PLAYED FEW "SAFETY SHOTS"

Men Who Have Won Success in Life's Game Satisfied With Nothing but Victory.

Walter Hagen, the golfer, says: "Never play for a safety, but always try for the cup."

Kings in other trades as well as in golf have found that it pays to "try for the cup," remarks "Glad" in the Philadelphia Press.

Safety shots are often careless shots in business as in play.

Rockefeller played six hole out in the oil world and he made a par and then some.

Morgan hammered the ball straight for the flag and it flew above every bunker and sand pit in the financial world.

Col. "Tom" Scott had no safety shots in his bag when dreaming out the Pennsylvania road system, nor did Franklin B. Gowen when he made his master stroke in buying the Reading's coal lands.

Theodore N. Vail, the telephone giant, never missed his game nor resorted to a half shot to save his face. He went out with the long stroke and came home to the final shot with a record card to his credit.

The big-league teams play to win the game, not to win a compromise or tie the other team.

The great merchant nails his flag to the mast, says "damn the torpedoes," and shoots straight at his target.

So in business as on the links the adage should be: "Hold your head still and play for the cup."

PICK EMPLOYEES WITH CARE

Modern Business Men No Longer Rely on the "Hit-or-Miss" Method of Selection.

There was a time when picking employees was a hit-and-miss job, a trial-and-error matter which few employers believed could be corrected. This is the day of doing things right and the modern employer is now selecting his associates, from the office boy to the man highest up, with as much care as he would launch on an entirely new business venture. William Marvin Jackson, director of the Personnel Development service, writes:

"If employees are carefully selected with an eye to their real adaptability and fitness for the work to be done, it goes without question that they are much more likely to take an interest in their work, and hence, the business itself. If they are interested, they will get along well with their fellows and co-operate with their superiors. All of which means that they will grow, and there is no satisfaction for the employer greater than that which accompanies the knowledge that he is getting somewhere. Putting him on the back may make him feel good, and paying him a good salary may make him work harder. But giving him a new job and bigger job will alone make him supremely happy, will alone make him work with complete abandon, with thorough-going enthusiasm." —Forbes Magazine.

No Doubt Who Was Boss.

Sometimes it is easy to see, even before a couple is married, just which one is going to be the boss of the household. Recently a big, robust woman stepped into the office of Register of Deeds Adler Johnson. "Is this where I get a license?" she asked.

"What kind of a license?" asked Adler.

"A marriage license," said the woman.

"No, we don't handle them," said Adler. "Go to the first door down the hall on your right."

"I knew at first that this wasn't the place," said the big woman, with an air of disgust; "that's what I told him." Thereupon she stepped into the hall, and when the door opened Adler could see a little man waiting outside.

It was evident that the woman had usurped command and was going to take charge of the marriage license business, not to mention, of course, the honeymoon and all the rest of the alliance.—Fort Scott (Kan.) Tribune.

Australian Rabbits Selling Fast.

Rabbits have been doing great damage in the grazing districts of Australia, and strenuous efforts to eradicate them has resulted in the killing of a vast number of these animals. Some 100,000 bunnies are now in cold storage awaiting shipment to England. The embargo on the export of rabbit skins was removed in December last, and the boom in rabbit-skin prices has produced remarkable competition in slaughtering the pest. The ruling average price paid to trappers for skins is now $1.82 per pound, and the demand for skins by the United States and European markets is so great that it cannot be satisfied, and it is thought that prices will go still higher. Experienced trappers are making up to $37 per week for the skins alone.

Wanted a Quantity.

Helen's mother came from a large family and Helen loved to visit her grandma's house, as there were always so many young uncles and aunts to play with. One day, after returning from one of her visits, Helen was taken to the bedroom and was shown a tiny new baby sister. Helen did not seem to be at all enthusiastic, and her father, surprised at her lack of interest, asked:

"Well, what do you think of your new baby sister?"

Helen replied: "Hm! Only one? Why didn't you get a real many, like grandma has?"

-and- would you listen to this!

PETEY BOY!

Just a night flash by fast mail to uncork you a real fuss-stirring idea that has five aces shaded!

Now, bolt this down:—no two people, unless they run a circus or write encyclopedias, ever agree offhand on which is a camel and which is a dromedary when you line the two up and check off one hump on one and two humps on the other. You can't do it with the sun shining!

Spill this "hump" question first time you're in a bunch of live ones—if you want to see fur fly! Never heard such a wind-jamming squall in my life as tonight when I passed it to our crowd! You know Betty Ellen Jones. Well, she said a dromedary was a he-camel hunting a date in the desert! And, Betty's "Vassar, '20"—rah, rah! All right, Betty!

All you've got to do is dig out your deck of Camel cigarettes. That "bird" out front clinches the argument—apparently—but!

In the classic language of bigger business circles—"you tell 'em Cricket, Katy did!"

Report your luck quick. Try it on old Jig Jones! And listen, Peter: I'll shortly slip you some smoke news that'll make Jake's ideas rattle like a tin can tied to a towser dog's tail! S'long!

Yours for warm socks next winter!

Freaks for Sale.

A fellow visitor to one of the beautiful gardens around Boston now open to the public spoke to us entertainingly of the old custom of England of clipping trees and shrubs into formal designs representing birds, beasts, and so forth. He quoted to us—and as he seemed to be a truthful gentleman we venture to quote—part of an advertisement offering an estate for sale over there. It ran thus: "Adam and Eve in view; Adam a little shattered by the fall; Eve and the serpent flourishing. St. George in box, his arm scarce long enough, but will be in condition to stick the dragon by next August; a peacock of the sun; shot up into a porcupine by its being forgot in rainy weather."—Boston Transcript.

First American Watchmaker.

Luther Goddard, a Massachusetts preacher, was the first to make watches in America; but foreign competition forced him to retire from the field, and Luther went back to preaching. Then for a time the art languished—to be revived by Edward Howard, born in Hingham in 1813, who was the real founder of the American watch industry. A workman in Howard's factory in Roxbury, P. S. Bartlett, who, when asked what he was doing, said, "I am working for a company which makes seven complete watches a day." Great was the movement at this reply. "Where on earth could you sell seven watches a day?" they shouted.

The Takahe.

One of the most remarkable birds in New Zealand is the takahe or Nornis Mantelli (or N. Hochstetteri) a sort of coo which has developed the colors (including the metallic luster on green and golden brown feathers) of the peacock. Only four specimens of this bird have been obtained. One of these is in the Otago museum, Dunedin, New Zealand. Others are to be seen in the South Kensington Natural History museum, London, but these have been obtained at a different season of the year, for where the Dunedin specimen is bright blue their plumage is more of a pruned color. The fourth specimen is, or was, in the Dresden museum.

It is not necessary to be great in the art of the sublime and the beautiful. —Horn.
