TIME FOR ACTION
 It is now less than two months to the Fourth of July. The arranging of a celebration of the day that will do credit to the community is a matter of time, and time is now short. The attractions that must be obtained for a proper program are now being engaged by forehanded cities, and within a few days more only the more commonplace or undesirable will be obtainable. There is always a difference of opinion in the policy of celebrating the Fourth of July, but with an undoubted preponderance of sentiment in favor, every citizen will lend his best effort and if Grants Pass goes ahead with the plan, it should be the greatest ever.

clude to come to Grants Pass, and will not arrange for celebrations of their own, as it is now the usual thing for cities not to attempt to celebrate annually, but to join upon occasion with their neighbors. Immediate invitation might now be extended in an official way to all of the neighbors, especially to the communities of Josephine county, and make of the day a get-together time for the people of the county. But let's get busy.

OUR HOME CANDIDATE
 Eugene Coburn has served Josephine in an official capacity for the past eight years, and has won universal commendation because of the efficient administration of his trust. Now, seeking a higher position, that of the office of secretary of state, Mr. Coburn is assured of the earnest and loyal support of those who know how well he has done his duty in the past. His record as Josephine's county clerk is assurance that the state affairs will be administered efficiently and economically under his direction and charge. It is a pleasure for his friends and associates at home to vote for him at the coming primary election, and the people of the state at large can well take their cue from here, and give Mr. Coburn their support. "Gene" will do to tie to.

Wallace Reid scores a veritable triumph in his latest starring vehicle, "The Valley of the Giants," a picture-ization of Capt. Peter B. Kyne's celebrated novel of the California redwoods playing tonight and tomorrow matinee and night at the Oregon theater.

Wallace Reid plays the role of Bryce Cardigan, son of James Cardigan, a pioneer California lumberman who had founded a city and opened up the lumbering industry. Before the death of his wife Cardigan had given to her a beautiful glade in the forest, which he named "The Valley of the Giants."

This entertaining photoplay is rounded out with a Sunshine comedy, "Footlight Maids."
