OFFICER WARNS AGAINST PEDDLERS IN UNIFORM

Portland, June 13.—Anticipating rich returns from peddling buttons, posters and other souvenirs during the rose festival, at least 200 men in uniform descended upon the city...

This is simply misuse and abuse of the uniform for the purpose of disposing of cheap and shady articles," he declared. "These men don't give change and their whole system is a grafting scheme on the part of civilians. They are not selling the articles—they are selling the service chevron, the empty sleeve and the honor of the fellows left in Flanders fields."

The lieutenant claims that he has heard of instances where former soldiers in uniform in the last few days left good-paying positions to sell victory and welcoming buttons, posters and automobile stickers in the business district.

From panhandling of this sort they can make at least $25 per day," he stated. "The other night at the Add Club banquet I saw them clean up $125 in a few minutes. No change was given when purchases were made.

"Discharged soldiers don't have to do this sort of a thing for a living. They don't need that kind of sympathy and any temporary assistance can be given them by the Red Cross. When you buy you are patronizing the greatest faking instrumentality ever put in the hands of the country."

Experience in other cities has shown that a large percentage of the men taken in custody have never been in the service.

CODE OF THE YUKON

Mitchell Lewis, who will be remembered for his excellent work in "The Barrier" and several other strong mountain pictures, will appear in his first Select Picture, "Code of the Yukon," at the Joy Theater, on Friday and Saturday. This picture is the story of Jean Dubois, a French Canadian prospector who has discovered a gold mine. Jean is quietly storing away what dust he is able to wash out each day in the hope that he will soon have enough to leave the north woods on a long journey. He is anxious to start on the hunt for the man who wronged his sister. This is his main object in life.

Suddenly his calm is broken. A horde of gold seekers come to his part of the land. A village soon springs up. "Faro" Telford, a renegade gambler, whom Jean had befriended, is the cause. He has informed his friends that Jean has discovered a gold mine. A gang of mining crooks try to steal the mine. They persuade his wife to leave him. She runs away with one of the members of the gang. Jean is heartbroken but decides to leave the village to devote all his energy to discovering the man who wronged his sister.

Just as he is about to leave the village a girl who is in the employ of Cregan, the leader of the gang of crooks, and who is in love with Jean, informs him that she knows the man who harmed his sister. She tells him that it is Cregan, the same man who has ruined her life. Eventually Cregan and Jean meet. Just as Jean is about to crush his life out a Higher Power intervenes and Cregan is punished in Gods way.

Jean's wife returns to him and convinces him that she has not really done anything wrong. He forgives her and sunshine again enters his life.
