RAIL DEFICIT $400,000,000

most familiar with traffic conditions and with the financial requirements of the railroads approximate this increase at from 15 to 25 per cent over and above the present rates.

Administration officials deny any intention to raise the rates. They have denied this possibility repeatedly, but schedules of new rates have been prepared and are now before the director general for his consideration. He may decline now to order an increase, as he has heretofore, but between now and early fall it is predicted by the most expert students of transportation that freight rates will be increased.

They point out that before the roads are returned to private ownership and operation, the roads must be prepared to earn the standard return without the government being called upon to supply deficits between earnings and standard return from general taxes.

All agree that the $1,000,000,000 in additional wages is a permanent burden that cannot be reduced now if ever, and they are equally positive that failure to earn the return cannot permanently be cured by resort to appropriations from taxpayers' money.

SERVICE

What the public is interested in, insofar as power and light companies are concerned, is SERVICE. If a power company does not give proper service, the consideration which the public has extended to the power company is not returned. Enlightened modern management recognizes this fact and therefore makes every effort within its financial and physical ability to render such service. This is not only a sentimental consideration. It is best business policy. No power company can successfully operate in a community amid dissension, discord and dissatisfaction between itself and its patrons. It has been the experience of this company that its efforts to render good service have been understood and appreciated, and that it has been supported in its endeavors to so arrange its affairs as to give such service.

The year just passed has been an extremely trying one. Many of our men were called to the colors. Requisition by the government for war time needs made it impossible to secure many kinds of equipment and material used in our business, and what could be obtained by release was most expensive, still we struggled on for SERVICE, and it has been a matter of special gratification to the company to note the cheerfulness with which our patrons have excused the little interruptions which conditions made it impossible to avoid. The current year will see an improvement which we believe will fully satisfy our friends.
