An Eccentric Comedy at the Joy

Pictures in which Dorothy Gish appear never are tame, neither are they conventional, for the star is such a little dynamo of energy, so unexpected and fascinating in her comedy eccentricities that she gives life and individual character to any story. "Boots" is no exception. It is a first class production irrespective of the star, and with her it becomes an altogether delightful entertainment.

This is a spy story with variations —the variations of a humorous character being supplied by Miss Gish as a slavey in a London boarding house where she falls in love with Richard Barthelmess, not knowing that he is in the employ of the secret service.

Dorothy Gish is an 100 per cent star. She has made, in the past year, five pictures, every one of them a success.
Richard Barthelmess, who plays opposite Miss Gish, is another of the coming stars. Already he has been starred in "Broken Blossoms," the latest Griffith production and so artistic was his work in this feature that he is already under contract to appear in another big special.

"Boots" will be shown for the last time tonight at the Joy theater.
