A HOME OWNING COMMUNITY

The next big problem that will claim attention in Grants Pass is that of housing its people. During the war period many of the citizens left these interior points to go to the centers of war industries, and there were houses in plenty. Now these people have returned and more are coming who want to make their homes here. There has been a lull in building operations during the past four years, and now Grants Pass, in common with other communities, will have to catch up. There has also, during the past few months, been a fever among the people here to own their own homes. Scores who had been renters have now become owners and houses for rent are pretty much out of the market. But many newcomers want to rent till they can look about and arrange for buying or building. And if they buy, another family is ordered to move, and there is no roof for them.

The Courier has on a number of occasions called attention to the need of local cooperation, through a building association or like organization, for providing homes for those who are not able through their own available resources to provide a home for themselves. There is no city so attractive, or whose citizens are so happy, as the city of home-owners. The home owner takes pride in his holding, and pride means that it is spruced up and made more attractive. Lawns are kept green, flowers and shrubbery are planted, and immediately there is a different air about the place. So to house the new people who come and to make the community a community of home-owners, some way should be found to assist in building and in purchasing for those who need the aid that they may get out of the renting class.

WHAT IS THE USE?

The railway wage increase was intended to make the income of the transportation workers of the country adequate to meet the cost of living. Unless it does so, the whole trouble will have been in vain. But there are plenty of people trying to keep it from remaining so.

AT THE MOVIES

The favorite Charles Ray goes straight to your heart again in a story of a boy's grit, a girl's devotion and a couple of old men who learn that love is better than hate. "Red Hot Dollars" is a Thomas H. Ince production and goes far to keep up the wonderful popularity that Chas. Ray now enjoys with the motion picture public.

governor, who added: "We should not by law abridge a man's right either to labor or quit his employment. However, neither labor nor capital should take action that would put in jeopardy the public welfare.

vania. The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen has a lodge of about 1600 members there. From one of the officers of this lodge, W. G. Lee, president of the brotherhood, has received a letter saying that immediately after the announcement of the railroad labor board's wage award, several of the members had received notice that their house rents would be raised $10 per month.

It seems hardly likely that natural causes operating in the field of real estate are responsible for these increases at this time. The instinctive belief of the average reader of such a bit of news would be that the landlords had waited to learn what the wage increase would be, in order to raise the rents "all the traffic would bear."

If everybody who serves the railroad men—which finally comes down to everybody who serves anyone in the country, is going to take advantage of the wage award to boost prices, nothing will have been accomplished at all.

This is pre-eminently the time for everybody who can possibly live on his present wages or profits to stand pat. A little self-denial in the way of luxuries, a little extra work to push production up out of the hole it has been in for five years, and the trick will be turned. Living will come down, there will be enough necessities for everybody, and life will be more comfortable and settled all around.—Eugene Register.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown will reside in Rogue River, where Mr. Brown is principal of the school, and Mrs. Brown an instructor, statement of policy as to what business men and workmen do by way of combination and collective action. The law is now so nebulous that it almost turns upon the predictions of the judge or jury. The rules of business should be made more certain so that on a stable basis men may move in confidence.

Disputes between capital and labor are inevitable, Gov. Cox said, and public opinion settles prolonged strikes. Declaring that "public opinion should determine in America," he said the government should occupy an impartial position, protect lives and property and, possibly at times, inquire into facts of a tie-up.

Advocating more home owners, Gov. Cox said that under democratic rule "the prosperity of the country had been widely diffused."

Praising American youth for its war service, Gov. Cox declared that the nation owes a debt to those who died and their dependents and to the wounded, who should be trained and rehabilitated. Also, he said, "we must realize that considerable compensation is due those who lose much by the break in their material hopes and aspirations."

The Mexican situation, the governor stated, has been "trying our patience for years," but now begins to show signs of improvement.

"Not the least of the things that have contributed to it," he continued, "is a realization by the people of that country that we have neither lust for their domain, nor disposition to disturb their sovereign rights."

On the railroad question, Gov. Cox advocated giving "a thorough test to private ownership" under government regulation, the latter now being accepted, he said. Financial credit for the roads, he stated, should be provided. Discrediting of government operation of the carriers was deplored as "unfair" and insincere.

"I accept the nomination of our party," he said in conclusion, "obedient to the Divine Sovereign of all peoples, and hopeful that by trust in Him the way will be shown for helpful service."

Trees Furnish Cloth.
 In the West Indies dresses are often worn made from the natural lacelike cloth which grows upon trees. The tree from which the lace is gathered has a curiously light hollow trunk something like bamboo. A long, smooth section is cut and soaked in water until the bark is softened. The lacelike cloth is closely packed together, forming the shell of the tree. When carefully pulled apart a lace-like fiber is found which is surprisingly tough and durable. By placing several thicknesses together a comparatively thick cloth is formed. These pieces are sewn together like any ordinary cloth and made into dresses. The lace is light yellow in color naturally, but often dyed with the bright colors so popular in the tropics.—Boys' Life.

Speed of Falling Bodies.
 Galileo first put the relative rates of speed of falling bodies to the test by dropping various weights from the top of the leaning tower of Pisa in Italy. He found that when let fall simultaneously they reached the ground almost at the same time, whatever their size or weight; any differences shown being due to the resistance of the air. If a coin and a feather are dropped together in a closed tube from which the air has been exhausted both reach the bottom at the same instant. In other words the force of gravity is constant at any place for all bodies and gives an acceleration or rate of speed to falling bodies of over 32 feet per second.

Things Worth Striving For

"I will not worry.
 "I will not be afraid.
 "I will not give way to anger.
 "I will not yield to envy, jealousy or hatred.
 "I will be kind to every man, woman and child with whom I come in contact.
 "I will be cheerful and hopeful.
 "I will trust in God and bravely face the future."
 Read them again.
 They are words worth while.
 Cut them out and paste or pin them where you will see them often. About all there is in life worth striving for is suggested in these few lines.

Houses, land, bonds, automobiles are fine possessions. But far more precious still to any man, in any station, are the treasures of the mind and soul—composure, courage, cheerfulness, tolerance, kindness, hope—all these and faith in something higher than what the eyes see and the hands hold.—Charles Grant Miller.
