

Announcing— the Addition of a Trust Department to Our Regular Banking Facilities—

A RECENT act of Congress permits National Banks when authorized by the Federal Reserve Board to establish Trust Departments to carry on such business as would ordinarily be conducted by a Trust Company.

We have installed a staff of specially trained men and are ready now to serve any of your needs in this important department.

Let us explain to you in person our facilities. This bank has been authorized to act as trustee, executor, administrator, registrar of stocks and bonds, guardian of estates, assignee, receiver, committee of estates of lunatics or in any other fiduciary capacity in which state banks, trust companies, or other corporations which come into competition with national banks are permitted to act under the laws of this State.

Battle of Inkerman.

Inkerman is an elevated site in the Crimea, near the eastern extremity of the harbor of Sebastopol, memorable as the scene of a battle of the Crimean war between an army of 40,000 Russians and detached troops from the allied forces consisting of about 14,000 men. At about five o'clock on the morning of November 5, 1854, the Russians crowded up the slopes on which the allies were posted. Here a portion of the English Royal guards made a heroic stand against a body of Russians that was probably five times as numerous. When Russian victory seemed almost assured, French reinforcements came to the aid of the British, and by a splendid charge drove the enemy from the field.

Destroying "Nun" Moths.

A most remarkable contrivance is used in Germany to capture wholesale the "nun moths" that devastate the forests. It is provided with two powerful searchlights that draw the moths from miles away (the apparatus being placed on top of a building), and they are further attracted by a pair of arc lamps on either side of a suction ventilator. An electric motor causes the fans of the ventilator to revolve rapidly, thereby producing an intake of air that swallows every moth approaching within a few feet. Through the ventilator they pass into a wire-net cage. A single machine of this kind has been known to catch 100 pounds of moths in a night.
