NATIONAL INTERIORS
Louis Thomas, a noted French writer and economist rebukes French exporters for devoting nearly all their commercial attention to our big eastern cities and ignoring the interior.

This limited knowledge of the United States and large cities is most dangerous for France. I know, for example, that certain cities of from 50,000 to 100,000 inhabitants offer more markets to certain of our importers than other cities much more important, which have been previously exploited by Europeans and are now nearly saturated with merchandise from this side.

The United States is poorly known in France, because, despite the facility of communication, the human animal travels little, relatively, in these days, because he reads little, because his knowledge is limited, because it is rare to find men understanding and speaking perfectly foreign languages, and above all, because it is rare to find men having spirits sufficiently adaptable to enter into the views, habits, intellectual and moral, and the judgments of a foreign race, and to admit them as facts, without attempting to discuss or argue against them.

The Americans differ enormously from the French. That must be told to every young man about to embark for the United States. And it should not follow from that that a Frenchman should think himself either inferior or superior to the Americans he is going to encounter. He will have success if he exercises a little good sense.

We Frenchmen should study patiently and energetically the United States, for because of our ignorance, we are now selling to the Americans less than one-tenth of what we should be selling them. We allow the Germans and the Japanese to sell the objects which we manufacture with more art, more solidity and more good taste than any other nation on the globe.

This is not only good advice to French business men, but it may easily be turned into good advice for American business men, and also for American travellers. The plaint of the French attitude toward America holds true exactly of the American attitude toward France and most other countries.

THE CHARITY TRUST

The "community chest" is one of the admirable war ideas that are surviving the war. It seems to have become a permanent thing in dozens of cities. There is a campaign going on now in one of the big cities to raise, all at once, all the money needed to carry on more than 100 philanthropic institutions for the coming year. The sum wanted is $3,500,000. It will be provided cheerfully enough, too, because the citizens know from experience that it will cost them more, and make them a great deal more trouble, if they do not meet the demand in this sensible way.

It is a kind of charity trust, with a budget system. All the institutions, from the Associated Charities and Y. M. C. A. and big hospitals to the little orphanages and brotherhood club for paroled prisoners and home for aged colored people, furnish estimates of their needs, and have the estimates examined by experts, and a suitable proportion of the big fund assigned to them. Then they all pull together for the common cause, ignoring creed, class, color and every other mark of social division. They find that it pays in hard cash as well as in mutual good feeling and fellowship. It leaves hundreds of practical philanthropists free to give real service throughout the year instead of having to spend most of their time begging. It is a grand lesson in cooperation.

DEMOCRATIC M. C. OUT AFTER ADMIRAL SIMS

Washington, Jan. 21.—Senator Walsh, Montana, democrat, and a member of the senate naval committee today introduced a resolution in the senate declaring the action of Rear Admiral Sims in making public "official instructions of the most confidential character" affecting international relations, deserved the condemnation of all Americans. Republican Leader Lodge objected to his request for immediate consideration, thereby causing it to be put over.

Foley's Honey and Tar is the best known and most successful family cough medicine on the market and the following letter is positively true and genuine: Says "It Acts Like Magic"

Gilbert Fleming, 5911 Builong Av., Los Angeles, Cal., writes: "I have much pleasure in testifying to the very great benefit my family and I have derived from the use of Foley's Honey and Tar. It positively acts like magic, and to my mind there is nothing on the market that can compare with it. Whenever there are any of our household suffering from heavy colds or bad coughs or soreness, we at once get a bottle from our local drug store, and after one or two doses obtain instant relief. Your company deserves great credit for such a valuable production and from our own experience we cannot do otherwise but recommend it to our friends and this we willingly do and will continue to do so."

IMPORTANT MEETING JOSEPHINE FARMERS

A meeting of the Josephine County Farm Bureau will be held at the courthouse in Grants Pass on Saturday, January 24th, at 1 p. m., for the purpose of inviting the farmers of Josephine county to associate themselves with the Farm Bureau and the Farm Bureau Exchange.

As the success of this movement depends entirely on the cooperation and support it receives from the farmers themselves it is to be the duty of every farmer in the county to assume his share of the responsibility for the successful operation of this organization, especially when it is taken into consideration that the county, the state and the government are sharing in the expense to sustain this institution for the benefit of the farmer.

This movement is nationwide in its scope and is probably destined to become one of the leading factors in the nation-wide effort to better the condition of the farmer socially, educationally and economically.

Cooperation in the fullest sense of the word, based on good will towards man, seems to be the keynote of the hour and finds its vibrating echo manifested in almost every activity all over the world.

Let us get together and bring lots of good cheer, good will and ourselves into this meeting. Tell your neighbors about it.
