AUTO TOURISTS SOON DUE

Springtime is not far distant in Southern Oregon, and soon that great procession of automobile tourists that will keep the Pacific highway alive will be in motion.

The camp grounds in all cases are maintained as "free," though it has come to be an accepted thought that it is proper, and that tourists expect, that charge will be made for some of the necessities furnished.

CONSERVATION OF WILD LIFE
Laws to protect certain of its native wild animals have been passed by Arizona, and others are recommended by the state game warden.

EXPERT WORKERS WANTED

The great need in this country is for expert workers, according to a woman who conducts a large and successful millinery business.

ment, but her experience has been that her advertisements are not even answered. Persons who could do her work, if there are any such, will not even call to inquire about the jobs or the salaries, though both are attractive.

A leading jeweler complains of the same difficulty. He needs 20 expert jewelry makers. He succeeded in finding one old man to help him.

According to the milliner, people no longer want to do careful or good work, they want to do slovenly or easy work and get big money for it.

One reason why this condition is so prevalent is that easy-going America has consented to pay big wages for slovenly work in every department of its industrial life, from washing to watch-making, and this is one of the faults which must be corrected in the new industrial regime.

But there is a ray of hope in this milliner's plaint. It proves that the good old saying is just as true as it ever was—"you can't keep a good man down." Any one who will take the trouble to fit himself for expert work is sure of a good place and good pay.

abundance at one time. We used them lavishly and wastefully, and suddenly there are no more. Perhaps some day citizens may recognize the warning and heed it—just in time to save a few of nature's priceless gifts.

NOTORIOUS MEXICAN BANDIT LEADER DEAD

Mexico City, Jan. 26.—Dispatches from Uruapan tell of the death, while attacking the Tepenahua ranch of Jesus Cintora, regarded as one of the most ruthless bandits in the Michoacan-Jalisco region.

An optimistic note has been sounded by Brigadier General Pablo Gonzalez, operating in the oil regions, who says that for more than two months, owing to the vigilance of government forces, the Pelaez rebels have attacked neither oil camps nor oil company paymasters.
