

Making the Nation's Credit Liquid

Reservoir systems insure a steady water supply in every city and large town. The faucet is of very little value without the reservoir behind it.

The Federal Reserve Banking System is a simple and practical means of making the nation's credit liquid at all times.

As a member of that system, this bank is as independent of local conditions as it is humanly possible to make it.

S. S. Schell states that the road on the south side of the river will be open for traffic next Sunday. To take this road and not interfere with road construction, drivers should take the Park Lane road to the rock crusher, then go by the old sugar plant site to connect up with the paved road leading south. From there on they will have almost six miles of pavement to drive over, to the Jackson county line. Mr. Schell is now grading the road from the Sixth street bridge to the end of the present pavement, a distance of about one-third of a mile.
