POULTRY FACTS

TO INCREASE POULTRY STOCK

New Opportunities for Specialists to Co-operate With Raisers in Best Production.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

While the main effort in the campaign to increase the nation's stocks of productive poultry is to be directed to the general farmer and the city householder, it does not follow that the specialist in poultry production cannot render good service in this cause. He may find it desirable and conducive to his greater profit to diversify his farming by devoting more attention to live stock other than poultry and to producing a larger proportion of his feedstuffs on his own ground.

It may be doubtful in some cases whether a special poultry farm can operate profitably along the same lines as in the past. The grower of table poultry can use his stock, plant and equipment for production along some other line that will be profitable at this time. Indeed, in most cases he must so adapt his business to changed conditions or sacrifice what he has invested in it.

Every farmer that becomes interested in increasing and improving his farm poultry, and every town resident who begins to keep poultry in the back yard is going to buy stock or eggs for hatching, or baby chicks. This should cause at least the normal demand for birds, eggs and stock in the early part of the year, and also stimulate demand for pulllets in the fall.

The attention of poultry breeders who want to produce to meet popular demands may well be called to the advantage of the "farming out" method of producing stock in quantity. Farmers who are interested in increasing and improving their stock and town people who have room to grow more chickens than they wish for themselves will in many cases find it an advantage to grow stock for a breeder in their vicinity. With so much new interest developing, it should be easier than usual to get breeders and the poultry keepers near them to co-operate in the production of flocks, for laying especially. Such an arrangement is to the advantage of both. It reduces the cost of getting good stock to the grower and the risk on growing stock to the breeder.

The success of this line of work and co-operation depends very largely upon early hatching, and that in turn depends much upon the breeders beginning at once to interest their neighbors in growing chickens for them. Whether he farms out stock or not, every poultry keeper who looks forward to better times in poultry culture should do his part to bring them, by producing all that he can handle at home.

GEESE AS PRODUCERS OF FAT

Importance of Adequate Number of Fowls in Poultry Scheme is Quite Apparent.

Geese hold a sector in the line of the poultry army that makes war against waste. When the facts are taken into consideration that the demand for geese is strong, steady and extends over practically the whole year, that geese excel all other kinds of poultry as producers of fat, a thing of which the world stands at present in dire need, and that their value as egg producers is considerable, the importance of an adequate number of geese in the poultry scheme becomes apparent. Geese take their living in large part from grasses of the pasture and need range of this nature to be kept at a profit.

Crow Has Earned Farmer's Hate.

Most commonly the crow is hated by the farmer because it pulls up the young corn to get the soft seed kernels at the root, and everywhere is to be seen the scarecrow in the newly planted corn fields. Later on the damage they do to the corn crop can hardly be estimated, because they peck the end of the young ears, allowing the water to enter the shuck and rot the corn.

RIFLE THAT BOONE CARRIED

Old-Fashioned Flint Lock Said to Have Been Brought to Wisconsin Town by Southerner.

Daniel Boone's rifle, a genuine old-fashioned flint lock, carried by Boone on many a perilous trip in the dark and bloody hunting ground of Kentucky and on his famous Indian hunting expeditions, was recently brought into a hardware store in a small town in southwestern Wisconsin for much needed repairs. It is now the property of a Mr. Rafter, formerly of Mississippi, who recently traded his 2,300 acre plantation for Wisconsin property and has moved his effects north. The rifle was given him by a doctor, to whom it had been given by an aged hermit living in the mountains of Tennessee.

The rifle is a formidable affair, a real "long rifle," one of the type that gave the nickname of the "long rifles" to our western frontiersmen. It has a barrel 46 inches long, is 45 caliber, a flint lock with a patchbox of Indian silver, and weighs ten pounds. The end of the butt is set with a wild boar's tusk, and has the double or set trigger. On the side of the stock are carved with a jackknife the words, "Boon's True Fren," on the walnut stock the initials D. B. and five most significant and sinister notches, each notch standing for "one good Indian." At the lower end of the stock is a long and deeply cut gash said to have been cut by an Indian tomahawk thrown at Boone. What happened to the Indian is not recorded.

The rifle, badly broken in shipment, has been repaired and is now on exhibition.—Exchange.

LIBERIA IS REACHING OUT

Tribes of That Country, It is Said, Are Accepting the Teachings of the Missionaries.

Piyeoyo Gbe Wolo, a Liberian of the Kra tribe, who graduated from Columbia university, says:

There never has been a scientific census of Liberia, but the population is estimated at from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000, and not more than 15,000 are Americo-Liberians, the descendants of liberated slaves. The remainder belong to tribes which speak four different languages and offer only nominal submission to the government. The Kra elect their kings by the selection of the most available man of the royal house. In the Jarro way tribe the king is an absolute monarch for the reign of six years, and is then put to death. Other tribes also follow different customs.

The tribes do not acknowledge the government of Monrovia, because they feel that it does not protect them. By treaty the United States government is required to help the Americo-Liberians against the tribes, and in 1912 this country helped put down a rebellion of the Kra.

The constitution of Liberia has a literacy test, which has heretofore excluded most of the natives from voting, as the central government is unable to undertake their education. The Gbias are being taught by Episcopal missionaries, and the Fulings, who are Mohammedans, are also gaining the franchise. The Kra are very ambitious and are also catching up. There are more than 50 Liberians of the native tribes studying in the United States.

ENDLESS CHAIN NOT MYSTICAL

Doctor Fighting Influenza Explains How Curative Serum Went From Patient to Patient.

The prevalence of influenza and pneumonia with their high death rates makes it imperative to resort to heroic methods of treatment rather than to follow the accepted ones only. The lack of serum or other specific remedy for influenza, writes Dr. Charles R. Humbert in the Medical Record, together with the inability to obtain anti-pneumococcus serum forced me to use convalescent serum.

The Endless Chain.—It is a well-known fact that persons convalescing from pneumonia have antibodies in their blood streams. As soon as the patient's condition permits, therefore, they are bled as much and as frequently as possible.

Serum is prepared and treated, and is placed in stock. When another patient comes in with pneumonia, treatment is begun. When convalescence sets in the above procedure is repeated. It is a case of one gives serum to two, two gives serum to three and so on, the procedure becoming endless.

Censor's Office Boy.

It must be the censor's office boy who is responsible for some of the vagaries of the blue pencil. Not long ago some patriotic soul quoted Kipling's line from the "Recessional," "The captains and the kings depart." He had the surprise of his life when the word "kings" was struck out. But worse is now reported. Another scribe, greatly daring in the meatless days, quoted Thomas Hood's joke in an article on "Wayside Graves," or something equally solemn: "So they buried Ben at four cross-roads With a stake in his inside."

That was too much for the censor's office boy. A stake in his inside, indeed. The censor's office boy knew if he knew how to spell that the food controller would never sanction a whole "streak"—a fine sauculent, juicy steak, in anybody's inside. So he deleted the offending lines. Who shall say that we are not ardently patriotic people?—London News.

Slow Sartorial Reconstruction.

The question of civilian equipment has its humorous as well as its serious aspects for the honorably discharged soldier or sailor. Some are lucky enough to return immediately and completely to "civils," while others, less fortunate, must content themselves with a sort of half and half adornment. It no longer causes astonishment to detect a pair of tently creased trousers hanging stiffly beneath military khaki overcoat, or to see the short blue jacket of the sailor covering an otherwise perfect civilian outfit. These are some of the minor problems of reconstruction.—New York Sun.

Remarkable Repair Ship.

To enable the American destroyers and chasers in British waters immediately to effect repairs and renewals, there was a repair ship stationed at Queenstown of a remarkable character. The vessel, of about 5,000 tons, was a floating machine shop, foundry and store, able to do any kind of repair work short of drydock work. The bakery produced long loaves of crusty bread for all the ships, and once created a most elaborate birthday cake for Admiral Sims.
