PANNING OUT GOLD ON COLLIER CREEK

C. M. Maupin, who resides on the Elihu Fry place a couple of miles above Agness on the Illinois river, was in town the first of the week on business. Mr. Maupin mentioned an incident which illustrates the many opportunities to be found in the up river country. A couple of young fellows, Anthony Johnson and Geo. Gentry, both of Portland, came in there recently to spend a few weeks outing on Collier creek, taking along a prospector's outfit to pass away the time. The boys struck a small bar on that stream and were lucky enough to find the gold panning fairly good so will remain there all summer and perhaps during the winter as well if their luck continues.—Gold Beach Reporter.

Insurable Values Higher—

H. H. Allyn a few days ago received a circular from the assistant manager of the U. S. Fire Insurance company suggesting that he will be able to increase the insurance values on buildings inasmuch as the higher cost of construction gives all buildings a higher value. The jail sentence of 60 days at first imposed on Mims, Saturday, was that day suspended during good behavior, but his fine of $150 and Bell's fine of $200 still stand.—Medford Tribune.

POPULAR GIRL TO BE WEDDED IN BOSTON

On Tuesday evening Miss Beulah Williams, one of the most popular and charming girls of Grants Pass' younger set, left on a trip which will include Seattle, Chicago and eastern cities, and which will end in Boston, Mass., where Miss Williams will be married to Ned Cooper formerly of this city. A large number of friends were at the train to see the prospective bride depart, and to send with her their congratulations and sincere wishes that she might enjoy the happiest of futures.

The couple will be married at the home of the groom's parents, in Boston, and after the wedding will make a tour through Maine.

On Friday Mrs. Sam Baker and Mrs. A. K. Cass gave a delightful luncheon at the Baker home, in honor of the bride-to-be. The rooms were charmingly decorated with sweet peas, Shasta daisies and hollyhocks, and beneath the chandelier were pictures of Miss Williams and Mr. Cooper.

After the guests had assembled, Miss Williams was escorted into the room by her sister, Miss Veona Williams, and after taking her place at the table a white wagon was drawn in by little Constance Baker and Lucy Cass, who were dressed as a soldier and a butterfly. The wagon contained many beautiful and appropriate gifts. A two-course luncheon was served to Mesdames Wolke, Hair, Kemp, Lundburg, Llum, Sabin, Cornell, Slade, Pattillo, Riddle, Cass and Baker, and Misses Quinlan, Wolke, Pattillo, Ross, Cornell, Sabin, Riddle, Veona Williams and the guest of honor, Miss Beulah Williams.
