THOSE ALIENS

Authorities say that the ports of Europe are thronged with immigrants eager to come to this country, but that most of these are undesirable, seeking to dodge the burdens of their own people, and likely to foment trouble if allowed to come here.

Badly as America needs labor, there is more need of a protective immigration policy if the abuses of America's hospitality are not to go on.

The first step in such a policy is the sifting of these people in their own countries, through the establishment of bureaus in the great centers abroad which shall examine every applicant for immigration to America so carefully as to prevent the questionable from even heading this way.

The next step is a better handling of the situation here. Ex-mayor Ole Hanson of Seattle, who has had some strenuous experience with alien populations, thinks there should be such a distribution of immigrants when they arrive here as will prevent the formation of large racial settlements.

Probably a better solution is more vigorous Americanization work right in these foreign settlements. The alien is not the only one who does not mix. What of his American host who handles him with tongs because he is an alien, instead of grasping him by the hand as an embryo American? Who calls him "Guinea," "Wop," and "Hunky," and exploits him to the limit? The immigrant will cling to his old nationality until somebody shows him a better one.

Get only the good ones here, and make them glad they came. Then, if in spite of all efforts, they remain obnoxiously alien, send them home.

THE MATTER WITH LABOR

"What's the matter with labor?" was the question put by an assemblage of business men to Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

"The matter with labor," he replied, tersely, "is the high cost of the commodities of life." Then he gave this simple analysis of the price situation:

Costs are high for four reasons: The waste of war, inflation of currency, slackened production and the greed of profiteers.

It is an old story now, but seldom so neatly summed up. Here, in a dozen words, is the substance of many speeches and editorials.

And what is the matter with labor is the matter with everybody.

laboma, chairman of the democratic congressional committee, is as usual a loyal follower of President Wilson. In 1917 when Ferris voted against the amendment to increase the compensation of soldiers to $30 a month he evidently followed a Wilson leadership for Secretary of War Baker was on record in a letter in opposition to the amendment. Recently when President Wilson asked the house of representatives not to take a series of three-day recesses because of the importance of legislation to check the high cost of living, Ferris spoke and voted against the proposed recess. Immediately thereafter, however, he packed his grip and started for a two weeks' political campaign in Oklahoma. President Wilson is out on a tour of the country. Wilson and Ferris agree in holding congress to its work but abandon their own posts of duty.

President Wilson objects to an amendment to the league covenant which would give the United States and Great Britain equal voting power in the league. To do so, in his opinion, would send the treaty back to conference, and, presumably, that would "break the heart of the world." To give Great Britain six votes to our one will break the pride of America, and break our prestige among nations.

Secretary of War Baker, who was an opponent of preparedness before he got control of the war department appropriations is now an ardent advocate of preparation for the next war. And it cost the country something like ten billions to convert him.

COSTA RICA HAS UNSOLVED

president, asked official permission to leave the country because of "ill-health." Both requests were granted and the two Tinoco were preparing to depart when Joaquin was shot down.

A few months before he met his death Joaquin began to take a strange interest in spiritualism. Frequently he went to a small village called Guadalupe where he consulted a woman medium, and after his last visit seemed disturbed by what she had told him. That same afternoon he returned home and telephoned for his car but it was out of order and he decided to go for a walk. A block from his residence a man stepped from behind a tree and fired at Tinoco point blank. The shot pierced his eye, causing almost instant death. Notwithstanding the suddenness of the attack, in the fraction of the section he remained alive, Joaquin had drawn his own revolver. The weapon was found in his clenched hand, every cartridge chamber full.

On the day after the tragedy Joaquin was buried with military honors and 48 hours later the remaining members of the Tinoco family, including the former president, left here for Port Limon in special trains where they sailed for Kingston, Jamaica, and thence intend to go to England.

The new president, General Juan Bautista Quiros, formerly manager of the Banco Internacional de Costa Rica, a government institution, and generally regarded as a conservative Costa Rican, is pledged to "restore order after two years of tyranny, and the leakage of public funds and, after a few months of reconstruction bring about free elections."

DANIELS SPEAKS TO VICTORIA CROWD

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 12.—"Canada and the United States during the century of neighborliness, have set an example for world emulation," was the declaration of Secretary of the Navy Daniels, at the reception tendered him here today by the Canadian club on his arrival with Admiral Rodman and a squadron of the new American Pacific fleet.

The head of the United States navy emphasized the comradeship which had existed during the great war between the fighting men of Great Britain and America and declared that the world looked to the leaders in the allied cause to mobilize for peace as they had mobilized and cooperated for war.

"The treaty which forbids forts and fortifications between the United States and Canada, or the presence of fighting ships on the Great Lakes, speaks trumpet-tongued of the brotherhood of the two people. Is it not more than that? Does it not presage the coming of the day, in the full fruition of the league of nations, when other nations will feel sufficient security in international justice not to feel the compulsion of maintaining powerful armies and continuing competitive naval building?"

"Canada and the United States during the century of neighborliness have indeed set the example for world emulation. We know each other too well for one to distrust the other. It is ignorance of each other which is the parent of most national misunderstandings and hatred. Intimate contact and close association have taught us that in our ideals, our hopes, our aims there is no difference between the people dwelling north of the invisible dividing line and those living south of it."

FALLS INTO DEEP WELL, LIVES TO MAKE BUTTER

Contrary to popular belief, it is not every drunk man who can fall down a 35-foot well and come out smiling and ready for the fray again, yet that is what a Rogue river valley cow did last week and she was not drunk either. Grazing near the old sugar factory, possibly searching for some beet pulp that had not yet been gobbled up, the cow fell into the well.

Just how the old cow attracted the attention of the busy outside world is not known, but she did, and R. R. Wilson, used to boring wells into old mother earth, came to the rescue. He secured Dr. Bestul's animal surgical belt, fitted a harness around her, and hoisted her to the surface.

This famous cow did not suffer any broken bones, and aside from a few minor scratches, is as good as ever and will soon be turning out golden butter at 75 cents per. Rogue river valley cows are not weaklings.

TESTIMONY REVEALS BUSINESS VENTURES

Portland, Ore., Sept. 12.—F. D. Dooty, of the Multnomah Lumber and Box company, testified today that after the aircraft board had approved the plan whereby the northwest spruce districts be allocated between the allies and the United States, each conducting its own operations, General Disque and Major Leadbetter blocked the plans.

The United States was to take the Puget Sound and Yaquina Bay districts.

B. F. Jones, mayor of Newport, was on the stand. Upon cross examination it developed that he is a joint owner with Leadbetter of a townsite at the terminus of the North Coast spruce division railroad in Lincoln county. Ralph Williams, republican national committeeman, and Albert Abrams are also interested in the project.

THIS HANDLESS MAN WILL NEVER GIVE UP

London, Sept. 12.—Blind and deprived of both hands, Sergeant Man M. Nichols of the Second Durham Light Infantry refused to be classed as an "unemployable" and today can write letters as proficiently as any normal stenographer. Nichols' restoration to a self-supporting basis was accomplished through patient training, a specially constructed typewriter, a pair of artificial aluminum hands and his own indomitable spirit. Recently he passed a writing test of two hours and fifteen minutes, his "copy" necessitating only two corrections.

Biliousness

WHEN you have a bilious attack your liver fails to perform its functions. You become constipated. The food you eat ferments in your stomach instead of digesting. This inflames the stomach and causes nausea, vomiting and a terrible headache. Take Chamberlain's Tablets. They will tone up your liver, clean out your stomach and you will soon be as well as ever. There is nothing better.
