MINING SEASON GOOD IN ALASKAN INTERIOR

Seward, Alaska, Jan. 5.—The mining season of 1919 was a successful one for miners and operators in the Alaskan interior, according to Captain W. Langley, a steam boat pilot, here recently on his way to Seattle to spend the winter. Many miners who had made little or nothing the previous year, "came back strong" with good cleanups last summer and fall, Captain Langley said.

According to Captain Langley, there is plenty of food stored up in the upper Kuskokwim river section to last until the arrival of boats in the spring. He carried four capacity cargoes up the river on the steamer Tana during the season.

REDDY GETS CHROME AWARD OF $86,000

Washington, Jan. 5.—Dr. J. F. Reddy, pioneer of the northwest, former mayor of Medford and one of the early settlers of Spokane, has received an award from the mineral relief commission which practically amounts to $86,000.

Dr. Reddy was one of those who went heavily into the chrome mining industry when the government advertised for men to "mine chrome and help win the war." His investments in chrome mines had reached high figures when the armistice was signed and Uncle Sam canceled all orders for the mineral.

The settlement, just announced, is made under an act of the last congress for the relief of those who sought patriotically to help the government by engaging in an industry that does not thrive in peace times because of foreign competition.

Dr. Reddy is here, and with John H. Haak, of Portland, Ore., and E. A. Dickey, of Oakland, Cal., will appear before the house ways and means committee to urge a protective tariff on chrome.
