What the doctor ordered

THE OLD FAMILY DOCTOR knew what he was talking about. It wasn't medicine that the overworked housewife needed. It was a rest from the slavery of antiquated house-keeping methods. What the doctor ordered is to be found at this shop and belongs in every home.

ARTIST REFUSES $200,000 TO KEEP VOW

Here is a man who works for love of art and who turned down an offer of $200,000 rather than leave unfinished the Freecons he had vowed to make in the Greek church of the Holy Trinity before returning to Greece. He is Theodor Tsavias, who came here from Greece 11 years ago to do sacred paintings on which he is now engaged at no salary. He receives a bare subsistence, yet when the letter came from Greece offering him a sum unheard of to him if he would return to adorn St. John's church in Marathon, he briefly replied, "Tell them I shall be glad to come when I have finished here four years from now."

SALT OF GREAT IMPORTANCE

Little Chore That is Often Neglected During the Summer Season—Regulates Digestion.

A little chore that is of great importance in summer and one that is often neglected, is that of salting the stock that is on pasture. Cattle, sheep and horses on pasture will consume more salt if they have a chance to do so than they will when receiving dry feed. Salt acts as a regulator of the digestive system and is necessary for proper growth and development, especially of the young growing animals.

Cleaning Rusted Tools.
 Elbow grease is usually the best thing to use when cleaning rust from steel, but the following manner has also been suggested: Fasten the steel tightly to a piece of zinc by means of wire and place it in a jar containing water to which sulphuric acid has been added. Leave it there until the rust has disappeared. If the article is very rusty add a little more acid from time to time. The process by which the rust is removed is electrical. The steel being in contact with the zinc short-circuited battery cells are formed, and the rust is reduced to iron again by electro-chemical action. The steel will become darkened by the process, but will regain its brightness if rubbed with sweet oil or a mixture of petrolatum and kerosene.

Safer.

At an Indiana high school the other day the athletic society was putting season tickets for ball games on sale. One of the most popular boys in the senior class came up to the desk at which the tickets were being sold, bought two, had his name inserted in the blank on one of the tickets and then reached for the tickets.

"But you haven't told us whose name to write on the other ticket," protested the ticket seller, "and the rules of the association require that all ticket purchasers have their names on their tickets."

Now, the senior had planned to pass the favor of his company along to several girls. "Well," he drawled, "if you have to write something in that blank, just write anonymous."

Orator's Long Sentences.
 Rufus Choate's sentences were so long and contained so many adjectives that it was said of him that he drove a substantive and six. In Choate's eulogy of Daniel Webster, delivered at Dartmouth, there is one sentence containing 710 words, and another with 1,219 words, the latter filling nearly two pages of the memorial volume, and reputed to be the longest sentence in the English language. The saying grace of Choate's long sentences was that they are as clear as a brook and as brilliant as a star.
