VACCINE WINS GREAT BATTLE

Used Successfully in the Fight Against Pneumonia.

RESEARCH WORK GOES ON

United States Public Health Service Encouraged by Tests Made in Research Laboratories in New York—Shortage of Monkeys is Seriously Interfering With Progress of Research Work—Limitations of Serum Explained.

The United States public health service is experimenting with monkeys in the research laboratory in New York city for the purpose of establishing definitely the value of vaccine in the prevention of pneumonia and of serum in its cure.

The research work, in which 200 monkeys already have been used, began in Washington in March of last year in order to follow up remarkable results obtained in some of the army camps in the use of vaccine against pneumonia, which in the last two years has caused more deaths than any infectious disease. The experiments were started in the Army Medical school in Washington by Maj. Russell L. Cecil and Dr. Francis C. Blake, now of the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research. Both reported encouraging results to the New York County Medical society, and gave figures on the use of the vaccine at Camp Upton and Wheeler, indicating great value in the vaccine. Doctor Cecil is continuing the experiments with G. I. Steffen, a bacteriologist, for the United States public health service. The work will continue for a year or more before the research is considered complete.

Monkey Scarcity Retards Work.

The experiments are progressing slowly at present because of the scarcity of Philippine monkeys. There are so few in this country at present for medical work that they command a price of $20 apiece. Louis Ruhe, an animal dealer, who recently brought in a shipment of 700 monkeys from India, said it was difficult to import the animals, because freight shipping from the Orient was so brisk that ship owners would not allow space to animal importers, and because it was necessary to send men to India or the Philippines to look after the health of each cargo of monkeys.

Doctor Cecil, who stated in a report to the New York County Medical society that the pneumonia rate at Camp Wheeler among the unvaccinated soldiers was 26 times the rate for the vaccinated, has finished the experimentation on monkeys with Type 1 of pneumonia. These experiments are held to indicate that the vaccine gives protection against this type of pneumonia, and that the serum, given in time, cures it. The vaccine is an extract made from dead pneumococcus germs. The serum is taken from the blood of a horse inoculated with the germs. The theory is that the vaccine stimulates protective action in the blood of the human being to prevent the disease, while the serum contains an agency developed in the blood of the horse for combating the disease, which the human system makes against the disease after it had obtained a start.

A long series of preliminary experiments were made at the Army Medical school in Washington, which proves that pneumonia ran a course in the Philippine monkey of almost exactly the same nature as in man. After that monkeys were used in sets of two. The pneumonia germs of Type 1 were shot into the throats of one vaccinated and one unvaccinated.
