CULTIVATE THE TOURIST
The prevailing shortage of gasoline, seemingly, has failed to check the steady ebb and flow of the automobile tourists. Scan the streets any day and you will find cars from various states in the union threading their way along the traffic-lined avenues of the city. A glance at the bronzed and animated occupants would indicate that they are not seeking health in more equable climes than their own, but each and every one, no doubt has an objective whose quest has carried the pilgrim far beyond the borders of the home state. Perhaps it may resolve itself into a search for a more favorable social environment or prospect for business investment.

Those from the prairie lands of the middle west may have grown weary of thawing out the frozen pump throughout the season of winter rigors. At any rate, would it not be a wise policy for the citizens to delegate a sort of reception committee not only to act as information bureau for these pilgrims, but to dispense literature advising them of the resources and opportunities for investment which abide in this realm of sunshine—where nature smiles in perennial, evergreen gladness?

The tourist appears to be a jovial, sociable fellow. His impulse of nomadic yearning in invading new fields would indicate that he is amenable to the influence of friends advances. Receptions of this sort to the stranger within our gates is bound to create a most favorable impression, while apathy and indifference on the part of the citizenry is sure to result in the opposite effect.

RECORD MAIL OF 6000 BAGS IS UNLOADED IN MANILA

Manila, P. I., Aug. 12.—Six thousand bags of mail reached here today on two steamers, the Empress of Russia and the Tyndarus, from Seattle and Vancouver. Postal officials said the shipment broke all records for one day mail receipts here.

ICE SHORTAGE

Owing to the unprecedented demand for ice, we are going to be a little short and are asking all users of ice to get along with as little as possible during the next few days, or until the present hot spell is broken.

We have made every effort to find some outside ice to ship in, but find that the shortage is general and it is impossible to obtain any.

We ask the cooperation of our friends and beg to assure you that we shall try to treat everyone fairly.

Mother Endearments.

A baby needs love and cuddling just as it needs its mother's milk, or baths, or clean clothes. The age-old mother endearments are the truest wisdom. They coax the awakening baby soul as the sun coaxes out the wild flowers in the springtime. They give zest to baby life, and without that zest babies grow listless and stupid, and many of them fade and die.

The Balsam Fir.

Canada balsam, as the balsam fir is sometimes called, is one of the beautiful evergreen trees. The needles of this tree, which are a deep, glistering green above and a lovely silver color below, are about three-fourths of an inch long.

Statutory Crime Charged—
Sheriff George W. Lewis and Deputy Ernest Lister were called to Merlin this morning on a statutory charge preferred by a stepdaughter of a Merlin resident named Protzman. Protzman was brought back to this city and was lodged in the county jail. The stepdaughter called the sheriff's office this morning and asked them to come at once. It appeared that Protzman was having some family troubles and when the girl was quizzed, the allegations concerning her relations with Protzman were brought out, this leading to his arrest.

NO LONGER SIMPLE PROBLEM

Matter of Food, in These Days of Statistics, Has Become Question of Calculation.

Once upon a time this problem of food was a very simple matter. Three times a day, as a rule, the attention of man was drawn to a hollow feeling located due east of the lower end of the vertebral column. This vacancy he proceeded to fill with a slab of bread, a chunk of beef, a pot of rice, etc., flavored as a rule with butter, jam, garlic, etc., according to race, religion, climate, age, etc. This settled the problem till the next call from the far East.

It thus us to say that this was living to eat and not eating to live. It showed no adjustment of means to end. It was a system of food that made no distinction between a longshoreman and a free-verse poet. It was internal anarchy.

Happily the truth has been realized. The consumption of food is no longer destructive but constructive. Man no longer eats corned beef and cabbage, but the vitamins in the beef and the polyneuropatics in the cabbage. When he picks up the bill of fare he no longer says, "What will most speedily and cheaply allay the unrest in my far East?" but he says, "Where can I find the 12,500 carbohydrates that will give me the right outlook on the League of Nations?" And he finds it in unpolished rice. Or he says to himself, "I am now at work on the fourth act of my poetic drama; to make it convincing to Belasco I must absorb 3,200 pectinoglycans daily for the next 30 days." So he shaves the kernels off the corn and eats the cob. Perhaps with coconut butter, for the added colloidal saponin.

This very midnight in our great city a couple of army corps of teething infants will be lulled to rest with 23,175 pneumolactylines warmed up in a bottle.—New York Evening Post.
