Sting," and there were many Elks present who really believed there was no sting in death, if the song told the truth. Following this was a march song, "Dixie Military Ball" by Herbert Alfred, a specialty by Geo. T. Wilson, and another specialty by Quisenberry and Jerome.

Mr. Wilson, as interlocutor, was perfectly at home and his burlesque interpretation of three school boys reciting a piece was a fitting climax to the merriment. We would especially recommend Mr. Wilson as a "heavy tragedian." The minstrel closed by a chorus, "Good Bye Folks, We're Going Home."

The program was in two parts, during the intermission George E. Lundburg of the First National bank making a brief talk in the interest of the coming Victory loan. Mr. Lundburg pointed out what a fine investment the Victory loan offered and urged the people to give it their united support.

There are 50 Elks in Grants Pass, and after the performance a sumptuous banquet was given the Elks at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, the guests departing for home about 2 o'clock this morning.

The Elks came, saw and conquered and mirth-lovers of Grants Pass, all of whom sincerely hope that this will not be the Medford troupe's last appearance in our city.

SAFE, GENTLE REMEDY BRINGS SURE RELIEF

For 200 years GOLD MEDAL Haarlum Oil has enabled suffering humanity to withstand attacks of kidney, liver, bladder and stomach troubles and all diseases connected with the urinary organs, and to build up and restore to health organs weakened by disease. These most important organs must be watched, because they filter and purify the blood; unless they do their work you are doomed.

You need. Take three or four every day. The healing oil soaks into the cells and lining of the kidneys and drives out the poisons. New life and health will surely follow. When your normal vigor has been restored continue treatment for a while to keep yourself in condition and prevent a return of the disease.

THE JUNIOR RED CROSS WORKERS OF FUTURE

One of the three divisions of the Red Cross upon which great emphasis was laid, at the second annual conference of the chapters of the Northwestern division of the American Red Cross held at Seattle April 10, 11 and 12, was the Junior Red Cross—the Red Cross of the future.

On Friday a dinner-conference was held for all who were working in that line, and was attended by 100 delegates. Experiences and methods were explained as practiced in different chapters, and at the conclusion of the dinner Robert Max Garrett, director of Junior Red Cross of this division, announced the awarding of four of the 50 handkerchiefs made by Serbian children and sent to national headquarters as a gift to the American Red Cross. Six thousands orphans, their leaders having been killed—were rescued by members of the Red Cross and placed in an orphanage in Archangel; out of gratitude for this rescue the gift was sent. The awards were made to the Junior Red Cross of the country, one handkerchief being sent to each state, and to Alaska, and given to the Junior branch of the chapter in the state which had done the best all round work during the war. The Oregon award was to Josephine county Junior Red Cross.

The future of the Junior work was briefly outlined by Mr. Garrett as a general meeting of the conference as follows:

- Relief to suffering children.
- Stimulation of community activities.
- Making friends with the children of the world.
- Developing the idea of universal service.

Of the dues of 25c a year to be required in the future, 50 per cent will be used for the relief of suffering children abroad, and 40 per cent for home children who may be suffering.

Production work in general came to an end for the Juniors at the signing of the armistice, as owing to the prevalence of influenza, school work was greatly interrupted and the time needed to develop good citizenship through application to school work.

In September a manual will be issued explaining the conditions as then existing, especially in the foreign lands, and a monthly bulletin will be issued ten times a year, beginning in September 1919, at a cost of 50c a year, to keep the schools informed regarding the plans and accomplishments of the Junior Red Cross as they concern our home and international work. As with the Senior Red Cross, the keynote is SERVICE. MARY D. CANBY.
