We Taste With the Nose, Really.

The sensation of taste, while of common and constant experience, is highly complicated in its nature. What is commonly called taste is not a simple sensation at all, but rather a complex. In addition to the actual functioning of the apparatus properly pertaining to the sense of taste, the tongue receives impressions of various other sorts, all of which go to make up this complexity. As finally recorded in the consciousness, the taste of any substance has to do with its heat or coolness, perhaps with a mild amount of pain, certainly with astringency or acidity—which are in themselves further complexities of thermic and tactile sensations—and above all with smell. The reader will probably agree that ice cream and coffee are entirely different from their true selves when served at inappropriate temperatures; and it is a matter of record that a person of the keenest taste may make the most ludicrous errors if asked, blindfolded and with his nose stopped, to identify substances placed in the mouth.—Boston Post.

Starting the Baby Right.

There are various methods of assuring good luck to an infant. In rural England, if its right hand is bound up for a short period soon after birth it will surely become wealthy. The Spaniards sweep their children's faces with fine bougias to assure good fortune, while to keep the Irish baby from harn a belt of woman's hair is placed about it, and to achieve a similar object Roman mothers tie red ribbons around the ankles of their offspring. In Holland garlic, salt, bread and steak are put in the cradle of the new arrival, while to protect their babies the mothers of Wales put in their cradles a pair of tongs or a knife. In Iceland, when the first tooth makes its appearance, a lamb is presented to the child, to be its "very own."

"Hear! Hear!"

It is reported that Great Britain's first lady M. P.'s first words in debate were "Hear, hear," and certainly they were appropriate to the occasion, for it was a woman who first used the phrase. If Samuel 20:16 tells us: "Then cried a wise woman out of the city, 'Hear, hear.'" Another lady's first words in parliament were equally brief. This was the countess Grey who was then an infant. She was being shown around the house of parliament by her father, Lord Selborne, and near the entrance to the chamber she was held up to a window to have a peep at the debaters inside. At that moment the swing-door flew open and members were startled to hear a shrill, childish treble crying, in tones of delight, "I see! I see!"

A Good Medicine for the Whole Family

Foley's Honey and Tar is a scientific combination of carefully selected remedies that experience proves loosens and breaks up a cough in short order.

Feels Like a New Man Now

Jas. Edwards, 208 Harriett St., Montgomery, Ala., writes: "I feel like a new man now from using Foley's Honey and Tar. I can sleep all night and cough but little. My whole family is using it—the little ones and the old ones. My wife tells me just as soon as the bottle gets low and I have to get another one. I have relieved all of our coughs and broke our colds. They are all in better shape than me now, and I am in good shape myself. My health is getting good—my cough is broken—the soreness in my chest is all gone, so many thanks to you for your treatment."

Foley's Honey and Tar COMPOUND

STOPS THAT DISTRESSING COUGH—checks it quickly and surely, clears the throat of phlegm and mucus, and coats the raw, inflamed surfaces with a healing, soothing medicine.

We can prove no imitation or substitute is as good as the genuine Foley's. SOLD EVERYWHERE.
